DIOCESAN RETURNS OF RECUSANTS FOR ENGLAND AND WALES. 1577.

The Record Office, Domestic, Elizabeth, Vols. 117, 118, 119. CONTRIBUTED BY THE REV. PATRICK RYAN, S.J.

On the 21st of June, 1577, the following letter was sent by John Aylmer, Protestant Bishop of London, to Mr. Secretary Walsingham. A Catholic reaction was beginning; perhaps a dozen seminary priests had come over from Douay; the counter-Reformation movement was beginning to pulsate in Flanders and France.

John Aylmer, Bishop of London, to Secretary Walsingham, 21 June, 1577. R.O. Dom. Eliz., 114, n. 22.

After my hartie Comendacons unto yor Honor, I haue to crave both yor advise and aide in a matter of great moment, conserninge both the Church and the state of this Realme, wherin I besech you to advise me friendlie, and to deale with hir Maiestie carefullye, as you shall see the case earnestlie requireth. So it is right Honorable my Lord of Canturburie and I have receaved from divers of or brethren, Busshoppes of this Realme, that the Papists do marvelously increase, both in number and in obstinate withdrawinge of them selves from the Church and service of God. For the remedie wherof the manner of imprisoninge of them, which hath bin used hertofore for their punishment, hath not onlie little avayled, but also hath bin a meanes, by sparinge of their howsekeepinge, greatlie to enrich them; and such as here upon seute haue bin enlarged, and upon hope of amendment sent in to their Cuntries, have drawne great multitudes of their teanantes and frindes into the like maliciouse obstinacie. Wherfore, with Conference had with the rest of or Colleages, we have thought good to forbeare the imprisoninge of the richer sorte, and to punishe them by round fynes, to be imposed for contemptuose refusinge of receavinge the Communion, accordinge to or order & Commandmentes. For, if we should directlie punishe them for not comeinge to the Churche. they have to alleadge that the penaltie, beinge alreadie sett downe by statute (which is xijd for every such offence) is not by us to be altered nor agravated. This maner of fininge of them will procure the Oueene a thowsand poundes by yeare to hir Coffers: whatsoever it doe more, it will weakne the enymie and touch him much nerer, then any paine heretofore inflicted hath done. In conferringe with hir Maiestie about it, ij things are to be observedfirst, that hir Maiestie be geven to understand, that it is mente hereby aswell to touch the one side as the other indifferentlie, or els you can gesse what will followe; secondarilie, if hir Maiestie, by im-portunate seutes of courtiers for their friendes, be easilie drawne to forgive the forfeytures, then or labor wilbe lost: we shalbe brought into hatred, the enimie shalbe encoraged, and all or travile tourned to a mockrie. Therfore hir Maiestie must be made here in to be animo obfirmato, or els nothing wilbe done. It may please you herein to send me yor opinion, and after acquaint hir Maiestie with it, when you shall see best oportunitie. To leave this, I besech you have in remembrance the poore man's seute, which my Lord treasurer and I commended unto you. The valew is smalle, & therfore the seute can not be very great, or hard to be obteined. Thus I take my leave of yor Honor, prayinge God to enrich you with all heavenlie blissings, to his glorie and the profite of his ffulham, xxjo Junii 1577.

Yor Honor's to Command John London.

[Addressed] To the right honorable & my very good friende Mr ffrancis Walsyngham, Chefe Secretarie to hir Maiestie, geve thes.

[Endorsed] 21 June 1577. From the Bushoppe of London of his & other the Commissioners' purpose to procead by fynes agaynst Papists &c.

All this plan is so highly characteristic of Elizabeth's persecution, that its principal points deserve to be re-stated.

(1) Its illegality is admitted from the first. There was already a system of fines sanctioned by Parliament. The new idea is to increase them past bearing, by creating a new crime, i.e. by considering conscientious objections to the new service as "a contempt," and punishing this as treason.

(2) It is hypocritically pretended that these fines will "touch" Puritans and Catholics "indifferently," though the lists are almost exclusively of Catholics! Unless this pretence is kept up, "You can guess what will follow."

(3) Elizabeth will not allow this, unless her temper is highly irritated.

(4) The intercession of friends is to be carefully cut off.

It took Walsingham three months to carry out Aylmer's plan, and on the 15th of October, the Court being then at Windsor, the Privy Council sent out letters to the Bishops, ordering a return within a week, of the recusants in their respective dioceses, with an estimate of the annual revenues of each.* The collection of papers before us consists mainly of the returns made in obedience to this letter.

Almost every return has a short covering letter. This is generally quite brief and formal, and is sufficiently represented in the Calendar of State Papers, Domestic, 1547-1580, pp. 559 to 570. A few points, however, call for a word or two of comment. The most general subject of comment is the shortness of the time for making the return; as the episcopal visitations did not provide adequate information. The Bishop of Oxford's secretary adds that recusants will not come to the

* This letter is not registered in Dasent's Acts of the Privy Council, perhaps because the Court was not then in London. The date, however, is frequently mentioned in the covering letters. The object of requiring a return instanter was presumably in order to prevent recourse by friends to Elizabeth.

visitations. Only one had presented himself last time, and it could hardly be supposed that even one in twelve would ever come in. The people were very loath to bring accusations. There are not in these letters many complaints of the increase of Papists. He of Winchester, indeed, says that "The Recusants' most wilful obstinacy daily groweth more and more." In the diocese of Chester a loss is admitted of not less than 7,000 in seven years.

The subject of the Puritans rarely appears. Richard Cheney, Bishop of Gloucester, with Romanistic leanings, is the fullest. He says, "Some, commonly called puritans, wilfullie refuse to come to Church, as not liking the surplice, ceremonies and other service; whereon they have been indicted in divers and several sessions upon the statute, and now remayne in prison." (Vol. 117, n. 12.) Another complains that the new sect thinks it right to dissemble. Robert Bannister, for instance, though he detests both Papistry, and also religion as now established, still comes to church. The Bishop of Norwich says apologetically that his returns are old and incomplete, because they were collected "Partly of the papists, partly of the peevish, precise sort." But he hopes to make progress by harrying his flock more systematically. The Bishop of Chichester has obtained his returns "from the preachers"; which probably means the parsons. The cruellest of all these letters is that of Archbishop Sandys, and we conclude our survey of these covering letters by quoting it in full, as showing the growing animosity on the Government side.

Edwyn Sandys, Archbishop of York, to the Privy Council, 28 October 1577. Dom. Eliz. 117, n. 23.

Maye it please yor good Lordships to be aduertised, that yor lettres written at Windsore the xvth of October, came vnto my hands on Tewsdaie at night the xxijth of the same, and according to hir Maiesties pleasure and yor Lordships' order, I have with all diligencie travelled therin, and haue sent vnto yor Lordships herewithall the names and abilities of suche within my dioces, as refuse to come to Churche, using the helpe of suche herin, as yor Lordships in yor lettres named vnto me. Yt was not possible for me in this shortnes of tyme to searche owt all, beinge required by yor Lordships to returne answere within vij daies, for as yet I haue not visited my dioces, and so canne not come by full vnderstandinge of the offendours, But there are to many, whose intollerable insolence, perverse and contemptuous disobedience, is with speede to be repressed, or els hardly the state canne stande in quiet saftie. I had in full purpose to haue advertized yor Lordships herof, and for redresse praied the assistannce of yor autoritie; but yor Lordships haue happilie prevented me, and I truste yow will bringe to good effecte and perfectly finishe that which uppon good & due consideracon yow have taken in hande. God willeth that theese straied sheepe be called home and be compelled to come in, And it must needs put in daunger the publique quiet, yf they be suffered to lyve in this sorte. I have already laboured what I canne synce my cominge hither, as well by persuasion as by execucion of discipline, to reforme them; but litle haue I prevailed, for a more stiffe necked, wilfull or obstinate people did I never knowe or heare of: dowbtlesse they are reconciled to Rome & sworne to the pope. They will abide no conference, neither give eare to any doctrine or persuasion. Some of them, when the praier for the Quenes Maiestie hath ben read vnto them, haue vtterly refused to saie Amen vnto it. Others do glory (and that not of the simpleste sorte) that they never knewe what the bible or Testament meant. To some I have offered lodginge and diet in my howse, that I might haue conference with them for their conformitie; but they chose rather to go to prison. Thus muche I write to give yor Lordships a taste of their evill disposicons. And the moste of them haue ben corrupted by on Henry Comberforde, a moste obstinate popishe prieste, now prisoner at Hull. While we expecte yor Lordships' further order, we procede here accordinge to our Commission, leste, yf we should surceasse, they would growe the stowter, thinkinge that our hands were shutt uppe. Immediatly after the recepte of yor Lordships' lettres, I dispatched a messinger into Nottinghamshire, parcell of my dioces, to make like certificat from thence, accordinge to yor Lordships' direction in that behalf; but it is so farre of, and the tyme limited for returne of my Certificat so shorte. that it coulde not as yet come vnto my hands. Yf any thinge come, I will sende the same with all speede. But I am credibly informed that there is not one in that shire, which refuseth to come to the Churche. Thus I take my leave of yor good Lordships, commending the same to the good direction of goddes holy spirite. From Bushopthorpe this xxviijth of October 1577,

Yor Lordships at Commandment,

[Addressed] To the Lordes and others of hir Maiesties most honorable Privie Counsell.

[Endorsed] 28 of October 1577. Bushop of York: certifieng the nomber of Recusants within his Diocesse.

To sum up, it appears on all hands that, considered as a numbering of the Catholics in England at this time, the return must be most incomplete. The Government did not want to make such a census, but to get at a list of Catholics of property from whom fines could be extorted. They only left one week for the return to be made, a space of time that was altogether inadequate. Many Commissioners took much more time, but none could accomplish his task.

It is also to be confessed that Catholics in the past had been far too compliant in coming to the Anglican service under compulsion. It had, unfortunately, seemed to many that if one went to church under compulsion, one did not go as an act of religion; and therefore was not guilty of heresy. But this strained and therefore false view was repeatedly condemned by the Catholic authorities, and the disappearance of the ancient church was due chiefly to this external profession of a different religion. It was only at this late period that a successful effort was being made to deal with this great evil. (See C.R.S., ii, 28, 179–181; iv, 3–5, with notes).

^{*} For further information about this noble confessor see Foley, Records S.J., vol. iii, pp. 219, 221, 245, 803; Morris, Troubles, iii, p. 300.

The first consequence which seems to have followed from this inquisition was the arbitrary imposition of a tax on each recusant who was worth £40 yearly in lands or £200 in goods. The impost was the maintenance of one or more "lances or light horse." There are several lists of recusants made with this recruiting object. Though this modified plan was again not persisted in, early in 1581 Aylmer's policy was sanctioned by Parliament in the act of 23 Elizabeth, chapter I, which imposed on recusants the fine of £20 per lunar month.

ter I, which imposed on recusants the fine of £20 per lunar month.

It is largely due to Father J. H. Pollen, S.J., that these Recusant Returns appear under the auspices of the Catholic Record Society.

and I thank him for his help in preparing them for publication.

PATRICK RYAN, S.J.

ANALYSIS AND SUMMARY OF THE CENSUS.

R.O., Domestic, Elizabeth, cxix, 20. The following original paper is both an analysis and a summary of the various reports. Some of these are now wanting, that is Suffolk, Durham and Northumberland. Devon and Cambridge seem never to have been returned. The Welsh dioceses, though left blank in the summary, have some short returns. The diocese of Carlisle (Cumberland and Westmorland) is not even mentioned in the list; Bristol appears to be included under Bath and Wells.

In the Record Office, where the chronological sequence is strictly followed, this collection of returns has been broken up, and the pieces are distributed up and down three volumes of miscellaneous State papers in chronological order, that is in the order of their respective covering letters. This cannot be praised from a record-lover's point of view; the papers should have been kept together, and bound in the order, which the official and original summary points out. They are now numbered and printed in this their proper record order, and this will materially assist the collation of numerous other lists of Recusants; for the subsequent lists were probably derived, at least in part, from these.

The original summary is here flanked by columns added by the editor. To the left the reference numbers of the different units, which numbers have also been prefixed to the title of each return, and mark the order of the survey. It will be noticed that there are two series of numbers: (1) for the dioceses, and (2) for the counties. This is due to the census having been taken partly by ecclesiastical officials, partly by those of the civil government. The former took the diocese as their unit, the latter the county. The latter lists (as that of 1588 below) omit the dioceses altogether, and arrange under counties. The Recusant Rolls place the counties in alphabetical order.

To the right is a column of corrected totals. There are three or four small errors in the original additions, and some entries are not taken into account in the totals. The explanation of this may possibly be that these entries were only made after the totals had been added up.

Further on the right are references to the actual positions of the different returns in the Record Office.

Anne Dacre, second daughter of William 3rd Lord Dacre of Gillesland, married in 1552 or 1553 Henry Clifford 2nd Earl of Cumberland. She died 3 July and was buried 1 Aug. 1581 at Skipton. She was mother of George the 3rd Earl, of Francis the 4th Earl of Cumberland, and of Frances who married Philip 3rd Lord Wharton (J. W. Clay, Extinct Northern Peerages 26, 39, 246). She would be resident at Barden Tower in Skipton parish.—J.S.H.

² Anne daughter of Francis Talbot 5th Earl of Shrewsbury, widow of John 2nd Lord Bray, married, as his second wife, Sir Thomas Wharton, who was created Lord Wharton. Died 3 Feb. 1584 without issue (Ibid. 246).—J.S.H.

³ Edith daughter of Nicholas Palmes of Naburn and second wife of Sir Thomas Metham of Metham, Howden (J. Foster, Visit. of Yorks. 90, 253). His will dated I June 1572, pro. 31 Oct. 1573 (Yorks. Records—Wills). Lady Metham appears as a recusant at St. Giles's in the Fields in 1581 (Midx. Records i, 123). They had a large family; Sir Thomas was succeeded by his eldest son Thomas (ob. 1610) by the first marriage to Dorothy (ob. 1553) daughter of George Lord Darcy of Aston (J. Foster, Yorks. Visits. 253; Clay, Extinct Northern Peerages 43).-J.S.H.

⁴ In 1575 Lady Wilstropp was reported for not attending St. Martin's church, Micklegate, York, for a year (Yorks. Arch. Journal xv, 240). Agnes the wife of Sir Oswald Wilstrop of Wilstrop in Kirk Hammerton (his will 8 April 1574, pro. 2 April 1584) was daughter of Thomas Redman of Bossall by Anne daughter and coheir of Robert son of Henry Lord Scrope of Bolton (Harl. Soc. xvi, 355). Agnes often spelt Annes may be corrupted to Anne as in the text.—J.S.H.

Anne daughter of Sir William Mallory of Studley, Ripon, married as in the text. Their second or third son David married Anne daughter of Charles

The estates passed through the fifth son Sampson (J. Foster, Yorks. Visits. 283). Sir William was buried at Ripley 20 Jan. 1578-9, and Lady Ingleby 20 Feb. 1587-8 (Clay, Dugdale's Visit.). Katherine wife of William Arthington of Arthington appears below.—J.S.H.

William Hawkesworth seems to have succeeded his father Walter at Hawkesworth, Otley, before the visitation of 1585. He married Rosamond daughter of Thomas Lister of Westby, Gisburn (Foster 299). Their daughter Rosamond wife of Cyril Arthington or Ardington of Arthington, Adel, was a recusant in 1604 (Ibid. 273; Peacock 16).-J.S.H.

The will of William Arthington of Arthington, esq., was made 21 June and proved 8 Dec. 1585. J. Foster, in a pedigree of the family composed of the Visitations of 1585 and 1612, with additions, signed by two distant cousins of the Castley (Leathley) branch, calls him a knight; but in the Ingleby pedigree immediately connected he is esquire, the same as in Ralph Thoreby's Ducatus Leodiensis, p. 7. Walter C. Metcalfe and William A. Shaw do not give a single Arthington knight, ancient and gentle as the family was. Mrs. Arthington was arrested at Arthington Hall with her daughter Jane (Mrs. Edward Windsor) and the aged nun Dame Isabel Whithead, O.S.B., of Arthington Priory, about Michaelmas 1587, and committed to York Castle for some time. On 16 June 1590 she was committed for recusancy to Alderman William Robinson's house at York. Search was made for her brother David Ingleby and Edward Windsor. Katherine Arthington, or Ardington as it is often spelt, late of Adel and also as of Harewell, widow, is in the Recusant Exchequer Roll for 1592-3. Anthony Atkinson, an informer, reported David Ingleby and four others going armed on 5 Sept. 1593, adding "At Rainscroft [? Raventofts, if not an obscurer place] a litle from Rippon at Mrs. Ardington house, she beinge sister to Davye Englebie doth harbor hym and soondrie preists and other recusants." A copy of a presentment of recusants' property at Ainsty quarter sessions 1597, by Richard Webster, vicar of Adel (given me by Mr. J. S. Gibbons, and slightly changed in Northern Genealogist vi, 31), quotes "Wm. Arthingtō disseased & (sic) Katheren his wife now livinge at Harwell in Netherdall" [sic,? Nidderdale]. I suggest that the ampersand is a mistake in the record, and that William A. was not a recusant, but only named to identify his wife and her widow rights at Arthington, he being dead twelve years before. In 1604 Katheren Ardington, a gentlewoman, was a recusant of Dacre Pasture, where I am informed Harewell is; most of the places above being in the extensive par of Edward Cresacre of Barnborough or Barmborough, six miles west of Doncaster (I regret having given this wrong in C.R.S. xix, 400). Thomas More's name appears in the list of gentry of Tickhill wapentake summoned to attest his pedigree at the visitation of 1584-5, but against it are the words—"in prisona, recusans," and he suffered exile. Born 8 Aug. 1531, he died 19 Aug. 1606. He married Mary daughter of John Scrope of Hambledon, Buckinghamshire. His eldest son, John, ob. v. p.: Thomas and John became priests; and the fourth, Cresacre More, married Elizabeth daughter of Thomas Cage of Firle, Sussex (Commoners iii, 451; J. Foster, Yorks. ¹ Margaret daughter of Laurence Robinson of Overton, wife of John Thwaites of Marston. On 20 Nov. 1576 she pleaded her conscience, adding "there is nothing in the church that she liketh of." A younger son, Francis, was reported as having gone abroad, and arrived at Rheims 17 April 1589, leaving for Rome as attendant on the venerable priest, Dr. Thomas Baily, on 17 March 1590. The eldest son, James, although a noncommunicant, agreed to his children being educated as Protestants. He must have died soon after, as his widow, Mary daughter of Francis Gale of Acomb, with their son William and his wife Eleanor daughter of Philip 3rd Lord Wharton and Barbara Gale, with a servant, Jane Thompson, were new recusants in 1604. But the widow had been a recusant in Jan. 1598-9. (J. Foster, Yorks. Visits. 93; J. Morris, Troubles iii; Knox, Douay Diaries; J. W. Clay, Extinct Northern Peerages 246; Peacock 60.).—J.S.H.

² Anne daughter of Sir John Constable of Halsham, etc., second wife of Brian son of Nicholas Palmes of Naburn by Jane daughter of William Convers of Sockburn (Ibid. 57, 90).—J.S.H.

³ Anne daughter of Robert Constable of Easington, E.R. Yorks., by Jane daughter of Edmond Frothingham of Frothingham (or South Frodingham), Owthorn, and grand-daughter of Sir John Constable of Burton-Constable, etc. She married John Lander an attorney of St. Martin's parish, Coney Street, York, where, of seven children, only their son John was baptized 21 Feb. 1573-4. In November 1576 she was reported as having pleaded conscience for her recusancy, but had left the parish (recessit), perhaps for Naburn where we find them in June 1577. Her first apprehension would follow the above report, when her husband attempted to defend her at law, and was told by the tyrant Earl of Huntingdon that there was no law for Catholics. Dates are not available, but Leonard Bapthorpe, the Catholic counsellor, who had been briefed to defend her and other ladies, was committed to the custody of Edmund Sands the sheriff, whose term of office expired 29 Sept. 1577. The husband was sent up to London, put in the Counter prison, brought before the Star Chamber, returned to York, put in the stocks, and deprived of his professional practice. To avoid the infamy of the stocks to a gentleman, he had besought his wife to yield somewhat, but she put duty to God above all; and having gone through this ordeal, he was ever after firm in the Faith. After six weeks she was released and had some peace; but both were again arrested in 1579, committed to York Castle and later to Hull Castle. Finally he was

- ³ Agnes daughter of William Lascelles alias Jackson of Ganthorpe, Terrington, married John Forster of Earswick, Huntington (J. Foster, Yorks, Visits. 618). "Agnes ffoster, widow," appears amongst the Huntington recusants in 1604 (Peacock 118).—J.S.H.
- ⁴Christopher Thwenge of Huggate-on-the-Wold, living 1584, son of Marmaduke Thwenge of Upper Helmesley, had a daughter Isabell baptized at Huggate 28 Aug. 1547 (J. Foster, Yorks. Visits. 230; Parish Reg. Soc. xxxvi, 2).—J.S.H.
- ⁵ Jane daughter of Thomas Vavasour of Copmanthorpe, an outlying part of York, and wife of Anthony Langdale of Houghton, Sancton. The last died at Rome 10 April 1577 (J. Foster, Yorks. Visits. 129).—J.S.H.
- ⁶ Fr. Christopher Grene, S.J., mentions two Confessors—Thomas Acrige or Acrick, O.S.F., and may have transposed the Christian name with John (?) A(c)kri(d)ge, a priest, becoming a curate to parson Hyndmers at Wensley, then under Dr. Daykins, and last at Richmond where he was born. His conformity to the Elizabethan establishment must be after his second appointment, as John Dakyn, LL.D. (or Dawkins as his name appears in the Corpus Christi Guild Roll in 1534), became vicar-general and principal official of the Archbishop of York, prebendary of Bilton in the Ainsty and Kirk-Fenton, and Archdeacon of the East Riding, dying in 1558. So it must be at Richmond that he conformed, and would easily obtain the rectory of Low-Catton (not mentioned by Grene). Repenting of his heresy about the time of the rising of the earls in 1569, he wandered about as a pilgrim, was arrested at his sister's house at Richmond, tried before an alderman, a kinsman, and carried to York Castle, and later to Hull, where the two died in prison in 1583 and 1585; the names causing doubt (J. Morris, Troubles iii; H. Foley, Records S.J. iii; Surtees Soc. vii, 221).—J.S.H.

- ¹ Christopher son of William Monkton of Londesborough and Cavell, Eastrington, by his wife Anne daughter of Sir Robert Aske of Aughton. He was a recusant in 1592-3. His wife was Frances daughter of John Hussey of North Duffield and Harswell (J. Foster, Yorks. Visits. 92, 119, 134; C.R.S. xviii, 52, vide Manckton).—J.S.H.
- ² Katherine daughter of George Thwenge of Over Helmesley and Anne daughter of William Thwaites of Marston. She married Ralph Thwenge of East Heslerton in West Heslerton parish. A recusant in 1593 (J. Foster, Yorks. Visits. 230; Commoners ii, 147; C.R.S. xviii).—J.S.H.
- ³ Robert Meynell or Mennell of Hilton, sergeant-at-law 1547 who died 1563, by his wife Mary daughter of Thomas Pudsey of Barforth, had a son Cuthbert (J. Foster, Yorks. Visits. 250; Commoners i, 402).—J.S.H.
- ⁴ Toccotes is the older spelling of the manor of Tocketts in Guisborough. Roger Tockets who died a Catholic prisoner in 1573 (C.R.S. v), was probably the father of the above Roger. Hull records show that he might have had temporary licence to appear before the Ecclesiastical Commissioners late in 1585, on giving £200 bail. Queen Elizabeth seized his possession in 1599, and in 1604 one Richard Heaton was paying the Crown rent for Roger's manor of Tocketts, houses at Upleatham and Skelton, etc., part of possessions of Roger Tocketts, esquire, late of Drypool (where the Hull prisons were), recusant, deceased. Other seized estates named include two houses and four hundred acres in Moulton, Middleton-Tyas (J. H. Hirst, Hull Blockhouses). He married Margaret daughter of Robert Meynell, sergeant-at-law. "Living in 1584," but in prison, the Visitation of that year is signed by his elder son "George Toccotts" (J. Foster, Yorks, Visits. 195), who had been two years a recusant in 1604; whilst the younger son Thomas, a recusant since only Whitsuntide last was retained by Thomas Wilie of Upleatham (Peacock 96, 106).—J.S.H.
- ⁵ Thomas Leedes of North Milford in the parish of Kirkby-on-Wharf, his second wife [Milicent Bransby], their son Thomas and his wife Mary , were recusants in 1593. The first died in 1602, his will dated 18 April being proved 6 July. The son was knighted in 1603, being described as of Suffolk. This in 1593 is described by an informer as "Peckfield," or Pakefield near Lowestoft on the Suffolk coast, where he harboured many priests. "William Turner late servant of Sir Tho. Leeds" was a recusant of Kirkby Wharf parish in 1604 (J. Foster, Yorks. Visits. 135; C.R.S. v and xviii; Metcalfe, Book of Knights).—J.S.H.
- ⁶ John son of William Mallet of Normanton and Rosamond Mirfield, married Anne daughter of William Vavasour of Spaldington, Bubwith. In 1585 they had William aged 4, and three daughters (J. Foster, Yorks. Visits. 326).—J.S.H.

pro. 20 July 1573, buried at Halifax 13 April 1573]. Dunstan and Edward, priests.

William Lacy, with two daughters-Agnes wife of Richard Hills or Hules and Margaret wife of Simon Low, both merchants of London. Their mother's name is left blank; possibly because William Lacy married twice, and information being lacking as to which wife was the mother.

Richard Lacy married to daughter to Greene.

As authority for the connection between Great Houghton and Halifax I quote the Feet of Fines for 1577, the year of this report. "John Jackson de Ederthorpe, plaintiff, versus John Lacye, esq., son and heir of Hugh Lacye, esq., deforciant; *e A third part of land in Mylnhouse and Greathaughton, and a third part of the moiety of three messuages with lands in Derfeld and Edderthorppe als. Eddirthorppe." In 1578 a similar entry omits Great Houghton, and Hugh's name, substituting his grandson, John, junior, "John Lacye de Brereley, esq., and Ann [Woodruffe of Woolley] his wife, and John Lacye, gent., his son and heir apparent" being deforciants (Yorks. Records v,

When old, William went to Rheims, Pont-a-Mousson and Rome, where he obtained a dispensation for the priesthood, having been twice married, the second time to a widow named Creswell. After his ordination he returned to England, was arrested at York, and after much cruel treatment, was martyred the 22 August 1582. His name is confused with a namesake who appears later in this list, p. 36.—J.S.H.

² Henry Oglethorpe of Beaghall or Beal, Kellington parish, living at the Visitation of 1585, when his wife's name is not given, but there are two sons Richard and Thomas (the last being wrongly supposed by Bro. Foley (iii, 148) to be the Jesuit scholastic, who is clearly, from his own description, the son of the "schismatic" Michael Oglethorpe of Roundhay, Barwick in Elmet, or of Thorner in C.R.S. xviii, and Elizabeth Stillington, which name he adopted as an alias). Henry was son of Thomas Oglethorpe of Beaghall by Jane daughter of Henry Vavasour of Hazelwood, Tadcaster; and grandson of John daughter of Henry vavasour of Hazelwood, Tadcaster; and grandson of John Oglethorpe of Oglethorpe, cousin of Owen Oglethorpe, bishop of Carlisle, who crowned Queen Elizabeth (J. Foster, Yorks. Visits. 314). From a Hatfield MS. list of prisoners, dated 1592, quoted by J. H. Hirst (Hull Blockhouses 81), he may have been still a prisoner at Hull; but the address of "Ball (sic) near Alberford" [Abberford] is transposed with that of Edward Teshe of "Bishopsfield near York [sic, Bishophill in York]."—J.S.H.

² Thomas Vavasour of Holy Trinity parish, King's Court, physician, was a younger son of Sir Peter Vavasour of Spaldington, Bubwith, by his wife Elizabeth daughter of Andrew Lord Windsor. His wife Dorothy . . appears lower in this list. Fr. Christopher Grene says he was banished in the reign of Edward VI for religion. After an excommunication by an apostate religious, Moulton, one of the city sheriffs, [Robert] Askwith, [1572-3] broke into his house and not finding him despoiled everything. About three years later the Lord President repeated the attack, when to save suffering to his wife (W. Hutton adds also to save a priest hiding there) he surrendered himself. Committed to the custody of Alderman Robert Brook.

he was allowed a short time at home until his wife's recovery, and then sent again to the same private custody. But defending his religion so learnedly the authorities became alarmed, and he was closely imprisoned in Hull Castle. In illness he was allowed to reside with a brother on bail; but, rumour spreading that he had conformed, to avoid scandal he refused further extension, and was returned to prison at Hull. His last years were spent there in contemplation, prayer, and acts of charity to his fellow-prisoners until his death, 12 May 1585. He was buried in the adjoining churchyard at Drypool (Troubles iii; J. Foster, Yorks. Visits. 116; Foley iii, 208).—J.S.H.

¹ Henry Comberforth or Comberford, priest, was (according to William Hutton, who often speaks of years very widely) committed to Ousebridge 26 years before 10 Dec. 1594, remained there six years; from thence removed to Hull Blockhouse, remaining there close prisoner about ten years, and there died. But his death in prison is recorded on 4 March 1586 (Troubles iii; C.R.S. v). No higher testimony can be paid to him than that of the persecuting Archbishop Edwin Sandys in his letter (p. 4).-J.S.H.

² John Bolton or Boulton was probably a Marian priest, as Hutton says he (Bowlton) was committed in the first year of Q. Elizabeth (1558-9), first to York Castle, thence to Ousebridge where he remained ten or twelve years, and thence to Hull Blockhouse for about eight years, and banished in 1585 (Troubles iii; C.R.S. v).-J.S.H.

³ John Alman or Almond, a Cistercian priest of Jervaulx Abbey, is said to be a Cheshire man. His imprisonments in York Castle and later in the Castle and Blockhouses at Hull are not dated. Worn out with age, infirmity and harsh treatment, crooked and blind, his Catholic fellow-prisoners were forbidden to tend him. He died in prison at Hull, 18 April 1585, aged about 80, and was buried at Drypool (Troubles iii). It should be noted however, that Cardinal Gasquet (Eng. Monasteries ii, 488) gives his age as only 76.— J.S.H.

William Ustanson or Ustison (Richard Ustonson was a tenant at Casterton, Westmoreland, of Margaret Davenport of Bromehall, Stockport, Cheshire, in 1593—C.R.S. xviii) was banished to France with others in 1585 (C.R.S. v). In the second Dougy Diary, p. 236, is mention of one of seven priests setting out for England in Oct. 1590, "Guilielmum Watsonum," who had been in prison in England before. This may be "Watson," but none of the other six have their sirnames latinized.—J.S.H.

Robert Williamson was transported to France with ten other York inprisoned priests and eleven from Hull in 1585 (C.R.S. v). J. H. Hirst, Hull Blockhouses, quotes a warrant for payment of £3 for this on 22 Nov. 1585.—

bridge. Brought before Archbishop Grindal 26 April 1574, he showed himself to be an able disputant, and was committed to the Sheriff's (Robert Brook) house, then to the Archbishop's Peter prison, then to Ripon, back to Peter prison, and Hull prisons as we find him above in 1577. He must have been still in prison in 1594 as he speaks of twenty years "ended next Easter." When he got relief is uncertain, but in Jany. 1598-9 he was a recusant in All Hallows' Peaseholme, and as an old recusant in 1599 was to be abjured the realm, when he is described of St. Cuthbert's in "Audmark," which may be Old Market meaning St. Cuthbert's Peaseholme, the only church so dedicated in York. Whether he abjured the realm or not, John ffletcher and William his son of St. Cuthbert's were old recusants in 1604. His wife, who had been in prison some years, succumbed and was very violent against him for his fortitude (Troubles iii; Peacock 57; Foley iii).—J.S.H.

⁶ Michael Tirrye or Tyrrye, etc., born at Ripcarth or Niskarth (? Aysgarth) in Wensley Dale, son of Arthur and Grace, the latter daughter of Oliver Swertwaite of Banckes in Denkes-dain (sic). His parents are said to be poor, but he was kept to school and his books until eighteen. After being in London as a scrivener he was at Trinity four years, and took the degree of B.A.; taught at "Niscarthes" church, at Guisborough, and last at York, altogether five or six years. In 1573, when verging on forty years, he was suspected, confessed the Faith he had long neglected, was brought before many authorities, and subjected to lesser imprisonments. Remaining firm he was placed in the stocks in the Low Kidcote for ten weeks, then to the High Kidcote and further urged to conform. On 9 Nov. 1576 he was shifted to the Castle, and on 27 Jan. 1577 to the prisons at Hull, where he was still in 1594. He may be the Michael Tizzie a prisoner at Ousebridge, York, in January 1598-9? (Foley iii; Troubles iii).—J.S.H.

*Geoffry Stevenson or Stephenson committed about 1570 or 1571 to Ouse-bridge prison, York, three years, then to the Castle, removed later to Hull, where being thrust down into a low vault, by reason of cold and noisome vapours and damps, he lost the use of all his senses, and so shortly after died (Troubles iii).—J.S.H.

¹⁰ Francis Parkinson, a layman, was in prison at Hull in 1581 and is said to have died a prisoner (J. H. Hirst, Hull Blockhouses; C.R.S. v).—J.S.H.

12 Stephen Branton imprisoned, according to William Hutton, in 1570 or 1571, on Ousebridge three years, then to York Castle, and thence to Hull; back again to York Castle where he was buried against the wall 19 July 1591, after full 20 years, although Fr. Christopher Grene puts it at only 18 years. Challoner relates that James Thompson, priest and martyr, was arrested in Mr.Branton's house, whilst he was in prison, on 11 August 1582, showing thereby the Catholicity of his family. The registers of St. Michael le Belfry give under 1573, "Jenete Branton wif to Stephen branton, about lviii years of aged, buried the xviith Day of aprill." York Freemen's Roll shows the name to be a corruption of Brampton—"Johannes Brampton marsshall" [blacksmith or farrier] in 1508; "Nicholaus Branton, blaksmyth, filius Johannis Branton, blaksmyth"; and "Stephanus Branton, smyth, filius Johannis Branton, smyth," both together in 1536. John Brampton or Branton seems to have carried on two occupations, and to have divided them between his sons, one being Stephen the recusant. "Willelmus Branton, smyth, filius Stephani Branton, smyth," in 1563. This William and his daughter Anne were recusants of St. Michael le Belfry in 1604 as we see earlier in Troubles iii of St. Olave's parish. "Arthurus Branton filius Willelmi Branton, blaksmyth" in 1604; "Ricardus Branton, blacksmith, filius Arthuri Branton, ¹ William Tes(s)imond of St. Michael le Belfry parish, sadler, took up his freedom in 1557, by patrimony, from his father James Tesimond, cordwainer, free in 1526. His son Christopher, of the same parish, sadler was free in 1590; married Christian Crosthwaite in 1591, and died the following year (Surtees Soc. xcvi and cii; Yorks. Par. Reg. Soc. i). William Hutton says that William Tesimond was committed to prison about 1571, put in the stocks all one cold winter, then removed to York Castle and thence to Hull, as we see in the text. His wife Margaret and his family were recusants on 6 June 1576 and in Nov. following, her husband being still in York Castle, she pleaded that her going to church "would offend God, and therefore her conscience will not suffer her to come there." Yet in spite of all his fortitude Fr. Christopher Grene, S. J., says he succumbed eventually (Troubles iii). This seems likely as the will of William Tessymond, York, sadler, dated 14 Nov. 1587 was proved 11 Jan. 1587-8; and that of Margaret Tessmonde, York, widow, 24 April 1591, proved 21 April 1592 (Yorks. Records xxii). She was buried 26 April 1591 at St. Michael le Belfry; but her husband's burial does not appear in the registers. The sirname appears in modern times at York as Tesseyman.—J.s.H.

Agnes may have read Annes and become Anne; for Agnes wife of John Weddell junior, butcher, of Christ's parish (or Holy Trinity), King's Court, close to "The Shambles," where butchers did and still most do congregate. She was in prison on 6 June 1576, and later sayeth she cometh not to the church for her conscience will not serve her, because there is neither altar, priest nor sacrifice. She was convicted again in 1585 and 1592 (Troubles iii). Three John Weddells were admitted freemen butchers in family succession—John son of John in 1539 (? the eldest Woddall in 1486), and John son of John in 1562. This one of the text became a chamberlain in 1575 (Surtees Soc. xcvi and cii).—J.S.H.

⁵ Margaret daughter of Thomas Myddylton or Middleton, wax chandler, free in 1529, a chamberlain in 1551, sheriff in 1564, buried at St. Martin's, Coney Street, 16 May 1567, will 14 Dec. 1560—10 June 1567. She was married as his second wife to John Clitherow(e), butcher, on 1 July 1571 at St. Martin's. He took up the freedom in 1559 by patrimony from his father Richard, a tailor, and was a chamberlain in 1573. She was reported as a recusant on 6 June, and on 20 Nov. 1576 as being in prison and not able to come expecting a maternity. The Rev. John Mush speaks of her being at liberty on bond about a year and a half before her final imprisonment on 10 March 1585-6 for barbouring him and the Rev. Francis Ingleby, martyr. References can only be given here to Fr. John Morris's Troubles iii, Mr. James Booth Milburn's A Martyr of Old York, etc., for the disgraceful treatment of this gentle matron and martyr, who suffered the peine forte et dure, being crushed to death on 25 March 1586. Her eldest daughter Anne then aged 11 or 12, to whom she sent her hose and shoes signifying that she should serve God and follow in her steps, was a prisoner in Lancaster Castle seven years later when her father got her release, only to pervert her; but she contrived to get to Louvain and became an Augustinian nun. A son Henry became a priest at the English College in Rome. William Clitherow als. West, a priest imprisoned in York College in Rome. William Clitherow als. West, a priest imprisoned in York Castle in 1618 and shortly after banished to Rheims, is thought to be another son. Fr. Mush speaks of her eldest son going to France. Thomas, supposed by Fr. Morris to be John's brother, is shown to be his son by the Freemen's Roll—"Thomas Clythero, draper, fil. Johannis Clythero, bocher," in 1595. He was in York Castle and one of the 53 prisoners hauled to sermons in 1600, the next year sent to the North Blockhouse, Hull, dying a prisoner there about 7 March 1603[? 4]. Mr. Hirst produces a facsimile of his burial register—"Thomas Cletheray a recusant of the North Blockhouse was put into his grave, in drypoll church yard, the vijth day of March, by the meanes of Henry Garrat, wout the minister, & wout the order of buriall, according to lawe." Should the year 1603 be new style an administration of 23 June 1603 may Garrat, wout the minister, & wout the order of buriall, according to lawe.' Should the year 1603 be new style an administration of 23 June 1603 may apply to him—Thomas Clitherowe of Hull? Further, although a prisoner, he may not have been under conviction. Hugh Clitheroe was four times Mayor of Hull between 1441 and 1458. Yet another freeman son—"Johannes Clytherowe, junior, butcher, fil. Joh. Clytherow, butcher," in 1606; and "John Cliderowe, younger, Yorke butcher, will 15 Sept. 1614—28 Aug. 1615." He probably followed in religion his father, still alive by this wording. The latter had assumed a third wife by 1593. A marriage at St. Martin's, Coney Street, on 27 Jan. 1605, of John Clitherow, butcher, to Mayry Hall, servant to Mr. Pickering, may refer to the son. Probably the vast majority of wills are lost, and that of the weakling husband of Margaret Clitherow is not indexed at York. Fr. Morris doubted Bishop Challoner's statement, from Bridgwater Concertatio, that he was banished, only tracing him at York down to 1603; but this may mean at some later period (?). The abovequoted will of John C. junior in 1614—15 seems to imply that his father was still alive. With the martyr wife, a son a prison confessor, two more priests, one daughter a nun, and his brother William a priest, he must have had much prayer for his conversion. There was in 1604 a Richard Clitherow, yeoman, prayer for his conversion. There was in 1604 a Richard Clitherow, yeoman, a recusant at Healaugh in the Ainsty; William Clitherowe a recusant at Strensall; and Roger Clitherow, yeoman, and Eleanor his wife, recusant at Strensall; and Roger Clitherow, yeoman, and Eleanor his wife, recusants at Nunkeeling, all unidentified. Suggestions have been made that Thomas Middleton was of the Stockeld family; but his will (in Troubles iii, 347) shows he had property in Ripon. There are some Ripon wills worth consultation (Surtees Soc. xcvi and cii; J. H. Hirst, Hull Blockhouses; Yorks. Par. Reg. xxxvi; Peacock 60, 120, 128; Yorks. Records—Wills).—J.S.H.

¹ Margaret Taylor was a prisoner in York Castle on 20 Nov. 1576: "Sayeth she cometh not to the church, because there is not a priest as there ought to be, and also that there is not the Sacrament of the Altar." Her husband was of St. Crux parish, admitted to the freedom in 1558 or 1559, as "Thomas Tayllour, taillor, fil. Johannis Taillyour, armorer." John was admitted by apprenticeship in 1516 (Troubles iii; Surtees xcvi, cii).—J.S.H.

Edward Teshe of St. Mary Bishophill Junior parish, gentleman, and his wife Anne, were both reported as recusants on 6 June, and in a report of 20 Nov. both marked in the margin, in York Castle (in Castro), but it is recorded that Edward "is now at London, and so we cannot learn the cause of his absence from the church." She alleges her conscience "for there is neither priest, altar nor sacrament." We find both in York Castle, as above, 20 Oct. 1578; and this is the last note of him. She must have got release later, for she was arrested again, 10 March 1584-5, with Margaret Clitherow, for hearing Mass at the latter's house, her own house being searched and her servants imprisoned. She was condemned in a hundred marks, i.e. £66 13s. 4d., a judge threatening "If we live to the next assizes we will have thee found guilty of harbouring priests." Whilst in York Castle, a parson there for some misdemeanour made her, Bridget Maskew, George Errington, William Gibson and William Knight believe he wished to become a Catholic. They sent him when free, probably by arrangement with the authorities, to Henry Abbot, a convert at Holden [Howden], who took him to Mr. Stapleton at Carleton, but no priest seems to have been there. For this Errington, Gibson, Knight, Abbot, Anne Teshe and Bridget Maskew were condemned, as for treason. The four men were martyred on 29 Nov. 1596; the two women were reprieved from the penalty of being burnt to death. Anne Teshe was later a prisoner at Hull, and on 25 June 1594 removed from the South Blockhouse back to York Castle, where in 1600 she was one of the fifty-three Catholic prisoners hauled to sermons. She remained a prisoner to the end of Queen Enzabeth's reign, receiving a pardon from James I (Troubles iii; J. H. Hirst, Hull Blockhouses; Challoner). In 1542 I find a William at Teshe (Yorks. Records ii, 103) suggesting—at the ash tree?—J.s.H.

⁸ Dorothy daughter of Robert Forster of Smaws in Tadcaster parish married Henry son of Sir Richard Nevill of Liversedge, Birstall, and Eleanor his wife daughter of Sir John Towneley (J. Foster, Yorks. Visits. 246, 316).— J.S.H.

The reason why Dorothy Nevile and Agnes Taillour are bracketed is not obvious; but the former's connection with Tadcaster and the Taylors of that parish, lower down, may be observed.—J.S.H.

¹ Elizabeth daughter of Christopher Beseley of York, notary, married John Dyneley, tailor and draper, Lord Mayor of York in 1577, son of John Dyneley of Swillington. She remarried Thomas Whalley of Dalby, nephew of Edmund Whalley, Abbot of St. Mary's, York. Her burial in 1599 at St. Michael le Belfry reads, "Elizabeth Dyneley wyff to one Whawley, a recusant, was buryed the xxiiij of May." Her will of 8 Feb. 1597-8, proved 25 June 1599, describes her as "Elizabeth Whalley, widow, alias Lady Dyneley" (Surtees Soc. lvii, 286, xcvi; Yorks. Par. Reg. i, 84).-J.S.H.

³ Robert Paycok, merchant, admitted to the freedom of York in 1534, a chamberlain in 1537, sheriff in 1540-1, governor of the merchants' company in 1542-3 and 1563-5, Lord Mayor in 1548 and 1567, and M.P. in 1557-8, was buried at All Hallows, Pavement, 15 June 1570. His second wife, here recorded, was Anne daughter of George Gale, goldsmith, alderman and twice Lord Mayor of York, by his wife, Mary Lord, daughter of Robert Lord of Kendal, whose daughter, Elizabeth Lord, O.S.B., was the last prioress of Wilberfoss, the Priory lands being bought in 1553 by George Gale and his wife, Mary Lord. Lady Paycok died at Spaldington, Bubwith, in 1591 (Corpus Christi Guild of York, Surtees Soc. lvii; Freemen ibid. xcvi). Her title is explained by the old jingling rhyme—
"My Lord is a Lord for a year and a day,

But My Lady's a Lady for ever and aye."

Others occur in this return.-J.S.H.

³ Edward Beseley and Bridget his wife of St. Mary Bishophill Junior parish, York, were recusants on 20 Nov. 1576, the wife also on 6 June previous, but no reason is assigned (Troubles iii). Edward Beseley, also of Skelton near York, signed his pedigree in 1584 (Foster 218), giving his second wife as Bridget daughter of William Nelson of Skelton. They had then—Dominic, William, John, Joan, Ann, Mary and Margaret. He gives also his sister Elizabeth who married John Dyneley and Thomas Whal (l)ey (see note above). Their father Christopher married Margaret daughter of Richard Cowpon of Mytholm-Royd in Halifax parish. Part of Skelton township is in Overton parish; and there, in 1604, we find Edward and Bridget as recusants with others of the family, he retaining Edward Whalley alias Goodreck, a new recusant,-J.S.H.

4 William Hutton of Christ's parish or Holy Trinity, King's Court, York, draper, the author of Notes by a Prisoner in Ousebridge Kidcote, endorsed "By William Hutton, an ancient Catholic prisoner upon Ousebridge," edited by the late Fr. John Morris, S.J., in the third Series or Volume of "Troubles of Our Catholic Forefathers," to which that careful historian added extracts from the House Books of York Corporation, and notes of Fr. Christopher Grene, S.J. It is quoted in these notes briefly as "Troubles," and the pages are not quoted as the book is well indexed. The admirable work seems made for the present list of Recusants, one confirming, supplementing or slightly correcting the other. The notes of some are for the year before our text. The "Freemen of York" (Surtees Soc. xcvi and cii) gives the following notes of the family—"Ricardus Huton, tapitour," free in 1534 (his will is dated 4 Oct. 1553 and was proved 7 April 1554—Yorks. Arch. Soc. Records xiv).

" Willelmus Richard Huton was one of the City Chamberlains in 1545. Huton, draper, fil. Ricardi Huton, tapitour," free by patrimony in 1567; "Ricardus Huton, grocer, fil. Ricardi Huton, tapitour," in 1560 or 61; "Xpoferus [Christopher] Hutton, grocer, fil. Ricardi Hutton, tapitour," in 1585 or 86. We see how the spellings of "Huton" and "Hooton" come about. William Hutton has summons to cause him to go to church on 27 Aug. 1576; but on 20 Nov. he excuses himself as being "excommunicate and is not yet absolved, but when he is absolved he will come!" Excommunicated for being a Catholic and meaning to remain so, they could not absolve him. On another occasion they dubbed him "a subtle sophista"! Mary his wife simply pleaded "conscience." Having resisted distraint on their goods, they were both "committed to ward." Further distress was ordered 4 June 1578. On 14 Feb. 1583-4 Catholic books and religious objects having been found in the Sheriff's Kidcote, where they were imprisoned, and their children being also there, going in and out, steps were taken to remove them into the Mayor's Kidcotes. Hutton describes how his son Jack aged nine, was terrorised and assented to a statement that his mother had told him to remove the heads of martyrs from the stakes on her prison roof, further incriminating Margaret Luetie and Alice Bowman as helping him. Her final imprisonment lasted about seven years, and when new sheriffs, John Weddel and Leonard Beckwith, came into office at Michaelmas 1587, she, Mrs. Dorothy Vavasour and Alice wife of Thomas Oldcorne, were cast in a low, filthy prison in the Kidcotes; and, on being brought up, died on 25th, 26th and 27th of October, and were buried on Toft Green, where the railway goods station stands.—Their son Peter was on 31 Jan. 1593 certified as having gone over the seas about six years since, and was admitted to the English College, of Douay, then at Rheims 8 Jan. 1588-9. Another son, John Thomas, appears as an Anglo-Benedictine; but this is not the place to follow them up. William Hutton himself was a prisoner in one of the Kidcotes in Jan. 1599, but he had evidently been several times at liberty, perhaps on bonds, and must have been again in that year, when he is described "now of St. John's [parish] several times convicted." He would not have been convicted for recusancy when in prison for it. He was then condemned to abjure the realm. Whether he ever left the country does not appear; but the following suggestive translation from the York · City Registry has been obtained-William Hutton. Caveat entered against the proof of the Will and Administration of the Goods of William Hutton of the City of London deceased before 28 February next unless first be called Gartrude Nevile als. Hutton wife of Henry Nevile the sister of the said deceased. This caveat was entered 30 January 1603 [1604]. No such will exists at York .- J.S.H.

¹ Dorothy Vavasour's husband is referred to above as a prisoner. She was reported 6 June 1576 as a recusant, and on 20 Nov., saying her conscience would not serve her to go to church, and that she would die in the faith that she was baptized in. After her husband's arrest and the brutal treatment of the pursuivants she went quite demented, but she recovered and continued the religious life both had observed. On 15 Aug. 1580 the officers broke into her house, where Mass was to be said, arrested her and two daughters (Anne and Dorothy are mentioned in Foley as having gone wrong in some way); William Wilkinson the priest, James Wethereld, gentleman, and Etheldreda his wife; Mrs. Brogden; William Hutton (the narrator) and Mary his wife; John Wood; Elizabeth Read; and Jane Ellerthorpe. Each was fined 100 marks (£66 13s. 4d.) for hearing Mass, and £80 for not going to church for four months, sent again to prison, and there remaining. After seven years in prison three were shut down in a low, filthy place, and only brought up to die on three successive days—Mary Hutton on 25 Oct., Dorothy Vavasour on 26, and Alice wife of Thomas Oldcorne on 27 Oct. 1887. They were all buried on Toft Green, within the City walls of York, about where the old railway works

The above James and Etheldred[a] Wethereld must be James Wetherall and his wife Audrey daughter of Thomas Stillington of Acaster Selby or Kelfield (both in the parish of Stillingfleet), by his wife Isabell daughter of William Hungate of Saxton and Audrey daughter of John Saltmarshe of Saltmarshe, Howden (conf. J. Foster, Yorks. Visits, with add. pedigree, 100, 115, 633). William Hutton says they were released on bonds four years after Their apprehension. James Wetherall may have conformed? There is a will of James Wethereld (as Hutton spells it) of Spaldington, Bubwith (whence Dr. Thomas Vavasour came), gentleman, 18 July 1589—3 Jan. 1591—2. It is not clear who are John Wetherall and Agnes his wife, recent recusants at Bubwith in 1604 (Peacock 134). James and Audrey Wetherall are only credited with three daughters (Foster 633)—(1) Anne wife of Edward Warton (1) Isobel who died a of Beverley Park, (2) Mary wife of Thomas Arksey, and (3) Isobel who died a None [nun]. Audrey was a recusant at Kelfield in 1593 (C.R.S. xviii), and I think also in 1604, as under Stillingfleet are—"Andrewe [? Audrey] Wetherall of Kellfeild and William Stillington Recusants" (Peacock 142). William Stillington was her eldest brother, a recusant in 1593, and one of the most prominent of 53 Catholics hauled to sermons in York Castle, an. 1599 and 1600 (Challoner). Hirst quotes a letter, Hull Corporation archives, dated 22 Sept. 1605, enforcing strict precautions for his safe detention there. Another brother, Thomas Stillington, was professor of Divinity at Louvain; only Robert being a Protestant. Her sister, Anne Stillington, married Peter Vavasour of Spaldington, nephew of Dr. Thomas Vavasour, the confessor in this list. She and her daughters, Katherine and Elizabeth Vavasour, were recusants in 1604 at Bubwith. Another sister, Elizabeth Stillington, retained the Faith although married to a Protestant, Michael Oglethorpe of Roundhay, Thorner, one of their sons, Thomas Oglethorpe alias Stillington, being the Jesuit scholastic who died in 1616, at. circa 23 (not as in Foley). The fourth sister, Katherine Stillington, married Clement Hodgson, the two recusants of Allerton Grange, Leeds, in 1604, secretly married, i.e. by a Catholic priest, and had three children secretly baptised—Andrew [? Audrey as in pedigree, Foster 633], Ursula [not in pedigree], and Isabell (Peacock 17), who married Edward Killingbeck of Allerton Grange, by whom she had Dom Robert Killingbeck, O.S.B. (Birt, Obits O.S.B.).—J.S.H.

² Alice wife of John Cowling of Christ's parish, butcher (penyman in Troubles iii), pleaded her conscience before 20 Nov. 1576. Distraint against the husband was ordered 4 June 1578. William Cowlying, butcher, was free of the city in 1520; his son William in 1550. The relationship is not clear to Ralph Cowlying, cordwainer, free in 1549, a chamberlain in 1576 (Surtees xivi and cii). He was arrested soon after the execution of Mary, Queen of Scots (8 Feb. 1586-7), and died I Aug. following, a prisoner in York Castle. On 31 Jan. 1593-4 his sons Richard and Thomas were reported as having gone abroad about fourteen years before. Richard was certainly a priest, sometimes called Collins (Troubles iii).—J.S.H.

³ Jane West, single woman, servant to George Hall of Christ's parish, draper, before 20 Nov. 1576 had said she came not to church, for she thinketh it is not the right church; and that if she should come there it would damn her soul. But she had moved away—recessit in margin (Troubles iii).—J.S.H.

4 Janet wife of William Bachelor of Christ's parish, butcher, reported 20 Nov. 1576 as not coming to church for reasons unknown, "but she is now sick and came not before us." On 4 June 1578 distraint was ordered on her husband (Troubles iii). "William Bacheler, junior, bocher, fil. Willelmi Bacheler, bocher," was free in 1549 (Surtees xcvi).—J.S.H.

Anne, single woman, daughter of Thomas Hewett of St. John's parish at Ousebridge-end, waxchandler, was reported on 20 Nov. 1576 as not coming to church "because there is no priest there nor right sacrament." The other daughter Margaret, a seamster, had lately been presented for recusancy, but had "gone forth of this city, to what place we know not." But on 10 April 1577 she personally appeared and obstinately refused to go to the church, and would not pay any money for her offence. She was committed to ward forthwith. They seem to be aunts of Dame Ursula Huicke, O.S.B., of Brussels, in C.R.S. xiv q.v. (Surtees Soc. xcvi, cii; Troubles iii).-J.S.H.

Gregory Wilkinson of St. Mary's parish, Castlegate, felt-maker, was reported for recusancy 6 June 1576, his wife not then mentioned. He pleaded his conscience before 20 Nov. 1576, saying he would remain in the faith he was baptized in; Agnes his wife making an identical statement. He is described as a hatter, the same as in the text, when he received the freedom of York in 1569 (Troubles iii; Surtees cii). The family line is shown thus—
(1) William Huet, cordwainer, free in 1494; (2) Thomas Hewet, wax chandler, son of William Hewet, parish clerk, free in 1531; (3) Christopher Hewike, mercer, son of Thomas Hewike, wax chandler, free in 1580 and senior of six city chamberlains in 1582; (4) Dame Ursula Huicke, O.S.B., daughter of Mr. Christopher Huicke in York, born 1570, professed 1603, died at Brussels 1638. -J.S.H.

³ Evidently the William Wright who died in prison at York 23 July 1582 (C.R.S. v, 192, 194); but the information above is too scanty to trace such a common name.-J.S.H.

⁴ Ambrose Cooke (or Cowke, freeman in 1567) was of St. Martin's parish, Coney Street. He married at St. Michael le Belfry's 13 Nov. 1569 Anne Branton. Their names disappear from the registers of the first parish after the baptisms of their children—John on 10 March 1575-6, and Agnes on 2 July 1577. He had a son Richard, a tailor freeman in 1606 or 1607. Anne Cooke was reported before 6 June 1576, and on 20 Nov. declared she "cometh not to the church for her conscience will not serve her so to do": and on 4 March 1578-9 "cannot appoint any time when she will come to the church, but as shall please God." She may be the Anne Cooke of St. Andrew's parish, a widow in 1593. It may not be safe to say that he was "one Cook a sadler in Flete Street [London]" in 1580; but Ambrose's death in prison at York is given on 7 March 1586 (Surtees Soc. cii, 9, 55; Yorks. Par. Reg. Soc. i, 8 and xxxvi, 6; Troubles iii; Foley iii, 702; C.R.S. v, 192, 194; xviii, 42, 43). -- J.S.H.

² Grace wife of William Wood of St. Olave's parish, yeoman and servant to John Genkyns the Queen's Receiver in Yorkshire, after the rising of 1569, was reported 6 June 1576 and on 20 Nov., when she heard her husband were summoned, said her husband was as well occupied and did serve the Queen as well as any in York, and that she had other business to do than to come before the Mayor. She was then stated to be excommunicated (Troubles iii). She seems too pert for the endurance of a confessor. Yet we find her a recusant above.—J.S.H.

been mentioned as Awdcorn. His wife Elizabeth Awdecorne "cometh not to the church because she sayeth she is certified in her conscience otherwise, and that she should displease God if she should do otherwise." This was reported 20 Nov. 1576, and in Jan. 1598-9 we find "Elizabeth Awdcorne alias Oldcorne old and lame, a recusant." John, on 10 April 1577 was content to suffer the churchwardens of St. Sampson's to take his distresses for his offence. On 31 Jan. 1593-4, it was reported that "Edward Oldcorne [the Jesuit martyr], son of John Oldcorne, late of this city, bricklayer [sic], deceased, went over the seas about ten [? 12½] years since, but where he is remaining at this present we cannot learn, saving we hear by report that he was at Rheims." Edward Oldcorne arrived at Rheims from Douai 12 Aug. 1881. Because his father seems not to have been a Catholic in 1572, Fr. Morris assumed he was never one, but this seems contradicted by the entry of 20 Nov. 1576, and by that in this text (Troubles iii, specially pp. 259, 352). The Freemen Roll (Surtees xovi and cii) gives the following—1518, John Oldcorne, merchant; 1535, John Aldcorne, tiler; 1541, John Awdcorn, tiler; 1557, Thomas Awdecorn, tiler, son of John Oldcorne, tiler.—J.S.H.

⁴Thomas Langton of St. Sampson's parish, currier or leather dresser, freeman 1559, the last of that name on the roll of freemen. His wife Elizabeth is reported on 20 Nov. 1576 "sayeth she cometh not to church, for her heart and conscience will not serve her so to do." Her husband at first resisted a

³ Anne Godfrey, single woman, of St. Sampson's parish, sayeth she cometh not to the church, for she is persuaded in her conscience not to come there, on 20 Nov. 1576 (Troubles iii).—J.S.H.

⁵ John Wildon or Wyldon became a freeman tailor in 1570, and was of All Hallows on the Pavement parish. He seems to have been in trouble later for a distress on account of his wife's recusancy, and imprisoned for it. She was reported 6 June 1576, and 20 Nov. when she "sayeth she cometh not to the church because there is neither altar nor Sacrifice" (Troubles iii; Surtees xcii).—J.S.H.

for his wife's recusancy, but ultimately submitted. One Richard Dorham convicted in 23 Eliz. and several times since was condemned to abjure the realm in 1599. Alice was reported 6 June 1576, and 20 Nov. as saying her conscience would not serve her to come to church, and her heart also goeth against it because there lacketh the altar and the true priest; and further she thinketh that those that be now married are not right married (Troubles iii). Perhaps she had been married by a Catholic priest?—J.S.H.

¹ John Wood of St. Maurice's parish, on 22 Aug. 1576 was to be called in and persuaded to go to church. On 20 Nov. he is reported as not coming "for what cause we know not, for he cannot be had." He was probably the John Wood arrested for hearing mass at Dr. Vavasour's house on the Assumption (1581?), whilst John Wood and John Wood [? Junior] were in a low prison with nine others about 1585, as William Hutton relates, for a year and thirty weeks. John Wood, younger, labourer (? of Huntington), was condemned to abjure the realm in 1599 (Troubles iii; C.R.S. xviii).—J.S.H.

² No John nor Janet Wilkinson appear in Troubles iii; but there may be association with Elizabeth whose name follows. William Wilkinson et ux[or] ejus of All Hallows on the Pavement were reported 6 June 1576, and on 20 Nov. Elizabeth wife of William Wilkinson of the same parish, miller, "sayeth she cometh not to the church because there is neither priest, altar nor sacrifice." The husband submitted to arrearages for his wife's recusancy on 21 Feb. 1577-8 (Troubles iii). William Wylkynson, milner, was free of the City in 1564 (Surtees xcii).—J.S.H.

⁴ Thomas Wood of St. Cuthbert's parish was to be called in and persuaded to go to church 27 Aug. 1576. On 20 Nov. Thomas Wood, labourer, refused as "his conscience will not serve him so to do." His wife Agnes made the same reply. In Jan. 1598-9 there was Thomas Wood of St. Maurice's parish, labourer, a recusant (Troubles iii).—J.S.H.

⁵ Richard Braf[f]erton of St. Dennis' parish, baker, was to be persuaded to attend church on 27 Aug. 1576, and on 20 Nov. was reported "gone forth of this city, to what place we know not" (Troubles iii). He was free of the City in 1574 (Surtees xcii). He would be the Richard Brafferton of Hartwith cum Winsley in Kirkby Malzeard parish, who with Isabell his wife, were recusants and noncommunicants in 1604 (Peacock 36, 38).—J.S.H.

¹ Robert Forster, a younger brother descended of the house of Forster of Adderston, Northumberland, is given as father of Leonard Foster (so signed at the Visitation of 1585, p. 316).—J.S.H.

² Robert Stowell, who had been vicar of Tadcaster twenty years, reported in 1597—"No Recusants there, nor any goods of any Recusant. Old Tayle's wife and John Tayle's wife died Recusants." Query Taylor of whom we have two here, and see note on p. 22 (Northern Genealogist vi, 36).—J.S.H.

³ Agnes Rawson must have been in that part of Aberford in the chapelry of Lotherton (or Lutterington) in the parish of Sherburn, W.R. Yorks. She may be the same described in 1593 as of Huddleston in Sherburn (C.R.S. xviii, 60), and Anna (? Annes) R. of Sherburn (ibid. 93, 107). The same error may occur in a return of Recusants and goods in 1597 (Northern Genealogist 35)—"Ann Rawson hath a farm at Melton has pro termino vitæ sue per annum £9, and she has some goods also in Micklefield worth . . ." But when we come to Peacock's returns in 1604 for Sherburn (p. 23, 24) there is a great array—"A dangerous Recusant, Agnes Rawson, wedow"; "firancis Rawson wief of Tho. Rawson" recusant for a year or more. "Agnes Rawson . . . hath had semynaries or Jesuytes dyuers tymes resorting to her house & some of her servants have confessed that they have found dyuers things in her barne as cope, challice, bookes & such like thinges as they use for masse, but the names of the priestes they know not." Also John (Baxter on p. 30), a tailor of no address, had resorted to her house for seven years or more, a dangerous and messenger between Recusants. She had reteyned also William Midelton at times for 2 or 3 years; also maintained Jane wife of Francis Hymsworth (see next entry and note) for seven years; also Frances daughter of Thomas Rawson aged 22 had been brought up by her—all recusants.—J.s.H.

The same remarks as to residence apply as to the previous note, and there seems a long connection between the families. Francis Hemsworth had been many years prisoner in York Castle when he was arraigned about 1585, no result being stated, but he was sent back to prison for his recusancy. There was a Thomas Himesworth of Micklefield in Sherburn, W. Riding, in 1597. In 1604 under Sherburn, we find—" Jane ye wief of ffrancis Hymsworth [sic], a notorious recusant"; "Jayne wief of Francis Hymsworth, a Recusant maynteynde for 7 yeres last by Agnes Rawson"; and "Jane Hymsworth had a child in the house of wedow Rawson, but who was ye father, or if, or where, or by whome it was baptized, it is not knowne." As her husband is mentioned twice just before, this usual device to throw discredit simply shows spite. No doubt they had been married and the child baptized by the priests mentioned in the previous note (Troubles iii; Northern Genealogist vi, 35; Peacock 23, 24).—J.S.H.

The Brettons of Bretton, partly in Sandal Magna and partly in Silkstone parishes, must have been an old family, but at this period it does not figure in Visitations. He and his wife Frances appear frequently as recusants in C.R.S. xviii. In 1597 under Sandal are "John Bretton, Frances ux., Luke their son, and Dorothy Bretton 20 years old, all Recusants. John Bretton hath land in Bretton worth £20 per annum" (Northern Genealogist vi, 36). His son Luke's marriage to Mary Pulleyne has been noted in C.R.S. x, 284, together with their son Francis B. alias Burdet at Douai. Challoner describes John as a zealous Catholic, having often to absent himself from his home to avoid persecution, the immediate cause of his arrest being a false accusation of treasonable language against the Queen. But he refused to accept pardon and life at the expense of his soul, and was martyred I April 1598. "frances Bretton wedow of Bretton, Dorothie Bretton her doughter" were "old Recusants" in 1604 (Peacock II). Richard son of John and Mary Bretton of Sandal Magna a Douai man cannot at present be fixed; nor Matthew who is only described as of Yorkshire. The position of the family may be of the lesser gentry, a will of Richard Bretton of West Bretton, parish of Sandal Magna, yeoman, of 13 Sept. 1556, being proved 7 Jan. 1562 (Yorks. Records xiv). Challoner and others miscall them Britton of Britton.—J.s.H.

² Rockley of Rockley in Worsborough, Darfield parish, was an ancient family, but the name of Anne is not in the visitation pedigrees of 1563 and 1584, as we might expect with such a holding of land.—J.S.H.

⁴Christopher Watson, a native of Ripon and a merchant there, very successful in business and charitable, was introduced by John Thackeray to the Rev. Henry Comberford, who reconciled him. He was arrested in 1580 and committed to the cruel pursuivant Dearman at York. For a short period he had liberty, but arrested again on 24 Aug. 1580 and imprisoned in York Castle, where he delighted in alleviating the sufferings of his Catholic fellow-prisoners. He died there on 3 or 7 Sept. 1581. Whilst a prisoner he had [Edmund] Hartburne, a priest, kept in his house at Ripon. Two wives are mentioned but unnamed (Troubles iii; Foley iii; C.R.S. v). No mention is made of any trial, and administration of his estate seems to have been granted 4 Oct. 1581 (Yorks. Records—Wills).—J.S.H.

(Yorks. Arch. Journal xvii) .- J.S.H.

² This must be John Fulthroppe (modern Fulthorpe) who with Thomas Bishop, Simon Digby and Robert Pennyman, was executed at York on 27 March 1570, for the religious rising at the end of 1569. A survey of his demesne of Islebeck in Thirsk parish and in Thirkleby describes the "house too evill for anie shepherde or simpell heardman to dwell in," yet says "the olde man John Fulthroppe hath allwaies dwelt in this evill house." Perhaps the old man may mean the father? For the report is dated 21 April 1570; and the rebel is said to have married Jane or Joan sister of Thomas first Lord Wharton, and to have been of Hipswell in Catterick parish (A. W. Twyford, York Castle 281; Yorks. Arch. Journal xvii, 150). The pedigrees seem unreliable. One address given above is at Crathorne, and in 1604 Francis Fulthroppe of [? High] Foxton in that parish, gentleman, and Anne his wife had been recusants since the previous Christmas (Peacock 101).—J.S.H.

³ Thomas Alger and Agnes his wife appear as deforciants about land at Huntington in 1569-70 and 1579-80 (Yorks. Records—Fines).—J.S.H.

*Ripon parish was very extensive, containing several churches, chapels and places, including those to be mentioned. Two wills may contain clues—Walter Thackwraye of Thorpe (to be buried at Ripon), 1570, 9 June 1571; and John Thackwrey of Gillmoore [Bishop Thornton] parish of Ripon, 21 May, 9 July 1571. A few years after this list John Thackwrey of Ripon, a virtuous young Catholic, became a notable recusant (several times mentioned in Foley iii), but his parentage is not mentioned. In 1604 at Sawley were Richard Thackwray, recusant, and John Thackerey, non-communicant; and at Bishop Thornton, Samuel Thackerey, non-communicant. Thack(w)ray, from which these people must have taken their name, is in Fewston parish, on the Washburn river, a tributary of the river Wharfe, but submerged by the water of a reservoir; so hardly a place of pilgrimage for admirers of the novelist (Yorks. Records—Wills; Peacock).—J.S.H.

¹ Fr. Christopher Grene, S. J. (Troubles iii, 324), quotes from one of two catalogues—John Chalmare [Challmare in C.R.S. v], gentleman, 7 June 1582, and Isabel Chalmare [Challmar in C.R.S. v] on 23 July following in prison at York, and in the other John Chalner and Isabel Chalner within the wider date 1580–1590. He is doubtless correct in stating the following are relative to their children: "William Chalner and his sister Bridget, being both weak and sickly persons, here remained prisoners eight years at least, their father and mother both dying prisoners in the same Castle of York, and for the same cause of religion." He may be the William Challiner delivered from the South Blockhouse, Hull, 10 Nov. 1594 (J. H. Hirst). This is confirmed by "William Chanler poore, Bridget Channer his sister" of Bondgate in Ripon being non-communicants (?) in 1604 (Peacock p. 40). At York is a will of William Chauner or Chamber of (B)ongaite, to be buried at Ripon (17 April 1608—5 July 1609); probably the same. An earlier Ripon will (28 July 1572—17 Feb. 1583-4) is of John Chamer, possibly the father. These spellings seem rather to point to the family being of Scottish descent, i.e., Chalmer or Challoner, or De la Chambre, in old Latin records De Camera; not "Challoner" as Fr. John Morris conjectured; although there is some reason for it above.—J.S.H.

² William Walworth of Thornton in Ripon, who with his unnamed wife and Peter Walworth were recusants in 1593 (C.R.S. xviii, 66). William Walworth of Thornton in Ripon was a recusant in 1604; while his wife appears to have been a non-communicant (Peacock 41, 43). Fr. Richard Holtby mentions Peter Walworth as indicted for harbouring seminary priests in 1594 (Troubles iii, 193).—J.S.H.

Councell of this towne." He may have been the Richard Fenton of Burghwallis (six miles from Doncaster) hauled to sermons in 1600 at York Castle; but "Jennet ffenton wedow, late wief of Richard ffenton esqr. deceased, Recusant of late yeres" was of Doncaster in 1604 (Peacock 55). His daughter and heir Margaret married to George Anne of Frickley (J. Foster, Yorks. Visits. 361; C.R.S. xviii).-J.S.H.

1 Nicholas Elwes had been clerk of assize at York where he had one child born, he and his wife being harried about for his religion that the rest were born about the country and London. She was sister of Mr. D(octor Thomas) Metham, who became a Jesuit and died a prisoner at Wisbech. Nicholas appears in relation to suits in the pedes finium. In 1594 appears Robert Elwes v. Nicholas Elwes, gent., about property in Tickhill and Doncaster (where in 1604 Dorothy wife of Stephen Elwes appears as a recusant). The much earlier will of another Robert Elwes of Askham, Notts. (11 March 1525, pro. 26 April 1526), gives a bequest (so Canon Dudley Cary-Elwes, a descendant, informs me) towards church work at Muston, near Filey, E.R. York.; and he leased a farm at Askham from the Archbishops of York. A suit in 1604, Hugh Childers v. Stephen Elwes and Dorothy his wife and William Elwes, gent., relates to lands in Doncaster and Carhouse (in Doncaster). This Hugh Childers, mayor of Doncaster, is said to have built Car House in the same year. A suit in 1612 is-John Elwes, gent., v. Metham Jackson, gent., about a cottage and land in Cadeby and Wildthorpe. Cadeby is in Sprotborough parish; and Metham Jackson's mother was Dorothy daughter of Alexander Metham of Cadeby, to whose name on 6 Oct. 1589 is-Caveat against Administration and Tuition. The pedigree shows that the parents of the above Alexander were James Metham of Cadeby (will 24 Aug.-22 Dec. 1556) and his wife Joane daughter of Cartwright alias Vicars, who had also a second son Thomas, only named, but who must be the D.D. and Jesuit, and a daughter Joane, also only named, but clearly the Jane wife of Nicholas Elwes. Foley's conjecture that Dr. Metham, S. J., was a son of Sir Thomas Metham of Metham is quite untenable, as his son Thomas was a married man with ten children by his Catholic wife, Katherine Bellasis, a recusant in 1593, which he was not. He died in 1610, and it is possible that he and his uncle are referred to in North Cave Catholics in 1604: "John Metham a verie old man, Recusant. Thomas Metham Esquier, noncommunicant for one yeare last." If so, the return was certified by his own son Thomas, who had been knighted in 1603. Sir Thomas and Dr. Metham seem to be third cousins, in the same generation. After many wanderings Nicholas Elwes took a cottage in the Peak, Derbyshire, but was arrested at the time as Nicholas Garlick, priest and martyr, with his to York Castle, arriving there 21 July 1591. It was thought that he got favour from the judges, and was discharged on bond, returning into Derbyshire. As Eluica with Frances Eluica 2017 shire. As Elvice, with Frances Elvice, spinster, he was a recusant at Eyam in that county in 1594. The name is also often spelt Helwis (Foley iii, 751; Yorks. Records—Wills and Fines; C.R.S. xviii; Peacock 55, 131; Harl. Soc. xvi, 206; J. Foster, Yorks. Visits. 253, 364; C. Jackson, Doncaster Charities).—J.S.H.

² William Wilkinson, priest, was an old man when arrested at Dr. Thomas Variance William Wildinson, priest, was an old man when ariested at Dr. Holmas Vavasour's house to say mass on 15 Aug. 1582 (William Hutton says 12 years before 10 Dec. 1594; Fr. Grene seems to put it in 1578). He was brought through the streets in his vestments, mocked and spat upon by vagabonds. A York record says in ward at John Trewe's house on 3 Feb. 1582-3, and then ordered to the Sheriff's Kidcote. He was banished in 1585 (Troubles iii; Foley iii; J. H. Hirst, Hull Blockhouses).—J.S.H.

² Joscelyn Percy (fourth son of Henry 4th Earl of Northumberland) by his wife Margaret daughter and heir of Walter Frost of Beverley and of Westham, Essex, had Edward, the recusant above. He married Elizabeth (a recusant in 1604) daughter of Sir Thomas Waterton of Walton, Sandal Magna, and had, besides the two following recusants, Thomas Percy implicated in the Gunpowder Plot with his brothers-in-law John and Christopher Wright of Ploughland, Wellwick in Holderness, and two married daughters. Edward Percy, born about 1524, died 22 Sept. 1590, buried at St. Mary's, Beverley (J. W. Clay, Extinct North. Peerages; J. Foster, Yorks. Visits. 560).—J.S.H.

3 Alan Percy, son of Edward above, born about 1560 was buried 27 June 1632. He married Mary daughter of Robert Moore of Bewick, Aldborough in Holderness, and had-I. Joscelyn Percy of Beverley who married Elizabeth daughter of William Fitzwilliam of Mablethorpe and Clixby, co. Lincoln; 2. Edward, baptized 26 Oct. 1594, died at Petworth, Sussex, 20 Aug. 1630; Frances wife of James Ellerker; and seven ob. inf. (I. Foster, Yorks, Visits. 560).--J.S.H.

4 Anne dau. of Edward Percy above seemingly single (Ibid).—J.S.H.

⁵ Thomas Lacy of Folketon, E.R. Yorks. (will 15 May—20 July 1525), whose second son was Lancelot Lacy of Sherborne in (Dickering as printed) Pickering [Lythe] (will proved 26 Aug. 1542, to be buried at St. Hilda's, Sherborne), had Thomas Lacy of Beverley, the recusant (will 12 June 1591—13 April 1592), who married Ann daughter of William Whitehouse of Barnby. Their second son William, who by his wife Elizabeth Newby had a son Benedict. This William Lacy has been confused with the martyr (p. 17), being himself at least a confessor, was a prisoner at Hull in 1592, being described as of Sherborne in Hartforthelithe, gent. He died in prison there as in 1604 William Found, a farmer of recusants' estates, held "the Rectory of Sherborne and the tenths arising from the corn and hay there growing and renewing, being part of the lands and possessions of William Lacy, late of Drypool," where the Castle and Blockhouses of Hull were (J. Foster, Yorks. Visits, 539; J. H. Hirst, Hull Blockhouses 81, 83). Hartforth-Lythe seems to have been near the river Rye in Pickering Lythe, N.R. Yorks., and Sherborne parish, mainly in the East Riding, to have extended across the division .- J.S.H.

These are evidently Thomas Wilberfoss of Beverley and Jane daughter of Sheppard. The spelling "Wilberforce" seems earlier than might be expected, the pedigree being signed in 1584 by his half-brother "Roger Wilberfos," although it gives the family name, like the parish, Wilberfoss, as it is now spelt. The emancipator of the slaves was descended from the above marriage, and consequently his descendants who have returned to the Faith (]. Foster, Yorks. Visits. 158; Commoners iv, 725) .- J.S.H.

³ Gilbert eldest son of Thomas Wells, and brother of Swithin Wells, the martyr in 1591. Challoner calls Gilbert a worthy confessor, renowned for his immovable constancy and the great persecutions which he suffered. A pedigree gives him three wives and doubtful spellings (Harl. Soc. lxiv, 75) .- J.S.H.

John son of Richard Beconsaw and Mary daughter of Edward Willmot of Newent, Gloucestershire. He married Anne daughter of Nicholas Tichborne of Tichborne (Harl. Soc. lxiv, 204). The name appears as "Beconsal" elsewhere in this list, and Gillow (Dict. Eng. Caths. i, 164), in a memoir of the recusant's grandfather, traces it to Becconsall in Lancashire.—J.S.H.

⁵ Richard Banester of Idsworth had a son Edward, who married Joan daughter of John Ernley of Bishops Cannings, Wilts. They had a son Edward married to Joan daughter of John Gunter of Racton, Sussex (Harl. Soc. lxiv, 20).-J.S.H.

¹ Nicholas son of Anthony Scrope of Colwall, Herefordshire. He married Winefride daughter of John Norton. This branch of the family descended from Sir Stephen Scrope (brother of the celebrated Earl of Wiltes) and Milicent daughter of Robert Lord Tibtoft (J. H. Metcalfe, Earldom of Wiltes; Harl. Soc. lxiv, 72).—J.S.H.

² Thomas (born 29 May 1539) elder son of William Pounde of Beamondes or Beaumonds, Farlington, and his wife Anne or Ellen daughter of William Wriothesley (this name being an embellishment of Wrythe), York Herald, and sister of Thomas 1st Earl of Southampton, Lord Chancellor, K.G. Foley confuses the place with Belmont, the actual place being called from former owners, the family of Beamond or Beaumond (Victoria Hist. of Hants), who certainly would appear in Latin records as "de Bello Monte." His father died in 1558. Endowed with some wealth, well educated and eloquent, of a fine manly presence, excelling in gymnastics, after a short period spent in the study of the law, he was admitted to court and appointed Esquire of the Body to Queen Elizabeth. Gaining applause by his dancing, turning himself into a human teetotum, he failed and fell in a second attempt, when the Queen showed her gentle manners by kicking him as he lay dazed on the ground. 'Arise Sir Ox." This so mortified him that it changed the current of his life, turning his thoughts to religious affairs. From 1574 he suffered many imprisonments; but whether amounting to thirty years, or a smaller total during that period, is left in doubt by Foley's eulogium. He received a sort of affiliation to the Jesuit order. His death is given on 5 March 1615 (? n.s.), in the same room at Belmont (sic) where he was born seventy-six years before (H. Foley, Records S.J. iii, 567-657; M. Noble, College of Arms, where he is mistaken for a herald; C.R.S. xviii).--J.S.H.

² Of Henry Pounde, the younger brother of Thomas, little seems known. Although not a priest, he was arrested as such in 1602; when he fought against great odds (H. Foley, Records S.J. iii, 622).—J.S.H.

Dom. Eliz. 117, n. 13.

My duetie humbly considered (Righte honorable),

Vpon the ninetenthe of this present October I receaved letters from yor Honors requiringe me within seven dayes to certifie as well the names as values of all suche persons withe in my diocesse, as do refuse to come to the Chirche, or to heare diuine service. If my certificate do not note vnto yor Honors so many persons as in thease corrupte dayes may seame proportionable to so large a circuite as my diocesse contaynethe, I humbly desire yor Honors favorably to interprete the same, and not to impute it either to negligence in searchinge, or to timorousnes in dealinge withe them. I thanke god there is none within my diocesse withe whom in this quarrell I wolde not deale boldely, so farr as I can attaine either to juste profe, or to lawfull detection, or to vehemente suspition. In my present visitation this yeare I have used all the lawfull meanes I can to come to the knowledge of suche persons, and yet I can heare of none but suche as I understoode of before, and withe whom I have delte. Whose names do Mrs Mordant.1 follow, first in Bedforde shire there be two gentilwomen, the one is the wiffe of William Mordaunte beside Bedforde, whom I have convented and by all lawfull meanes punished, and yet she remaynethe a verie obstinate woman. other is the wiffe of one master Brudiman, dwellinge in Tingrave 2 beside Tuddingtone, for Mrs Brudiman. whom the laste yeare I sente by processe, and then she slipped oute of my diocesse, but she is retorned againe as I understande. Her husband is towarde the Courte, and therefore I thinke knowen to yor Honors. She dothe not only forbeare her self, but keapethe away her children and some of her howsholde. In Huntington shire there is one Mr Prise, a Justice of peace, who bothe him self, and his wiffe, withe other of his family, 400 mar. forbearethe the Chirche; withe whom I talked also not yet a yeare since, and gave him a time of respete to consulte withe him self what he wolde do, but I perceave no amendemente. He thinckethe that I do him iniurie to deale withe him; becawse, as his howse is in my diocesse, so his parishe Chirche is in Peterborowe Diocesse.3 The value of his landes is estemed fower hundred marke by the yeare, and is other wayes verie welthie. In Leicester shire there is a gentilman called Mr Brookesbye. Brokesbye, who a longe time hathe not come to his parishe Chirche, nor receaved the Sacrament; but of late beinge convented he is contented to have service in his howse and to resorte to the same him self. And in deede service he hathe, but how harde it is for me to know wether he and his wiffe do in reverend maner resorte to the same yor Honors understand. To come to his parishe Chirche he refusethe, and at the first time I was content withe his obedience to have service in his howse, meaninge ere it were longe to deale withe him further. His value I have referred to the gentlemen appoynted for that shire. In Lincolnsheire is Roberte Dimmocke, 1 esquier and Justice of the peace, who a longe time forboare comminge to the Chirche and hearinge of divine service. But of late he hathe yelded to come to the Chirche, and so hathe don after a sorte; but with the coloure of his sicknes, it is so slacklie and seldom times, as it can not be any greate token of his amendemente. His value I take to be knowen to divers of yor Honors, and I thincke shall further heare thereof by the gentilmen appoynted for that shire. In the other shires of my diocesse I am not hable directly to accuse any, and yet have I used all the lawfull meanes I can devise, to know. My Diocesse is longe; it can not be but there are some lurkers unknowen to me, whom I trust this yor honorable care will bringe to lighte; and then will I not fayle, god willinge, to make them thorowlie knowen. And thus I cease to troble yor Honors, wishinge Almightie god to blesse yor godlie indevors and to strenghtethen [sic] yow withe the mighte of his spirite.

² Sir Henry Bedingfeld of Oxburgh, Norfolk, aged 43, 7 Edward VI, ob. 22, buried at Oxburgh 24 August 1583, was the eldest son and heir of Sir Edmund Bedingfeld of Denham Castle, Suffolk, and afterwards of Oxburgh, which he inherited on the death of his brother Robert the rector of Oxburgh in 1539 (v. note 1, p. 60), by Grace daughter of Henry Lord Marney (vide vol. vii, p. 426,

C.R.S.). On the death of Edward VI Sir Henry Bedingfeld at once declared for Queen Mary, and was one of the first to join the Queen at Framlingham Castle, bringing to Her Majesty's assistance one hundred and forty well armed men. For this, after her accession, the Queen made him knight-marshal of her army, captain of the guards, governor of the Tower of London (where he had amongst his prisoners the Lady Elizabeth, afterwards Queen), and one of the Privy Council. He was a witness to Queen Mary's will. In 1578 Sir Henry was summoned before the Council to answer "touching his disobedience in matters of religion." He was then ill, but set out on the journey which he never finished as he was allowed to return owing to his sickness. His will is dated 16 Aug. 1583, and was proved P.C.C. same year, registered 16 Butt.

Lady Bedingfeld, wife of the said Sir Henry, was Katherine daughter of Sir Roger Townshend of Raynham, Norfolk, by his wife Amy daughter and coheir of Sir Thomas Brewse of Wenham. This Sir Roger was the son of Rozer Townshend of Raynham, iustice of the court of Common Pleas to

Lady Bedingfeld, wife of the said Sir Henry, was Katherine daughter of Sir Roger Townshend of Raynham, Norfolk, by his wife Amy daughter and coheir of Sir Thomas Brewse of Wenham. This Sir Roger was the son of Roger Townshend of Raynham, justice of the court of Common Pleas to Richard III and Henry VII, who was knighted by the latter. The father and son are often confounded. Lady Bedingfeld died in December and was buried on the 7th of that month at Oxburgh, 1581, leaving Sir Henry five sons and six daughters. The eldest, Edmund, was twice married, and by his second wife Anne daughter of Sir Robert Southwell had interalios Thomas his heir, who was the father of "Sir Henry the Cavalier" (vide "Bedingfeld Papers," vol. vii, C.R.S.). Thomas Bedingfeld, second son of Sir Henry and Katherine, was Gentleman pensioner to Queen Elizabeth, and in May 1603 we find King James presenting him with the Office of Master of the Pavilions, Tents, and Hale. He was buried at St. James', Clerkenwell, in 1613. Nicholas Bedingfeld, the fourth son, was seated at Swatishall in Gislingham, Suffolk, which he left to the sons of his youngest brother Henry. For John the third son of Sir Henry, vide vol. vii, p. 432. The daughters were Alice ux. Thomas Kerville, remarried to Henry Seckford, Amy ux. Thomas Wilbraham, Katherine ux. Walter Norton, Eve or Eva ux. William Yaxley, Elizabeth ux. Edmd. Richers, and Anne who died unmarried.—R.T.B.

¹ Buckingham, Buckenham, or Bokenham, an old Norfolk and Suffolk family. We find William de Bukenham in Norfolk A.D. 1273. Blomefield mentions many others. Sir Edmund Bedingfeld of Oxburgh, in his will dated at Calais 7 Oct. 1496 and proved P.C.C. 28 Jan. 1496–7, registered 7 Horne, mentions Nicholas Bokenham of Oxburgh; and Oliver Buckenham was living there 25 Eliz.; but I do not know whose wife or widow the recusant was.—The Suffolk Bokenhams were lords of the manor of Market Weston. Thomas Bokenham of Weston married Katherine daughter of Sir John Knyvett and granddaughter of Sir Thomas Bedingfeld of Darsham Hall. She claimed and was confirmed in the barony of Berners, ob. 1743.—R.T.B.

² The "Ladie Silyarde" was Alice daughter of Humphrey Kerville of Wigenhale St. Mary, Norfolk (will dated 6 Oct. 1540), by Anne daughter of Jeffrey Cobbe of Sandringham. Alice's great-grandfather, Thomas Kerville, was lord of Wigenhale in 1467, and his son and heir, Humphrey Kerville, married Alice daughter of John Fincham, and they were the parents of the first-mentioned Humphrey.—Alice was first married to John Bedingfeld of Quidenham, Norfolk, eldest son of Peter Bedingfeld, fourth son of Sir Edmund Bedingfeld, K.B., and Margaret daughter of Sir John Scott. Under this husband's will dated 4 Jan. 37 Hen. VIII, Alice is to have all his lands in Wigenhale and Tilney till their son Humphrey Bedingfeld is twenty-one. Left a widow on the first of Jan. 1546–7, this lady afterwards became the third wife of Sir John Sulyard of Wetherden, but had no more children. Sir John, who had been previously married to Elizabeth daughter of Sir Edmund Bedingfeld of Oxburgh, and to Elizabeth daughter of Sir John Jernegan, Kt., died in 1574, and his widow Alice left Haughley Hall in Suffolk, where they had lately resided, to live with her only son Humphrey Bedingfeld at Quidenham till her death in 1577.—R.T.B.

¹ Humphrey Bedingfeld of Quidenham, Norfolk, in 1577, lord of Fawconer manor there, which he sold to J. Holland, was the son and heir of John and Alice as before stated, and being born circa 1529 would be about 48 when named in this list of recusants. He had long been persecuted on account of his religion, and in 1588 was released from prison and committed to the private custody of Dr. Reeve, a Protestant clergyman. At seventy years of age he was again summoned to answer concerning his recusancy; and then we find the Archbishop of Canterbury, Whitgift, touched by pity, writing a letter in 1599 concerning "Humphrey Bedingfeld of Quidenham, Esqr., a recusant, who being aged and infirm was enlarged out of prison eleven years ago and committed to the custody of a clergyman. He may not go more than two miles from the house, and may not converse with other recusants, may not keep a recusant servant, and is grown into great decay and poverty. So it is asked that his appearance may be excused."—Humphrey married Margaret daughter of Edward Cocket of Ampton, Suffolk, and had two daughters his coheirs. Dorothy the eldest died s.p. The other, Frances, æt. 30 9 James, married Anthony Thwaits of Hardingham, and left issue Elizabeth, married to Jeoffrey Cobb of Sandringham, and Bridget. Humphrey Bedingfeld died 2 Nov. 1609.—R.T.B.

² Thomas Lovell of East Harling, Norfolk, Esq., was a recusant in 1577. He was the son of Sir Thomas Lovell of East Harling by Elizabeth his wife daughter of Sir Philip Paris of Lynton, Cambridgeshire. This is the Lady Lovell named as a recusant in 1577. Mr. Thomas Lovell, the recusant, married Alice daughter of Sir John Huddleston, and their eldest son was Sir Francis Lovell, who married Anne daughter of Sir John Cary, 3rd Lord Hunsdon, whose father Henry, 1st Baron Hunsdon, was first cousin to Queen Elizabeth, and scandal said there was also a nearer relationship (vide C. E. C.'s Peerage, vol. iv, p. 279). Thomas Lovell the recusant died in 1604 aged 64. His wife Alice died in 1602 also aged 64 (vide M.I. at Harling). Their son Sir Francis dying s.p. circa 1623, was succeeded by his next brother, Sir Charles Lovell of Herling, who had four wives. There was also a third son who survived, viz. William Lovell, who married Rose Langworth, and there were also two daughters, Catherine ux. Sir Thomas Knivett, and Elenor ux. Sir Edward Waldegrave, Bart. The recusant was committed for Papistry in 1578.—R.T.B.

⁴ John Grey of East Harling was the son of Faulk Grey of Tarbrook by Elizabeth Drury of Rougham, and grandson of William de Grey of Merton by Grace Teye his second wife. John had an uncle, Edmund Grey, who was a priest. They were cousins of the half blood to Robert Grey the recusant.—R.T.B.

² Robert Lovell of Beecham-Well was the third son of Sir Thomas Lovell of East Harling, who was also lord of Beecham-Well, and presented to the living in 1557. Queen Elizabeth presents by lapse in 1587, 1596, and after her death Robert Lovell presents in 1604. Robert's mother was Elizabeth daughter of Sir Philip Paris (vide note ante on her eldest son Thomas Lovell). Robert Lovell was living at Beecham-Well in 1573, and five years later he and his brother Thomas were both committed for Papistry; but the Bishop of Norwich soon afterwards says that he has reclaimed the latter. Robert had two sons, and the younger named Robert was living at the time of the father's death in 1609. There was also a daughter married to John Fincham of Fincham, and another, viz. Elizabeth, buried at Holme Hale 13 May 1575.—R.T.B.

This Henry St. John of Hockring also had estates in North Tuddenham, Norfolk, and Keysoe, Bedfordshire. He was the third son of Oliver St. John of Shernbrook by Mary daughter of William Fitz Geffrey, and grandson of Sir John St. John of Bletshoe (the grandfather of Oliver, 1st Baron St. John) by Sibil daughter of Richard Morgan ap Jenkyn. Henry married Frances sister of Thomas Leyton, and by her had issue Oliver St. John, his son and heir, in 1597. The recusant's will is dated at Hockring, Norfolk, 4 Jan. 1592, wishes to be buried there, mentions brother Francis St. John as supervisor, Mary Harbard, widow of George St. John of Shernbrook, and many others; wife to be executrix; proved P.C.C. I Feb. 1597, registered 7 Coham. The testator's descendants continued to reside in Norfolk, and we find Oliver St. John of Burgh next Mattishall in the latter half of the seventeenth century. He was afterwards living at East Tuddenham near Hockring, and by his wife Dorothy Whistler of Hants had issue Oliver St. John of Hockring s.p., George also s.p., Thomas St. John of East Tuddenham, Charles a merchant of Norwich, unmarried, and a daughter ob. s.p. Thomas St. John, the said third son, married Hannah daughter of Francis Aunyson, attorney, of Norwich, who was living in 1721, and by her had issue Oliver St. John of Tuddenham, Francis St. John, curate of Reymerston and Thuxton, Rebecca, Hannah, Susan, and Dorothy, who was the wife of John Nea of Repham in 1721. All the others, together with a fifth daughter named Mary, were then unmarried.—R.T.B.

4 John Drury of Rougham, ob. 1498 (v. note 3, p. 61), had by his wife Margaret, daughter of Sir William Felton, a daughter Dorothy Drury, first married to Edmund West of Weston, whose will was proved P.C.C. in 1531, and secondly to Robert Downes of Melton, co. Norfolk, esq., who died in 1547. Francis Downes their son being then sixteen had the Melton estate, and was lord also of Tilney manor in 1561. Robert Downes, the recusant, was his heir and had livery of this, and was lord in 1570. He purchased Peverel's manor in Great Melton of Robert Richers in 1575. The recusant had by his wife Dorothy a son, Edward Downes, born 8 April 1574, who married Katherine daughter of Thomas Lovell of East Harling, the recusant. However, they never came into the lordship of Peverel's manor in Great Melton, for Robert Downes and Dorothy his wife, who presented to the living in 1589, sold the whole to Thomas Anguish, esq., in 1609. The Bishop of Norwich finding Robert Downes "nothing amended" in 1578, that gentleman was committed a close prisoner to the gaol of the City of Norwich.—R.T.B.

mentions his kinsman, William Girling, yeoman, of Melles, Suffolk. This William's will, dated at Melles I Sept. 1609, and proved P.C.C. 1610, registered 15 Wingfield, mentions "John Girling of Horham, co. Suffolk, yeoman, being the eldest son of my cousin Thomas Girling of Banham in Norfolk, John and Richard sons of Richard Girling late of Horham," and others. The will of Thomas Girling of Banham, dated 16 Nov. 6 James, 1608, was proved P.C.C. 29 Sept. 1613, registered 83 Capell, mentions wife Prissilla, sons Benjimen, John, James, Philip, Thomas, Robert, and Thomas Girling, junr., and daughters of testator, Lidia, Mary, and Prissilla.

- ¹ Henry Jerningham, eldest son of Sir Henry Jerningham of Cossey or Costessey, Norfolk, who was one of the first among the Suffolk and Norfolk knights that declared openly for Queen Mary on the demise of Edward VI in 1553, and Mary his wife daughter of Sir George Baynham of Clowerwall, co. Gloucester. Henry the recusant married first Eleanor daughter of William Lord Dacre of Gillesland, by whom he had Henry, created a baronet 16 Oct. 1661, and four more sons and a daughter; and secondly Frances daughter and coheiress to his cousin, Sir John Jernegan of Somerleyton, Suffolk, and relict of Thomas Bedingfeld of Oxburgh, by whom he had Ferdinando, born 1597, and one daughter. Henry's will is dated at Oxburgh in 1596. He gives to his wife Frances the wardship of her son, Henry Bedingfeld, who was afterwards knighted (vide vol. vii). However, the Register of Cossey A.D. 1615 gives "Frances wife of Henry Jernegan Esq. buried." Henry the recusant died in 1619.—R.T.B.
- ³ Mr. Dereham the priest, there is little doubt, was one of the very old family of that name long seated at Crimplesham; many of the family were in Holy Orders, and Jane a nun was at Crabbe House. She was the sister of Thomas Dereham of Crimplesham who married Ele daughter of Sir John Awdeleigh, and died 29 August 1554, aged 57.—R.T.B.
- ³ Charles Walgrave or Waldegrave was the son of Sir Edward Waldegrave, who was a controller in the household of the Lady Mary (afterwards Queen), who by refusing to forbid the celebration of mass in her house incurred the displeasure of Henry VIII, and with others was sent to the Tower, where he remained in custody for some time, but became a man of great power during the reign of Mary, and was one of her Privy Council. Soon after the death of the Queen misfortune again fell upon him, and he was committed to the Tower by Elizabeth, and died there I Sept. 1561, leaving two sons and three daughters by his wife Frances daughter of Sir Edward Nevil. Charles, the elder son (the recusant in 1577), was seated at Staininghall, Norfolk, but was living with his mother-in-law, Frances Lady Jerningham, at Cossey in 1577. By his wife Jeronyma daughter of Sir Henry Jerningham he had an only son, Sir Edward Waldegrave, who married Eleanor daughter of Sir Thomas Lovell of Harling, and was created a baronet in 1643, and a daughter named Margaret (vide note 2, p. 56).—R.T.B.
- ⁴ James Hubbarde or Hobart of Hales-Hall in Loddon was the eldest son and heir of Henry Hobart of Hales-Hall by Anne his wife, daughter of Sir John Fineaux, lord chief justice, and grandson of Sir Walter Hobart by Anne his first wife, daughter of Sir Henry Heydon; the said Sir Walter being a son of Sir James Hobart, attorney-general to Henry VII, by Margaret daughter of Peter Naunton of Letheringham, Suffolk.—James the recusant of 1577 was one of the conspirators tried at Norwich in August 1570 for taking part in the rebellion against Protestantism which had just been nipped in the bud. However, he was still living at Hales-Hall as lord of the manor in 1581. His wife was Frances daughter of Sir William Drury of Hawstead, Suffolk. by whom he had issue Henry Hobart, who married Margaret daughter of Thomas Rouse of Henham, James Hobart, who married Miss Norton, and five more sons and six daughters.-R.T.B.

² This Lady "Gerningham" of Cossey was Mary, the widow of Sir Henry Jerningham, who had died in 1572, and mother of the recusant Henry in 1577. Lady Jerningham was coheiress to her uncle, Sir Anthony Kingston, whose sister had married her ladyship's father, Sir George Baynham (v. note 1, p. 58). Under the will of Sir Henry Jerningham the estate is left to his wife for her life.-R.T.B.

³ Anne relict of Lord Giles Paulet, fourth son of Sir William, 1st Marquess of Winchester, K.G., unlike her friend, Lady Jerningham, did not become the victim of melancholy. Her ladyship's maiden name was Whalley, and she was the second wife of Lord Giles, who left her a widow. She then married Richard Bellingham, who, dying before her ladyship, gave her the opportunity to console herself by marrying Sir Bernard Whetstone of Woodford Hall, Essex, being his second wife, and on her death he consoled himself with a third partner.-R.T.B.

Ferdinando Parris of Poding Norton, Norfolk, was the son of Philip Parris of Little Linton, Cambridgeshire, and grandson of Sir Philip. Ferdinando married Frances daughter of Thomas Moore of Haddon in Oxfordshire, with whom he was living at Poding Norton when he was named as a recusant in 1577. They appear as Middlesex recusants in 1592 residing at Tottenham, and he only in 1593 back at his home (C.R.S. xviii). By this lady he had two sons and two daughters, viz. Thomas Parris who died s.p., Philip Parris of Poding Norton who circa 1590 married Margaret daughter of Charles Walgrave the recusant of 1577, Audrey, married to William Mannock of Stoke by Nayland, Suffolk, who died in 1616 leaving issue, and Elizabeth. Ferdinando Parris was committed for Papistry in 1578.—R.T.B.

William Timperley, the son of Nicholas, was buried at Hintlesham, Suffolk, in March 1527, leaving a son, Thomas Timperley of Flitcham in Norfolk, the recusant of 1577. This gentleman was twice married, and by Audrey his first wife, eldest daughter of Sir Nicholas Hare of Bruisyard in Suffolk (buried in Hintlesham Church-M.I. gives her name as Elizabeth), had Nicholas his heir, living 1624. Thomas the recusant died 14 Jan. 1593, leaving no children by his second wife Katherine, and was buried at Hintlesham, q.v. M.I. His first wife was also buried there in 1558. Nicholas Timperley, their son, lived at Colkirk, Norfolk, and by his wife Anne, daughter of William Markham, had issue Sir Thomas Timperley, his heir, Etheldred wife of Christopher Thoresby, nephew of Henry Bedingfeld, rector of Upwell, q.v. (vol. vii, p. 426), Elizabeth ux. Thomas Townshend of Testerton (their daughter Dorothy ux. Thomas Bedingfeld of Holme Hale, had issue Anthony Bedingfeld, father of Dorothy ux. Francis Bedingfeld of Redlingfield (vide vol. vii, p. 433), and Lucy wife of Anthony Bedingfeld of Scots Hall (Ibid., p. 431). The elder son, Sir Thomas, who died 29 Apr. 1651, married Elizabeth daughter of John Shelley, and had issue two sons and two daughters, of whom the eldest, Michael Timperley, married Frances daughter of Sir Henry Bedingfeld of Oxburgh, and by her had Thomas the heir in 1653, and Justina a nun, O.S.B., aged 21 Jan. 8, 1660, ob. April 27, 1684; also two other daughters, viz. Elizabeth, a nun, ob. 1703, aged 74; and Frances, who was professed on her death-bed 19 Nov. 1661, aged 26.—R.T.B.

Edward Rokewood or Rookwood, gentleman, in the year 1577 was seated at Euston Hall, Suffolk, situate south of the village in his beautiful park extending more than two miles along the east bank of the river Thet, near the confluence of that river with the Little Ouse, which separates it from Norfolk. His first wife was the daughter of Sir Anthony Browne, Viscount Montagu, and his second a widow named Tirwhit. He was the eldest son and heir of Nicholas Rokewood of Euston, chief Prothonotary of the Common Pleas 1543 and M.P. for Thetford 1554, who succeeded to the estate on the death of his elder brother Roger s.p.m. in 1558. They were the only children of Edmund Rokewood of Euston by his first wife, a record of whose name I do not find; but his second wife was Alice daughter of William London, by whom he had five more children. This lady was left a young widow, and she was remarried first to Sir Thomas Bedingfeld of Oxburgh (ob. s.p. 15 March 1538, succeeded by his brother Robert, a priest, rector of Oxburgh, Norfolk, 1512-1539), and secondly to Thomas Lord Burgh, and left issue, by his lordship, lliam, 5th Baron Burgh, and other children.

Nicholas Rokewood dying in 1557 left his son Edward, during a long minority, ward to the Crown. Young Rokewood was only two and twenty when he was named as a recusant in 1577, and in the following year he got into serious trouble over his religion. In 1578 Queen Elizabeth made a Progress through Suffolk and Norfolk, and on Sunday, to August, the Queen and her large retinue were entertained by Edward Rokewood at Euston Hall; they passed the night there, and on Monday were making preparations for departure when someone, on going into the hay-house, found an image of the Holy Virgin, which was brought into the Hall, and in the Queen's own presence treated with the greatest indignities. Rokewood was at once arrested and compelled to attend the Court at Norwich, where he was committed to prison, and Euston Hall became forfeited to the Crown. However, in spite of this cruel persecution he survived for 55 years, and was buried at Euston 19 Jan. 1633-4, aged 79.-R.T.B.

² Robert Grey of Merton, co. Norfolk, esq., was the second son of Edmund Grey, lord of the manor of Merton, who died on the 20 August 1548 and was buried in the church there, by Elizabeth his wife daughter of Sir John Spelman. Thomas Grey of Merton the elder brother married Anne daughter of Ralfe Everard of Lynstead, by whom he had an only son Thomas who died in his father's lifetime, and Thomas Grey, senr., dying on the 12 May 1562 was succeeded at Merton by his brother, Robert Grey, the recusant of 1577, who was born about 1530 and married Anne one of the four daughters of Sir Thomas Lovell of Harling by Elizabeth his wife (the recusant of 1577), daughter of Sir Philip Paris of Lynton. Robert died on the 28 of Feb. 1600, aged 70, and is buried in the chancel at Merton. By his wife Anne he had a son William Grey of Merton, left ward to Queen Elizabeth, knighted in the following reign, and married to Anne daughter of Sir James Calthorp.

In a letter written by the Bishop of Norwich dated at Ludham 4 Feb. 1580, addressed to Lord Burleigh, we find that Robert de Grey was then a prisoner of the Bishop's, who, with others in Elizabeth's "progress at Norwich," had been committed to safe custody, but removed into the country because of the plague.—These Greys or de Greys of Merton descended from William de Grey and his wife Mary, daughter of Sir Thomas Bedingfeld of Oxburgh, who died in 1480. Two hundred years later we find Elizabeth Bedingfeld, the grand-daughter of Sir Thomas Bedingfeld of Darsham, the wife of William de Grey of Merton. Their grandson, William de Grey, was created Baron Walsingham in October 1780 .- R.T.B.

¹ Philip Awdeley of Pagrave near Swaffham, esq., living there 1563–1577, etc., was the eldest son and heir of Edmund Awdeley of Pagrave Magna, who was the son and heir of Richard Awdeley. Philip's mother, who was the first wife of Edmund, was Mary daughter of Sir Philip Paris of Little Lynton in Cambridgeshire, and she was also the mother of James, Thomas, and Elizabeth, the younger children of Edmund Awdeley, whose second wife Anne, daughter of Sir Thomas Tirrell of Warley, was living, but without issue, in 1563.

Philip Awdeley the recusant married a daughter of John Callibut of Castle Acre in Norfolk, by whom he had Edmund who died s.p., and one daughter and heiress who was named Anne, married to Christopher Paston.—R.T.B.

William Guybon, in the certificate called "Gibbon," was the son of the much-married Thomas Guybon of King's Lynn by Agnes daughter of Walter Baspoole, who was the second of his four wives; the others being first Elinor daughter of Richard Colville, third Ela daughter of Sir John Awdley of Swaffham and relict of Thomas Dereham, and fourth Agnes daughter of Walter Clarke and relict of Roger Appleton. The will of this Thomas, who was the son of Thomas Guybon of North Lynn by Elizabeth daughter of Thomas Thursbye, is dated 26 Feb. 1569, proved P.C.C. 6 May 1570. His son William the recusant was twice married, first to Lettice daughter of Richard Catlyn, sergeant at law, who was buried at Fincham 8 Jan. 1500, leaving him two daughters Lettice and Anne, who was married to Edmund Skipwith 6 Jan. 1598; secondly, William married Elizabeth daughter of Thomas Drury of Fincham (marriage settlement 6 Feb. 25 Eliz.). She outlived him and then married William Pell. William Guybon was lord of the manor of Watlington; will dated 30 Sept. 1609, post mort. Inq. 9 Apr. 11 James. By his second wife Elizabeth he left issue William ob. s.p. Dec. 1612, Thomas (who was knighted 31 Mar. 1631 and married Barbara daughter of Sir William de Grey of Merton, by whom he had William, Sir Francis, Thomas, and three daughters), and Francis and Mary. Their father, William Guybon the recusant, on the 23 April 1601 was living at Watlington, and then gives his age as forty-nine (vide Chancery: Eliz., Jas., and Charles, Bl. C. 26 Deps.). He died 14 Oct. 1612 (vide Chancery Bill, Charles I, Bl. G. 58, memb. 52).—R.T.B.

² Thomas Drury of Rougham, Suffolk, 38 Henry VI, was the son of Sir William, and married Catherine daughter of John Wirwell. Their son and heir John Drury, ob. 1498, married Margaret daughter of Sir William Felton alias Chapman, by whom he left issue John Drury of Rougham, ob. 1553, who by his wife Elizabeth daughter of John Goldingham had three sons and two daughters: Robert, eldest son, married Elizabeth daughter of Thomas Tay, and dying v.p. left issue by her Sir Robert Drury of Rougham. William Drury, LL.D., John's second son, was judge of the Prerogative Court, married Mary daughter of Sir Richard Southwell, and died in 1588. John the third son was the recusant of 1577, and at that time was living at Godwick in Norfolk, and in Suffolk, etc., was known as Norfolk Drury. He married Eleanor daughter of Thomas Sydney of Walsingham, by whom he had Robert Drury of Docking who died in 1624, having married Mary daughter of Radcliffe of Cambridge, and one daughter, Frances Drury, married to Farmer Pepes of South Creke, Norfolk. John the recusant had purchased the manor of Godwick with the advowson from Henry Chanceller circa 16 Eliz., and after living there for many years moved to Eton. Both in the same county. two sisters were Anne the wife of Francis Bacon, and Mary wife of Edward Page of Framlingham, who was harbinger to Queen Elizabeth. John Drury was sent to prison in the gaol at Norwich in 1578 for obstinate Papistry.-R.T.B.

¹ Richard House of Titshall St. Margaret, Norfolk, was a witness to a deed of his kinsman, John House of Abbotts House in Stow Market, Suffolk, Esquire. This John died 15 June 1586, when Richard House, his son and heir, was aged twenty years and more. Inquisition 18 July 28 Elizabeth.—R.T.B.

- ² Francis Bastard of West Winch, Norfolk, 1565-1577. In 1583 and 1588 he was in prison for religion, and in 1591 he appears as a Middlesex recusant residing at Stoke Newington. He was lord of the manor of Finchams in West Winch, and also lived at Watlington. He was the son of John Bastard of Watlington, who was of full age 14 Henry VIII, when his father Richard Bastard of Lynn Bishop died, by Alice his wife, daughter of Nicholas Corbyn of Staffordshire. This lady was also the mother of John's other six children, viz. Humphrey Bastard of Congham, Richard Bastard of Grimston, Edith wife of William Blodwell, Elizabeth wife of John Cheverell, Anne wife of Henry Valenger, and Mary. They had an uncle, William Bastard. who was a priest. Their brother Francis, the recusant, married Ursula daughter of John Dethick of Wrongey, and by that lady, who was buried at St. Nicholas Lynn 27 July 1564, had issue: Leonard, dead in 1612; Edmund. baptized at Beachamwell 18 Oct. 1558, Henry born in 1561, lived at Great Dunham, Norfolk, and was buried there Aug. 1624 (his third son Robert being probably the Douay priest in C.R.S. x and xi, who, Foley says, joined the Jesuits in 1607, became spiritual coadjutor in 1618, was on the mission in Hants 1621, in Devon 1622, and died 21 Nov. 1633, aged 62), and John baptized at West Winch 21 Mar. 1561-2; also three daughters: Elizabeth, Anne. and Frances. The said Henry Bastard was lord of the manor of Dunham Magna and patron of the church. He married Elizabeth daughter and coheir of John Wolmer of Thurston, Norfolk, and by her, besides the abovementioned Robert, had issue Richard, Henry, Thomas, Leonard, Augustus, John, Elizabeth married Humphrey Yelverton, Anne, Margaret, Alice, and Frances ux. Matthew Goad of Croxton.—R.T.B.
- ³ John West of Walsingham Parva was of the same family as Edmund West of Weston (vide note 4, p. 57).—R.T.B.
- ⁴ In 1611 Thomas Harrison of Catton near Norwich was sent to prison in that city by the Privy Council for taking part in a mutiny. There were many priests in this family. John Harrison was presented to the rectory of Shelf-hanger by the Duke of Norfolk 14 July 1554 (2 Mary), and William Harrison was presented to the rectory of Rockland-Tofts 13 Feb. 1556 (3 Philip and Mary).—R.T.B.

¹ Mr. Cotton of East Rudham was related to Lady Huddlestone the recusant and her father, Sir Robert Cotton. He is mentioned in a will as "our kinsman Master Cotton of East Rudham."—R.T.B.

2 "Mistris Harwood," wife of Clement Herwood or more correctly Herward, who was lord of the manor of Aldborough, Norfolk, in 1553, being son and heir of Robert Herward, who was lord in 1541 (33 Henry VIII), was the daughter of John Astley of Melton Constable, Norfolk, who had married her mother, Frances daughter and heir of John Cheney, in 1534. Mrs. Astley was still living and a widow in 1559 and 1564, and then at Melton Constable with her only surviving son, Isaac, who had married Mary daughter of Edward Waldgrave, by whom he had two sons, John and Henry. Mistress Herwood had by her husband Clement an only daughter, Dousabell, who died s.p., and the manor of Aldborough or Alburgh was sold by Clement Herwood to Thomas Parker. The Herwards first held it under the Bigots, earls of Norfolk, who held it in capite under Norman kings.—R.T.B.

³ Elizabeth Tibenham of Earsham was the wife of Thomas Tibenham, whose name we find in 1570 amongst the conspirators who took part in John Throckmorton's Rebellion, and were tried at Norwich that year. The rebellion was nipped in the bud. It was a religious movement against Protestantism. Thomas and Elizabeth Tibenham had issue two daughters. Anne the eldest married Mr. Belwike, and Prudence the other was the wife of William Master, LL.D. Mrs. Tibenham was one of the daughters of my ancestor Philip Bedingfeld of Ditchingham Hall, Norfolk, Sheriff of Norfolk and Suffolk in 1530, by Anne daughter and at length coheir to Richard Yaxley of Yaxley, Suffolk (vide pedigree vol. vii, p. 430). Three of this Richard's sons were priests, viz. Thomas Yaxley ob. 1566, Christopher Yaxley, and Francis Yaxley. The remaining son Richard had an only son, Francis Yaxley, Clerk of the Signet, ob. s.p. 1565-6. There was also one other daughter whose name was Alice, and she was the wife of Philip Smith of Elmsett, Suffolk.—R.T.B.

² Sir Robert, son of Sir George Throckmorton of Coughton, by Katherine daughter of Nicholas, 1st Lord Vaux of Harrowden, married first, Muriel daughter of Thomas Lord Berkeley, by whom he had Thomas (below) his successor, and four daughters; second, Elizabeth daughter of John Lord Hussey and widow of John Lord Hungerford, by whom he had two sons, unmarried, and four daughters .-- H.P.

³ Thomas Throckmorton was a great sufferer for the Faith. He married Margaret daughter and coheir of William Whorwood, Attorney-General to Henry VIII, by whom he had, with five daughters, a son John (ob. v.p.), whose son Robert succeeded his grandfather in 1614, and was created a baronet I Sept. 1642. Needless to say the family is still Catholic. Several Catholic missions were maintained by them.-H.P.

*The Talbots of Grafton, co. Worcester, were descended from John, 2nd Earl of Shrewsbury. The Mr. Talbot mentioned above was John son of Sir John Talbot by Frances daughter of Sir John Giffard of Chillington, Staffs. He married Catherine daughter of Sir William Petre, Secretary of State to Queen Mary. Their eldest son George, aged two in 1569, became 9th Earl of Shrewsbury in 1617, on the failure of the senior branch of the family, but died unmarried (Harl. Soc. xxvii, 136; Peerages). John paid £260 for his recusancy for the year 1592-3 (C.R.S. xviii, 365), and probably much more for other years .- J.S.H.

Only son of Robert Tynte of Backwell by Agnes daughter of Philip Thomas of Langeveney and grandson of Robert Tynte of Wraxall, co. Somerset. The will of Edmund Tynte of Backwell, yeoman, dated 10 Aug. 1577 and proved 12 Sept. 1580, is given in Brown's Somerset Wills vi, 90 (34 Arundell). He mentions his wife Margaret, and sons William, Robert, and Edward. Also a daughter Elizabeth. "To my son William all my books." His "cosen Edward Peyton and Thomas Daniell to have successively the keeping of the keye of my study where my books be. To my son Robert my sword and targett." He leaves "3s. 4d. to the church of [Flax] Bourton." Edward Peyton and Thomas Daniells, executors.-P.E.H.

² The Keynes of Compton Pauncefoot were an old (Collinson Hist. Somerset iii, 119–120) family of good standing. At least eight members entered the Society of Jesus (Foley, Records S.J. v, fo. 297; Oliver's Collections; Gillow, Dict. Eng. Caths.). Two daughters were nuns, one a Poor Clare at Gravelines and one an Augustinian at Bruges. Humphrey and James Keynes were among those Catholics who were taken at Lyford, Berks., 16 July 1581, whilst hearing Blessed Edmund Campion's last mass. The Edward referred to is most likely the husband of Ann Brett and father of John, George, and Alexander Keynes. The two former became Jesuits, as did Alexander and Charles, the two sons of the latter. One of his two daughters, Elizabeth, married John Ewans (Visit. Somerset 1623, Harl. Soc. xi, 36, 118), and was the mother of Maurice and Matthew Ewans who both entered the Society.—P.E.H. ² The Keynes of Compton Pauncefoot were an old (Collinson Hist. Somerset xii [Diocese of Peterborough. 27, 28 [Huntingdon, Northamptonshire, Rutland.] Dom. Eliz. 117, n. 16.

³ In Poyntington church "on the south aisle is a small but curious old monument of red and white marble, having on the table a man in armour and a woman in a large ruff and loose white robe, kneeling opposite each other, with an altar desk between them, on which is a blue cloth with a gilt fringe. Behind the woman is her daughter; both their head-dresses are winged caps, stiff plaited over the forehead, and a black hood with a long lappet behind. Below is this inscription: 'Heere George Tilly, esquire, lieth, and Mary his wife; this being erected by Sir Edward Parham, knt., who married the daughter and heire Elizabeth.'" Coat: Argent, a wivern sable (Collinson's Hist. of Somerset ii, 375). Will of Mary Tilly of Poyntington, dated 23 July 1600, in Wells Registry. Donation to "my friend Edward Keynes Esq." (see note 2), who was a near relation to her daughter's husband. Poyntington has been transferred to co. Dorset since 1896. It is about three miles north of Sherborne. The parish is ten miles south of Bruton and hence cannot be described as "nere" that place.—P.E.H.

Rutland, by Sir James Harrington's advise:

Mr Chambers 1 of Ediweston prest, brother to my Lady St. John of Bletso; who hath no landes nor goodes, but private & unknowne.

¹ Unless there were two Chambers brothers, "John" would be Edward Chambers alias Mann. Scambler may have had in mind John Chambers, last Abbot and first Bishop of Peterborough who died 7 Feb. 1555-6.

He was brother to Lady St. John of Bletsoe, Elizabeth daughter and heir of Geoffrey Chambers of Stanmore, Middlesex. She married—Ist (as his second wife) Sir Walter Stonor of Stonor, Oxon, Lieutenant of the Tower 1547; 2nd Reginald Conyers of Wakerley, Northants, and Edith Weston, Rutland (ob.1559), grandson of Reginald brother of Sir William Ist Lord Conyers of Hornby, Yorks., having Francis who died a minor and Lucy his heiress; 3rd (as his third wife) Sir Edward Griffin of Dingley, Northants, Attorney-General to Edward VI and Mary (ob. 1572), and had issue Rice Griffin of Bickmarsh (Sir Edward Griffin's first wife was Elizabeth daughter and heir of Robert Palmer of Borden, Northants, and had issue Sir Edward Griffin of Dingley, Lord of Gumley); 4th (as his second wife) Oliver 1st Lord St. John of Bletsoe, who predeceased her in 1582. Edward Griffin, the Attorney-General's son by his first wife, married Lucy daughter of Reginald Conyers and his step-mother. So Edward Chambers was also "uncle to Edward Griffin of Dingley's wife" (C.R.S. ii, 179). Many idle conjectures as to his parentage are here avoided, in face of the statement that Elizabeth was daughter and heir to Geoffrey Chambers, if she had a brother.

Edward Chambers is reported as in prison in 1576 (Knox, Douay Diaries 113), and may have been out on bail as an "old priest," not a "seminary." He corresponded with Fr. Persons on the Clytheroe pamphlet; Persons calls him brother to Lady St. John and uncle to Edward Griffin's wife, "a grave Priest and Gentleman" (C.R.S. ii, 179). He may have been exiled, as he was sent to England with many others in 1581 (Knox, Douay Diaries; Foley vi, 41). In 1582 Fr. Persons called him (not Sabine Chambers, then aged about 22, as stated by Foley) to preside over the Duke of Guise's English College at Eu in Normandy, removed to the Jesuit College at St. Omers in 1594 (C.R.S. ii, 31). He signed the appeal for "poore religiouse of Syon" in 1584, as Edward Mann (Knox, Douay Diaries 360-2). In 1596 Dr. Worthington and Dr. Percy recommended Edward Chambers to Cardinal Caetano as a priest and reliable man to act as Consultor, among those who either came to Douay College "late in life or who never lived in it at all" (Ibid. 368-75). Bridgewater in his Concertatio (fol. 413b) in 1588 names Edouard Chambers N.S.E. i.e. Nobilis, Sacerdos, Exul. He is said to have died at Douay soon after the closing of Eu College (Morris, Troubles ii, 28).

An Edward Chamber(s) at Oxford took the RA degree in 1542 st.

An Edward Chamber(s) at Oxford took the B.A. degree in 1547-8, the Canon of Chichester, instituted temp. Edward VI, who was supplanted on Mary's accession, seemingly as not accepting the Queen's conditions (J. Foster, Alumni Oxonienses). More probable is Edward Chamber, M.A., who supplicated the degree of B.D. in 1557, "causa est quod non potest abesse a Collegio Ætonensi." The Grace was granted on conditions, one being that he should preach a sermon on the fourth Sunday of Lent (Register of Congregation, Oxford). He had been made alien Fellow of Eton in 1577 (Harwood, Alumni Ætonenses). This was on the expulsion of the married clergy from their Fellowships on the accession of Queen Mary: there were nine admitted, none of them being Eton scholars, and so aliens (Bridge, Northamptonshire, 114-115,

Northamptonshire, by myne opinion:

1. Mr Symon Norwich 1 esquier of Brampton, a travailer for his pleasure into fraunce, whose landes are worth twoo hundred poundes a yere.

2. Mr Price 2 of Washingley, his landes worth two hundred

1 Symon (Simon) Norwich, son of John Norwich and Anne Cobham, married Grace daughter of Edward Griffin of Dingley, Northants, Attorney Gen. to Edward VI and Ph. and Mary. He died 23 April 1588, leaving Sir Charles who succeeded him and several other children (Bridge's Northants ii, 281, 282; Hill's Market Harboro' 72). He is included in 1580 list of prisoners in Marshalsea for Ecclesiastical Causes from 1577-80, under sub-heading "Papists at Liberty," from which it appears that he was sent in for Papistry 26 Nov. 1578, and transferred thence to the Fleet 22 Feb. 1579 (C.R.S. i, 70) .- D.C-E.

² The Price family, originally Ap Rhys, subsequently Aprece or Price, deduce descent from Blethin Ap Maenarch, Prince of Brecknock, who was slain in 1094. Robert, grandfather of the Robert of the text, acquired Washingley Estate by marriage with Joan daughter of John Otter who came into it by marriage with the Washingleys. The Mr. Price of the text was Robert son of William Apreece by Elizabeth daughter and heir of Robert Latimer of Duntish and North Crowley, Bucks., and was born 1532. He married Joan daughter and coheir of Robert Wilford of London, and had nine sons and six daughters as appears from his monument in the church of Lutton or Luddington-in-the-Wold, Northants, to which parish Washingley, though in Hunts., belongs since 1447, when William Alnwick, Bishop of Lincoln, at the request of Richard Duke of York, patron of both livings, united the two parishes of Lutton and Washingley. He entertained at Washingley in the winter of 1580-1 Blessed Edmund Campion. Paid £120 in 1593 for recusancy (C.R.S. xviii, 115). With twelve other gentlemen he was imprisoned for recusancy at Ely 25 March 1594. He died, according to the monument, 9 April 1622 aged 90.

Some of his sons were imprisoned for aiding the escape from Wisbech Castle in March 1600, of three priests, two of them future martyrs, Ven. Thomas Hunt and Robert Nutter (Bede Camm's Forgotten Shrines). His seventh son Jerome was the father of Robert Price the martyr who, as Challoner records, was shot dead in cold blood by the Parliamentarians after the siege of Lincoln in 1644, directly he confessed to being Price the Roman Catholic. He had married Marie daughter of Sir Henry Bedingfeld the Cavalier, and after his martyrdom their only son Robert, then 9 years old, was brought up a Protestant by guardians appointed by the State (Ibid.).

His third (Harl. Soc. lviii, 143, Bucks.) or fourth (Hunts. Visits. 1613) son Adlard was a great soldier and courtier, educated in France (Knox, Douay Diaries 161, 183, 201), fought in Hungary, Ferrar (where he was knighted), Austria, and Bavaria. Died 1608 aged 44 (Monument in Lutton Church).

Isaac and John, sons of our Robert, were at Douay 1579-81, both with Adlard, paid for by their father (Knox, Douay Diaries 155-156, 177, 178, 302, 359-doubtful: 192, 197, 325).-D.C-E.

³ William Brudenell was fifth son of Sir Thomas Brudenell (ob. 1549) and Elizabeth daughter of Sir William Fitzwilliam of Milton, Northants, Kt. had four brothers all of whom inherited the property of Deane (or Dene). Northants, in succession, the fourth brother Robert alone having male heirs. William married Ann daughter of Partrige of Holland, Lincs., who on her husband's death married, as his second wife, James Digby of North 4. Mr Slade 1 of Rushton: his landes worth xxti markes a

That he has received the submission of a Mr Slade of Rushton in the county of Northampton, is trying to bring a Mr Colwell to reason, and tells how Mr Standish, who has a place in Lancashire also, succeeds in outwitting him. He adds information as to other recusants, as follows:-

Luffenham, Rutland, and was buried at North Luffenham April 30 1596 (North Luffenham Parish Reg.).

The Digbys of North Luffenham were Catholics, and recusants at any rate since 1591, in which year (P.R.O. Privy Signet Bills, scr. 11, Bill 20, numb. 28) Queen Elizabeth confiscated two-thirds of the Digby estates in North Luffenham on account of the recusancy of James Digby (who married Ann Partrige widow of Wm. Brudenell of the text). The total value of the property was estimated at £60 per annum.-D.C-E.

I John son of Edward Slade who died in 1547 owning certain lands in Rushton formerly belonging to the Convent of Delapré near Northampton, and a capital messuage called Huntingdon Hall formerly belonging to the dissolved monastery of Huntingdon, at which time John son and heir was a minor, 19 years of age, which would make him 49 years old in 1577 (Bridge's Northants ii, 70).-D.C-E.

The only Peter Norwich I can find is a brother of Simon's father, John Norwich, and son of Simon, ob. 1549, and Margaret Tyrrell, cousin to Lady Cheney, and so uncle to Simon Norwich of the text (Hill's Market Harboro' 72). -D.C-E.

Joane Pridie of Moreton Valance.

Mr John Paunsefoote esquier & his wyffe >of Hassefeld.4

Thomas de Bucher > of Barnewood.

¹ Thomas Alfield or Aufield, a native of Gloucester, scholar of Eton and King's College, Cambridge, where he took his M.A. degree, became a Catholic. Going to Rheims he was ordained priest in 1581. On his return he was arrested, and after being racked conformed; but escaping again went to Rheims, and a second time returned to the mission, residing for the most part with Mr. John Pauncefoote and his wife Dorothy at Hasfield, co. Gloucester. Again arrested he showed more fortitude and was martyred at Tyburn 6 July 1585. In the Douay Diaries (Knox, p. 292) it is said that Mr. Henry (sic) Alfeld, once or twice in prison, was freed and afterwards betrayed and arrested by his own father. This was Robert Alfield, usher at Eton and a schoolmaster. Mr. J. B. Wainewright clearly puts the blame on Sir John Davis, as the reading stands (Burton and Pollen, English Martyrs n.s. i; C.R.S. v). But such a statement, although not absolutely correct, is not likely to have been lightly made. I suggest that it may have been Thomas Alfield's own statement, when he returned to Rheims, as regards his first arrest, and an excuse for his conformity, that if he had died then, his blood would have been on his father's head. Such a thought must have been awful; and charity and filial duty may have gained the upper hand for the time, the lapse being wiped out in his own blood, later.—J.S.H.

The manor of Broad Marston, by Pepworth, continued in the possession of the Bushel family from the year 1245 till it passed to the Cecils, Earls of Salisbury, in the seventeenth (or eighteenth) century. If Thomas Bushell only dated 1558 is the one of Marston-Sicca whose will is dated 1572, he had a son and heir Edward, who married Dorothy daughter of Thomas Andrews of Winwick, co. Northampton, and had a son Thomas of Broad Marston (probably the above) who married Elizabeth Winter and Mary Morris, having several children by each (Harl. Soc. xxi, 238-240).—G.A.B.

³ The manor of Alderton came to the family of Tracy of Todington in the reign of Henry VII, but did not remain very long in their possession. On this family see Rudder's Gloucestershire, p. 771; Harl. Soc. xxi, 165.—G.A.B.

⁴ John son of Richard Pauncefoote of Hasfield by Dorothy daughter of John Ashfield of Heythrope, Oxon. Their wills seem to be in 1558 and 1568 (Brit. Records xii); but in Commoners ii, 75, the former is said to have died in 30 Eliz., i.e. 1587-8. Query, someone mistaking 1558 for 1588 and turning it into the regnal year, whereas it should be—6 Mary or 1 Eliz. This shows Gillow (Dict. Eng. Caths. v, 250) to be right in saying that John withdrew to the Continent in 1584, and was living in exile at Rouen in 1596 (Douay Diaries). He wrote "The Firme Foundation of Catholike Religion." He married Dorothy daughter of William Lord Windsor. She was committed to Newgate 12 Dec. 1585. His son and heir Richard sold all the estates in counties Gloucester, Worcester, and Hereford, as shown by the pedigree signed by his son, Grimbald Pauncefote of London, in 1634 (Harl. Soc. xvii, 146). The Ven. Thomas Alfield or Awfield was resident with John Pauncefoote at Hasfield before his second arrest and martyrdom (Eng. Martyrs, by Burton and Pollen).—J.S.H.

William Chapman and his wyffe of Runwick. John Clerck > of Strowde. William Pardie, Margerett Pardie of Winchcombe. John Bromedge, gent., of Bromsbarow. Mres Strange of Chesterton. Mr William Norwood of Leckhampton.1 William Drewett and his wyffe, of Gloucester. Mres Margerie Blunte, wydow, of Forthampton.

¹ The Bishop of Llandaff from 1575 to 1590 was William Blethyn. As a result of the episcopate of Anthony Kitchin (1545 to 1566), the see of Llandaff was at this time in an impoverished condition, and Bishop Blethyn held several livings in order to supplement the scanty resources of the bishopric. The bishops formerly resided at Mathern near Chepstow. The old episcopal palace is still in existence.—J.H.C.

""Wennye" is Ewenny near Bridgend. Thomas Carne of Ewenny was the eldest son of Sir Edward Carne who was the last ambassador accredited to the Holy See until quite recent times. He was knighted by the Emperor Charles V, and died at Rome in 1561. Thomas Carne was Sheriff of Glamorganshire in 1562, 1572, and 1581.—J.H.C.

- ¹ St. Bride's Major. In the Stradling Correspondence is a letter dated Aug. 17 (year not stated) from James Blount, Lord Mountjoy, to Sir Edward Stradling of St. Donat's, appointing to meet the latter at "St. Bryds neere Ogmoore." In a subsequent letter written on his return journey and dated Aug. 31st 1577, Lord Mountjoy says "so must I also desyre to make both my excuse and Mr. Winslade's to my lady, for that the great conferrens that Mr. Winslad (sic) and I have had touchinge Mountejoy and Joyesland hath made us both somewhat beyond good maners to bringe her horse thus farre as Newporte." The surname of Winslade is a most unusual one, and it seems almost certain that the Mr. Winslade of the letter is the "William Wynslote" referred to in the return.—J.H.C.
- ² "Hednesse" is Bedwas, parish partly in Monmouthshire and partly in Glamorganshire. The old mansion of the Van is about half a mile east from Caerphilly in Glamorganshire. It is now mostly a ruin, but in part used as a farmhouse. Thomas Lewis of the Van was Sheriff of Glamorgan in 1561, 1570, and 1587. He was one of the Commissioners employed by the Earl of Pembroke in managing his Welsh estates, and died 2 Nov. 1593. "Pylstone" appears to be a variant of the name Puleston, which is that of a well-known North Welsh family. The Pulestons were related by marriage to the Herberts of Swansea and to the Herberts of St. Julian's near Newport.—J.H.C.

* James Morgan was not of the Machen family. He was the fourth son of Sir Thomas Morgan of Pencoed Castle, and married in 1580 the heiress of Coed-y-Gorres at Rhymney.--J.H.C.

4" Maghen" is Machen in Monmouthshire. Rowland Morgan was one of the Morgans of Machen whose seat, Plås Machen, is still in existence. In a letter dated 3 Feb. 1579, Bishop Blethyn describes him as a determined Papist. The present Lord Tredegar is descended from this branch of the family.—J.H.C.

⁵ William Morgan of Llantarnam in Monmouthshire, which county he represented in Parliament from 1555 to 1571. He was High Sheriff of Mon-mouthshire in 1568, and died in 1582.—J.H.C.

⁶ This would appear to be Edward Kemeys (formerly spelt Kemmes) of Cefn Mably in Glamorganshire, who was M.P. for Monmouthshire in 1592, and died in 1623. Thomas Lewis of Van, William Morgan of Llantarnam, and Edward Kemeys were closely related by marriage.—J.H.C.

7 In the second Douay Diary (p. 182) we learn that Mr. Morrise, M.A. of Oxford, arrived from England at Rheims, where the College then was, on II Sept. 1581.—J.H.C.

One Mr Chamberleine, 4 sonne to Sr Leonard Chamberleine late of St Aldates, and nowe of Godstoe within the precincte of Oxford,

² Mr. William Napper, farmer, of Holywell, Oxford, under Merton College, was son of Edward Napper by Anne daughter of Sir John Peto of Chesterton, co. Warwick. The family came from Swyre in Dorsetshire, a branch of that of Merchiston, Scotland. His brother George, the priest, after labouring for several years in the city and county of Oxford, was apprehended in the house of a friend, Mr. Eure, at Kirtlington; he was taken to Oxford before a magistrate, Mr. Chamberlain, and charged with being a priest. His glorious confession and subsequent martyrdom is reported by Challoner in his Missionary Priests. After the death of the Ven. George the family continued at Holywell and underwent the usual troubles of Catholics, sequestration, etc. The manor was saved to them however, and several members of the family were well-known as Catholic schoolmasters. Mr. George Napier, who died in 1671, acquired a large fortune with his wife Margaret Arden of Kirtlington, who was the heiress of the family of Arden marked in this paper. His eldest daughter again carried on the tradition to the family of Neville of Holt in Leicestershire. The old Manor House of Holywell was let for years to Catholic tenants, who had mass there whenever possible. At length it descended to being used as the parish workhouse (Stapleton, Cath. Missions, p. 211 seq.).—M.H.S.

³Mr. Powell of Sandford, brother-in-law to Napper. His family came from Wales to Oxford, buying land in the market from the sale of old monastic property. He had acted as under Steward from some Crown lands in the county, and married a sister of the Ven. George Napier. His house at Sandford on Thames had been the home of the Knights Hospitallers of Jerusalem, the chapel of which was still intact when his brother-in-law was executed, and it was there that the friends laid the Martyr's venerable relics on the night of his martyrdom. See the graceful little tales of "Rosemary," by Lady Georgiana Fullerton. Mr. Powell left several grandchildren behind him. They all married into the best of the old Catholic families of England, and at last two coheiresses, Lady Teynham and Lady Curzon of Waterperry shared the property. The male line expired in two Franciscan Friars (Hearne and Anthony & Wood, Cath. Missions, Stapleton, p. 198).—M.H.S.

In the sixteenth century we find the Chamberlain family settled near Woodstock, holding important posts under the Crown as Rangers of Woodstock worthe sixe thousand pounde, commeth not to the churche, nor anie of his, as far as I can learne. He bordeth in his house suche as be enemies; as one Hord, Mr Mathewe &c.

Mris Grenewood 1 widowe, in the parishe of St Gyles, commeth not to the churche. Worthe 2,00011.

George Atkinson, parson of Steeple Ashton, worthe one thousand pounde, lyeth in St Gyles parishe, and commeth not to the churche.

One Comber of St Ebbes parishe, beare brewer, worth 2001, commeth not to the churche, and is a receaver of fugitiues, as Heath and others.

The wife of one Phillips,2 a draper in all Hallows parishe, worth 2001, never commeth to the churche, and she is thought to haue a masse nowe and then in her house.

Mris Williams, 3 at the signe of the starre, commeth not to the churche at all, as some saie. Others saie once in the yere, and that on tuesdaie before Easter and secretely receiueth the communion. Her husband is an alderman and a Justice of peace, and thoughe he come him selfe to the churche, yet he is a common receiuer of professed enemies, as of Marshall a priest, of Chamberleine aforenamed, Powel of Sandford, Owen of Godstoe, Palmer, Cletherowe and a number moe.

His sonne Alexander is reputed and taken verie backward in religion, and seldom or never commeth to the churche. This Mr Alderman Williams is thought to be worthe a thousand marke.

The said Mris Williams daughter, wife to Mr Doctor Marbecke, Park, etc. Some of them were employed under the Government in connection with the Spanish Court in Flanders as regulating the pensions granted to the English Catholics living in Madrid and Flanders at that time. One of the family had been Governor of Guernsey, and is thus alluded to: "List of names and arrivals in Madrid of certain Englishmen given by the King of Spain, 1574. His pension with entertainment 300 ducats"—this appears to be about £100 per annum. He came and went in 1573, and one of them married in Ghent and settled there, eventually becoming Bishop of Ypres, in which cathedral he was buried in 1634. His family settled at Sherborne Castle, Oxon., and shortly after the estates passed to Lord Abergavenny through the heiress Elizabeth Chamberlain (State Papers Dom. Eliz. p. 467; Hearne and Wood, Cath. Missions, Stapleton, p. 269).—M.H.S.

¹ Mrs. Grenewood, widow. This name refers to a family of lawyers who came from Yorkshire. His son, Counsellor at law, married Joane Napier, sister to the martyr. He probably bought the manor of Brize-Norton, co. Oxford, and married a daughter of the family of More of More Place, co. Herts. (not de la More of Haddon), to all appearance. Sons and daughters of the family appear as O.S.B., and served the Missions round about until Charles Grenewood of Salden, Bucks., sold this estate of Brize-Norton in 1813 to the Fortescues (Lipscombe's Bucks., vol. iii, p. 427). To prevent further confusions of name, Salden, co. Bucks., must not be mistaken with Souldern, co. Oxon., as I have seen done by Brother Foley, S.J. I have been informed that the last of the Grenewood family was buried in the church of St. Nicolas in Ghent, and that the hatchment was lately to be seen.—м.н.s.

² It may be worth noting that the name of Phillips has come down as an old Catholic family at Somerton, Brailes, and Banbury.—M.H.S.

³ "The sign of the Star" is the present Clarendon Hotel. The family of Williams had owned Tusmore before the Fermors. The first Fermor will is dated 1552.—M.H.S.

being of St Maries parishe, was by the Jurie presented to me for an obstinate person in religion.

There are also nowe presented unto me one Stephin White, a gentleman of Hampshire with two men waiting on him; one other of the same shire called blacke foster; two of the Palmers, gents, as I heare; one Clethero a lawyer; one Brookes; one Edmonds; one Mris Louelace, Sister to Mr William ffriar of Oxford—who have their countinuance here most of them, for a long time, being neither of the Towne nor universitie. These not onely come not to the churche, but are knowne to be open enemies. Of this sort are one Mr Yates, one Vicars a Lovanist, who lieth in corners, and divers others, who as yet are not knowen.

Magdalene parishe. Polson, bachilar of lawe, a proctor in the archdeacon's court, is presented for not comming to the churche:

worthe by estimacion one hundred poundes.

Barnes, Doctor of Phisicke, presented for not comming to the churche: worthe one thousand markes. His wife commeth seldom.

Transham, 1 also of the same parishe, commeth not to the churche, and receiueth Lovanistes. I knowe not his wealth.

St Martins parishe. John Blieth and James Huet come not to the churche. I cannot learne what they are worthe.

All Hallows. Thomas Gefferies, Taylor, commeth verie seldom to the churche or never, and is a great receiver of fugitives; and is thought by the help of them to be worthe 2001.

William ffriar 2 gent. is reported to lie at the signe of the Beare three quarters of a yere together, and commeth not to the Churche.

He is worth, as it is thought, 200011.

St Thomas parishe. Besides Gunnel before named, the wife of one Rowland Jenkes 3 absenteth her selfe from the church. The said Rowland lyeth in prison condempned to lose his eares by the Lord chefe Baron that dead is, or els to paje a pece of money, for words that he spake against the state. He findeth manie friends and never lived better then he doth nowe. There is one fabian Dyer of the same parishe, of no great wealth: he absenteth him selfe also.

There were presented at the lawe daie by the Jurie Hughe

¹ The name probably refers to the family of Edward Transham or Stransham alias Ausley or Anslow alias Barber, priest, who was martyred in 1585. But when the martyr graduated at St. John's College he was described "fils pleb. aged in 1575, native of Oxford." In 1583 a list of recusants associates the name with Ansley. James Ansleye of Oxford, gentleman, and Edward Ansley of Chastleton, on the Gloucestershire border, were recusants in 1592; and in 1593 Katherine Anslowe of Chastleton, spinster, also. Strensham is a Gloucestershire parish.—M.H.S.

³ Rowland Jenks is known to have undergone this mutilation, his ears being nailed to the pillory; as well as the pestilence which broke out in the Court House immediately on his condemnation, of which no mention is made in this record, beyond the death of Sir Robert Bell, Chief Baron of the Exchequer. An opulent bookseller in Oxford professing his religion openly, his business was ruined and his goods seized, and he had to go into exile.—M.H.S.

James, John Mericke, Richard Atwood's wife, Rowland Shrimpton, John Barloe, all of the same parishe, to be obstinate persons. I cannot learne as yet what wealth they are of.

St Peter's in the Baily. There is presented unto me the wife of one Serieant, for not comming to the churche. I take him to be a pore man.

St Aldates. There is one Henslowe, a Mr of arte of nyne or tenne yeres standing, once of newe colledge, and expeld out of that house for poperie, who lyeth nowe at the signe of the Blewe bore at one Easton's, and never commeth to the Churche. His host is wealthie: what he is I knowe not.

St Ebbes. Besides Comber aforesaid, there is one Redshawe, a pore daie labourer, that never commeth to the churche.

St Peter's in the East. There is one Yates 1 gente, a straunger, that came not to the churche, til nowe of late that I bounde him to the goe a bearing [sic], for suspicion of religion and words that he spoke. He standeth bounde onely til the next Sessions.

Colledges & Halls.

All Soules colledge. There are presented to me by the head of the colledge William Yard, Anthonie Short, Edward Price—bachilars of lawe; as men reputed and taken to be backeward in religion, especially Edward Price.

Excester colledge. Stephin Sherewin, 2 fellowe of the colledge, presently at Rome; John Currye, fellowe of the same house, presently at Lovan; Thomas Hole, an other of the fellows nowe at Parris; all reputed to be of a verie currupt religion. There is one Brewning, bachilar of lawe, of the same house, who absenteth him selfe from the churche: he is a landed man.

There is also one Catesbie, and also two of the Ploydens,³ and Savage that never come to the churche: all foure yong gentlemen. Catesbie and Savage are M^r Carter's scholars, fellowe of the same colledge. The two Ploydens were scholars to M^r Raynolds, that died this sommer.

Bailey colledge. One Lee, bachilar of lawe and a proctor in the archdeacons courte, is presented for not receuing the communion and comming to the Churche to heare divine service and sermons.

Quenes colledge. Robert Williamson, bachilar of phisicke, having his most abode amongst them, neither commeth to service nor communicateth there.

¹ Yate or Yates is the name of a large class in Berkshire and notably of Buckland, but the omissions of baptismal names in so many cases renders conjecture useless. This one may be of the Kencot, co. Oxon., family.—M.H.S.

—M.H.S.

Newe Inne. Mr Denne, a Mr of arte, fitzsimons, Doring, Pluncket, yong Irishe gents, never come to the churche.

Edmond Hall. One Ruckwood, an old priest, is never sene, neither at praiers, communions, nor sermons: esteemed to be worthe one hundred poundes.

Reading the Manciple there commeth not to the Hart Hall. churche nor receiueth, neither Mr Rudde an auntient Mr of arte, neither Mr Naile, nor manie moe that lie in his lodging there, whose names are unknowne to me. The Principall, one Mr Randoll, is verie muche suspected; he wil not present anie thing upon his othe.

Alborne Hall. Marshall, an olde Mr of arte and a priest, never commeth to the churche, and is thought to saie masses in corners. He is much made of at Alderman Williams his house, and at one widowe Hartoppes, and also at Mr Napper's aforesaid.

Glocester Hall. The house is greatly suspected, and yet the principall there presented nothing to me. One Sr William Catesbie 1 lyeth there.

¹ Thomas More of Adderbury, gent., and his wife. This is a name which naturally occasions confusion among so many of the same patronymic. The family used to be known as de la More. They had a capital mansion at Bicester, and they intermarried with the Blounts of Maple Durham. One of the family entertained Queen Elizabeth at Bicester. The family kept the Faith alive in their house at Haddon near Bampton, and were there visited by the spy Eliot while searching for F. Campion. The lady of the house at that time was a Tempest of Yorkshire. Antony & Wood, the Oxford historian, tells us as follows: Northmore belonged to the Moores or de la More. In the church there lies a Knyght Templar with the arms of de la More. A certain Thomas de la More of "Greys Inn" compiled the family pedigree about 1664. He lived in the parish of Tainton, and his father in the pedigree is styled de Haddon (Stapleton, Catholic Post-Reformation Missions, p. 175).—M.H.S.

² The Davey family were patrons of the mission of Overy near Dorchester, Oxon,—M.H.S.

*William Harte of Bicester, gent. There are several of this name mentioned as Confessors of the Faith and S.J.'s—Thomas Harte of Ensham, gent., in the year 1592 is mentioned as recusant in Oxon, remaining at liberty. Later on two of the name, John and Nicholas Harte, served the District (Cath. Missions).—M.H.S.

⁴ John Bourne of Chesterton, gent. "Mr. Bourne of Chesterton kept five priests in his house" in 1583. There were two branches of this family with certified pedigrees, one settled at Wendlebury the other here. They must have held active centres of religion for many years. John lived in the old manor house at Chesterton, once the property of Meney Abbey, which was at last burnt down and a new one took its place. What a wealth of old traditions lost! (Stapleton, Cath. Missions, p. 95).—M.H.S.

of much interest from a Catholic point of view in the neighbourhood. He was a gentleman of fair means (alias Glover) living not far from Burford with many young children, and even kept one priest in his house. At last the heat of persecution drove him into the forest of Dean with his priest, and last having been spoiled of all he possessed, a certain lawyer under cover of the unjust laws drove him into Gloucester gaol where he died a prisoner. One of his sons was F. Francis Thompson, S.J., and one of his daughters was in the first batch of Novices clothed in the Benedictine Abbey at Brussels (Oxfordshire Missions, p. 163).—M.H.S.

¹ Francis Yate of Kencott, gent., and his wife. He is the same person called in one place of "Bendlott," a forgotten manor on the Thames. He cannot have been long at Kencot, because the parish register only contains one name of the family. His wife was Elizabeth Platt of Sparshott, co. Berks., a recusant likewise.—M.H.S.

² Robert Painter of Shipton on Cherwell, name occurs once in Souldern, later on. John Stutsbury of Souldern. A branch of the Throckmortons lived at Souldern in the early sixteenth century; the family ended in four heiresses. They suffered both for religion and loyalty. Mentioned in Knox, Douay Diaries.—M.H.S.

^a Edmund Smith of Newinham-Murren, yeoman. In all probability this name belongs to a family well known at the time in middle Oxon. We first find mention of them at Crowmarch Gifford, as connected with the Cresswells. He was then said to live in London. Later on we find them settled in the Soke at Winchester, where they laid the foundations of the Catholic Mission. Dr. James Smith, the Bishop, was one of them. The heiress of the family married a Sheldon, and carried the Smith property and traditions to them. The name of Bartholomew occurs several times among them (Stapleton, Cath. Missions, p. 288).—M.H.S.

⁴The wife of Henry Stonor of North Stoke was Margery daughter of William Lovelace of Henley. Henry Stonor died in 1574.—M.H.S.

¹ Yeastley is an ancient spelling of Iffley near Oxford. The family of Lewes held the manor of Iffley from 1566 until about 1617. David Lewis, 1st Principal of Jesus College, Oxford, died in 1584, and was conveyed for burial to Wales. His wife was a D'Oyley of Chilhampton (History of Iffley, p. 48, by Rev. Edward Marshall).—M.H.S.

² "Ford's eldest son of Garsington a common leader of priests about the country" (Stapleton, Oxford Missions, p. 1, quoting Foley, S.J.).—M.H.S.

² Ambrose Edmonds of Stanton, committed to prison in 1592 as a recusant, is mentioned in Cecil MSS., pt. 3.—M.H.S.

⁴ John Archdale of Whateley was a recusant at liberty in 1592 (Calendar of Cecil MSS., part 3).—M.H.S.

⁵ William Mollins of Maryewell and Chinnor. A recusant family, the heir being a Protestant named Saunders; the family forfeited the estate. One branch of the family became Barons Ventry in Ireland. In Chinnor church are several monumental brasses. Several of the ladies became nuns in France; Bridget and Dorothy started for France, and while at Dover were arrested and confined for some time in the Castle, but after a while they arrived at Beaulieu and became nuns there, their uncle being at one time Confessor to the Convent, the Rev. Francis Mollins. The family suffered severely for their Faith. The story is told of William Mollins, who lived by Wallingford in a house known as Clapcot, that the Governor of the Tower having invited Mr. Mollins to dinner, he desired his guest to walk out with him after dinner and see a fine sight. Upon going out he was shown his own house destroyed by the orders of his host (Stapleton, Oxford Missions, p. 286).—M.H.S.

John married Alice third daughter of John Godwin of Upper Winchendon, Bucks. Owen married Jane daughter of Francis Conyers of Wakerley, Northamptonshire, by whom he had Edward, Dorothy, and Elizabeth. Although a recusant in 1577 he seems to be a persecutor of them in 1592 (C.R.S. xviii).—J.S.H.

² Julian was wife of Bartholomew Piggott of Aston Rowant and of Julian Lenthal of Hazeley; probably sister to Robert Belson's wife, a Tempest. See next note.—M.H.S.

⁸ Robert Belson's wife was a daughter of Robert Tempest of co. Durham, and was living in 1581. See also Oxford Missions 263-6. A cousin of his, Thomas Belson of Brill, suffered martyrdom at Oxford in 1585.—M.H.S.

² The Pitts family of Yestley, now Iffley, were a well-known recusant family, possessed of the manor and mills. Arthur, formerly Fellow of All Souls' College, Oxford, and Registrar of the Archdeaconry, was impropriator of the benefice and presented in 1567. He died in 1579 and was buried in the church, leaving a widow Margaret, and four sons—Robert, Thomas, Arthur, and Philip. The name of the eldest only follows, he becoming a priest, as did Arthur at Douay. The second Douay Diary speaks of five brothers being in exile, one being a Carthusian. Arthur Pitts, junior, after being at Douay returned and was imprisoned, and later deported to Normandy. He became Chancellor to the Cardinal of Lorraine, returning again to England, and was received into the house of the Stonors, Blount's Court, near Henley, where he died about 1634, and was buried in the church of Rotherfield Peppard. In 1583 the sheriff made a report that Mrs. Pitts of Iffley was a recusant, keeping a priest in the house. Philip Pitts married and continued the family. A branch of the family settled at Alton in Hampshire (Stapleton, Oxford Cath. Missions; Marshall, History of Iffley).—M.H.S.

TWO LETTERS OF BISHOP BARNES.

(i) As Protestant Bishop of Carlisle to Sir William Cecil. Carlisle, 27 October, 1570.

CONTRIBUTED BY THE REV. J. H. POLLEN, S.J.

R.O., Domestic, Elizabeth, lxxiv, 22, Holograph. Both these letters are printed here primarily because they give reports of Catholicism from an Anglican point of view in the two Northern dioceses, which are blanks in the survey of 1577. In regard to the first letter, the most important piece of news, historically speaking, is that which announces the revival of Catholicism after the excommunication of Elizabeth (25 February, 1570). The bitter tone of this Bite-sheep is characteristic of the period; his familiarity with the Vulgate is an indication of the recent date of his apostasy.

Salutem per Christum Jesum, &c., my moste bounden Dewtie and most hartie Comendacions unto your honor alwaies had. It had bene my parte I acknowledge, longe sythence to have, (at Leste wise by lies where otherwise as yet I am not able by facte) declared my thankfull and myndefull good will for the greate bñfyts and plesures weh you have bothe pcured and wroughte for me, howbeit bothe cosidringe your greatt and weightie affaires and traveill abrode, the grett Distaunce of place, and litle store of good matter, I have so long Driven of, untill now verie shame enforces me to write these fewe lynes to the same effecte, Beseching you for the loue of good not to impute or ascribe either anie unthankefulnes, Unmyndfullnes or wante of good will in me: but to accompte of me and all that I have as whollie your owne. It is so, and so shalbe Duringe my lyfe, and for the love of god let me understand that you so thynke of me and so repute and take me, wen shalbe to my singular comforte.

I am for the tyme settled in this my charge, where I dowte not to worke greatt good to this people, and good svice to the queene my gracious Ladie: for of a trewthe I never came in place in this Land, where more attentife care was geuen to the Woorde, then here, and in tyme I truste good effecte will grow theruppon; and if I may have in well Doinge good backynge and ayde Of the Quenes matie, my good L Keper and your honor I dare promise as faythfull paynefull /and if god will/ effectuall travell, as ever poore bisshoppe did p'forme wthin his cure. I have for these x yeres bene exercised in these Northe parts and knowe the peoples Dispocion righte well, as I p'swade myselfe. And to say the trewthe I fynd these Comberland and Westmorland comonaltie farre moore coformable, pliable and tractable in all matters of religion, then I founde in the better sorte in Yorkshire. All will most quietly and reveretly heare, none will reclayme by word, nor in fine by Deede /saving the lowe Landsme, and certeyne gentlemen/ but attentyvely and gladlye seeme to heare and yeld to the treuthe, so that I seeme to p'mise great good successe /if god so will/ in thys so rude a countrie. And yet not by farre so rude as in manie places the sotherne people be, nor so farre from godds religion as they have bene thought. In Dede great wante of Justice is here, the worste are [? winked] at and the cursedest most countenaced, the iustices furum Socij, fewe or none, but he hathe notorious . . . theves in his house, his goods goe safelye, when hys s'vants will putt out the poore mans Kowe to . . . co'tynue the theefe of the Lowe Land: complaynts have bene and Daily are, but neither regard nor restitucion, and of our chefeste Omnes Diligunt mamon, seguntur retribuciones, so that I may of our gentlem co'clude, as dothe the prophete for civell Justice, No est qui faciat bonum, Nn est usq' ad unu. I have send you here enclosed a brefe note of the gentlem in this countre, as they showe them selves, as I fynd them, and haue lerned of godly zelous and lerned men, you shall fynd the same trewe, and use yt as your honor shall thincke good.

If my Lo Warden were somewhat sett on and egged forwards to mynister Justice, surelye yt were well, and yt is full tyme, he is an honorable most courteous and good gentleman and fauourethe and embracethe religion verie well; but intollerable slowe in Doinge iustice and, wh is worste of all, domestici eius multis nominibus pessime audiunt.

Lancashire, as the constant fame her goethe /nescio qo malo fato oia sapiunt apertam rebellionem/. More great assembles are Dailie then were fytt: on all hands the people fall from religion, revolte to poperie: refuse to come at churche, the wicked popisshe preests reconcile them to the churche of rome, and cause them to abiure this christs religion /and that opely and uncheked: synce ffelton sett uppe the excommunication. In some houses of greate men /you knowe whome I meane/ no s'vice hathe bene said in the englisshe tounge, But Browne and other traiterous preests openly receaved, enterteyned and mainteyned. I write but the leste p'te of that woh I here by worshippfull and credible.

And I knowe that except you use some godlie and prudent prevention that wyll burst owte, wen thoughe yt p'vaile not to theffect they purpose and appointe uppon, yet will yt be to the great Daunger and hurte to the comonweale. I am sorie I have ocasion to write hereof unto you, but yt is my parte, for had there not bene great occasion I wold not so have done, neither Durste I have done thus moche, but that I presume /and am assured of your honors good affection to me, and theruppon p'swade myselfe that this advertisement shall not tende to my hurte.

Thus havinge troubled your honor over longe, I make here an ende, restinge whoollie yours and besechinge you to accepte me and thinke of me. The lyvinge lord blesse you and p'serve you, confoundinge all his foes, &c., Amen. ffrom Carlyle the xxvijthe of Octobre 1570. Your honors most bounden and euer so assured, &c.,

(ii) As BISHOP OF DURHAM TO THE PRIVY COUNCIL. Durham, 19 March, 1585.

R.O., Domestic, Elizabeth, clxxxvii, 49, original, countersigned by the Dean of Durham, and others. Bishop Barnes has now been translated to Durham, and this answer contributes to fill up another blank in the survey of 1577. The names mentioned in the survey of September 1580 for "the Dioces of Durham," had been—for the county of Durham, "ffrauncis Wicklieff, Clement Lambert"; for Northumberland, "Roland Lawson and Robert Rodond" (R.O., Dom. Eliz., cxlii, 33). The return of 1580 treated of the better-to-do recusants, worth in lands £40 or upwards, or in goods £400 and upwards.

PRISONERS IN THE FLEET, 1577-1580.

CONTRIBUTED BY THE REV. J. H. POLLEN, S.J.

In the Introduction to the collection of "Official Prison-lists," which were printed by me in the first volume of our Miscellany, I stated by error that the list of prisoners for the Fleet Prison was wanting in the returns for 1577 to 1580. But our member, Mr. J. B. Wainewright, has now sent me a copy of this hitherto unprinted prison-list, which is herewith given to our members.

The names are given without comment, as was done before; but if any one will take the pains to follow these prisoners through the earlier and later lists, he will find in many cases that clues are there given, which will much facilitate an identification.

THE ARCHPRIEST CONTROVERSY.

CONTRIBUTED BY RAYMUND CANON STANFIELD.*

(i) HISTORICAL NARRATIVE BY JOHN BENNETT, PRIEST, 1621.

The Rev. John Bennett, the author of the following paper, was the brother of Edward Bennett the 2nd Dean of the English Chapter. He was one of the 12 assistants of the Archpriest and a clergyman much esteemed by his brother priests, and thoroughly trusted by them. He was an eyewitness, as he tells us in this paper, of the successful application to the Pope for a superior of the English Clergy, by the Jesuit Fathers and their followers, behind the clergy's back and unknown to them, which resulted in the appointment of the first Archpriest, George Blackwell. Dr. Lingard (History of England, vi, 312, edition 1854), quoting from a contemporary paper, tells us: "Fr. Persons, S.J., at first supported but soon opposed the design of the clergy to obtain a Bishop for their superior. His motive was a political one. Instead of several Bishops one Archpriest was appointed, and he received secret instructions to consult the Provincial of the Jesuits." Lingard says 'They had persuaded themselves that by subjecting all the secular priests to the government of a single superior' attached to their party they would be able at the death of the Queen to employ the influence of the whole body in support of a favourite for the crown." Lately in The Month a series of papers on the archpriest controversy appeared by Fr. Pollen, S.J. If anyone wished for a concise and clear account from the secular clergy side of the same controversy the following paper certainly deserves to be so called. John Bennett later on did the clergy a great benefit. It was principally by his zealous and untiring efforts that a Bishop was given to England in the person of Dr. William Bishop. Southcote's Note Book (C.R.S., i, 99) tells us "that the Bishop was made by the Procuration of John Bennett, whom the clergy sent to Rome in 1622 as their agent." The same Note Book tells us John Bennett died the same year the Bishop came to England. that is in 1623. This paper is quoted by Dr. Knox in the Preface to the Douai Diaries (pp. 64, 167), also by Canon Tierney (vol. iii, 167. Ap., and vol. v, 13), but has never been printed.—R.s.

^{*} We had to deplore the long illness and death of Canon Stanfield, who simply delighted in the Old Brotherhood archives and in all Church history, before he could complete the task he had so lovingly and laboriously undertaken. The papers and proofs got mislaid for a considerable time in consequence. There is some uncertainty whether he had completed the work to his own satisfaction, and whether he intended to add other sections to this important paper. It may be matter for remark that documents bearing so strongly on this vexed question should only now be made public, in the convincing simplicity of the original form, in face of statement and counterstatement hotly bandied about by the different parties to the controversy, who could hardly be termed indifferent. Well; some reasons may be adduced; but, for the present, comment may well be avoided. The C.R.S. now supplies the deficiency. I have endeavoured to carry out what seemed Canon Stanfield's intentions, with only some resetting for the press. The Canon translated Concilio (p. 134, l. 7) as advice (p. 140, l. 29). The narrative, originally continuous, is here divided into paragraphs. Bennett has just been describing the work of the Jesuits, and proceeds directly,—"Quo autem concilio &c." Allen is known to have consulted with them at one time. However, suggestions have been made that design or purpose may be meant.—J.S.H.

Hæc narratio ea sola continet, quæ vel ex fidissimis rerum nostrarum historicis desumpta vel ex iis quæ orbe teste et inspectante gesta atque in Acta publica relata vel literis denique Apostolicis contestata reperiuntur. Ex ea autem facile intelligi potest qua ratione post hæresim ab Elizabetha revocatam extincti sunt in Anglia Catholici sub Maria creati Episcopi qui dum viverent de aliis consecrandis nemo videtur fuisse solicitus: Iis vero extinctis et erecto Duaceno Seminario, missisque in Anglicanum messem magno numero Sacerdotibus, vivente Cardle Alano neminem alium novum illum clerum habuisse vel postulasse Superiorem: ex quo id incommode contigit quod cum intra Regni fines ordinarium Superiorem et ad conservandam disciplinam et ad ecclesiastici corporis formam tuendam non haberet studiorum ac dissentionum perniciosa jacta fuerint semina quæ certe ordinarii Superioris authoritate facillime præcaveri potuissent. Ex eodem etiam liquet quomodo Mortuo Alano cum clerus Episcopos in horum malorum medelam a Sede Apostolica obsecraturi essent, nova et inaudita Archipresbyteri authoritas invitis obtrusa fuerit. Quæ res qualis quamque Deo grata extiterit vel ex ipso successu tum authoribus ipsique Archipresbytero infelici, tum clero ac populo Anglicano pernicioso æstimari potest. Id etiam observatu dignum censeo optimos Pontifices has tam periculosas novitates ex sinistra rerum nostrarum relatione inductos permisisse quas sane ipsa veritate perspecta nunquam passuri fuissent. Ex quo postremo manifestum evadit quam necessum sit ut cleri Anglicani Procurator in Urbe semper versetur qui rerum Anglicanarum statum ad Sanctissimum Dñum N'rum pro nata occasione referre et ejusdem negotia apud Sanctitatem suam fideliter ac sincere tractare possit.

[Translation.]

A Historical narrative briefly embracing those things which seem to concern the government and jurisdiction held over the English clergy from the beginning of the reign of Elizabeth queen of England until the present year 1621, and which ought to be made known. Composed by John Bennett, an English priest.

Mary, Queen of England, a most holy woman, having departed this life, Elizabeth assumed the reins of government in the year of our Lord 1558. She having determined to restore the heresy which Mary had overthrown, deprived of their fortunes and dignities, all the Bishops, prelates and pastors who opposed her wicked designs and cast them into prisons and chains; and in a few years they were worn out by misery. Thus all hope of preserving the Catholic Religion amongst us seemed clearly gone, since no one would survive who could offer up the Mass or administer the Sacraments. To prevent which ruin certain illustrious men of our nation but especially William Allen (later on made Cardinal on account of his singular merits) divinely inspired, as it is but just to believe, formed a plan by which the seeds of Catholic Religion might be preserved amongst us. With this intention he gathered into one body the Catholic youth, some already in Belgium for the sake of religion, others called out of England; that instructed in learning and piety and invested with holy orders they might be sent into England, to proclaim war against heresy, to strengthen Catholics by their example, their sermons, and the sacraments, and bring back into the bosom of the Church others who had fallen into heresy.

This body of men gathered into Collegiate form, fixed its seat at Douai in Belgium in the year 1568; the most holy Pope of happy memory, Gregory xiii, and the unconquerable king Philip ii of Spain promoting this noble work by their munificence and generosity. This College in a short time grew into a large body, the Catholic youth of England flocking thither to escape heresy; and it sent many missioners of singular piety and constancy into England; some of whom as if imbued with the first fruits of the Spirit, with admirable virtue and fortitude bore witness to the truth by enduring the most cruel martyrdom. Whilst these illustrious champions, in no small number, and with wonderful constancy and singular fruit, carried on God's work, in the year 1580, two Jesuit Fathers were sent to their assistance, and after some years, others, but not in any great number, whom the priests then zealously labouring in England received and treated with the warmest welcome, refusing to them nothing which seemed to make for their honour and esteem. The Jesuits, though few in number, had a superior of their own in the Kingdom, and displayed the form of an ecclesiastical body. The secular priests were without a superior, and as each one was his own leader and law, many of them thought it safer to cling to the body of these fathers and to direct their ways by their advice rather than by their own private opinion. By this means they increased the power of the Jesuits, and won for them no common authority amongst Catholics: and hence it came to pass that when most ample alms, both from the legacies of the dead and the munificence and charity of the living were collected yearly for the support of the imprisoned priests and Catholics in want, the distribution of these alms without difficulty was left to the will of the said fathers.

But with what advice the illustrious Cardinal Allen, then prefect of the mission, put off appointing Bishops over the English clergy, which it is thought he might easily have done, or placed no one clearly as superior in his lifetime, we have not discovered. This one thing is certain, that his authority with the English priests was always so great that words, admonitions, and letters of his, were held for some thing sacred, and his commands were most willingly obeyed, and from that cause they always trusted both themselves and their affairs to his paternal care. The most Rev. Owen Lewis, Bishop of Cassano, an Englishman, illustrious by the uprightness of his character and prudence, and of great weight with Popes Gregory xiii, Syxtus vi, Gregory xiv and Clement viii, survived the Cardinal, and on the Cardinal's death deliberated about placing Bishops over the English clergy. But before these salutary thoughts could lead to some fruits he was taken away by a sudden death.

Deprived of these prelates and protections, as the English clergy judged the Jesuit Fathers were too intent on their own interests and were thought to seek their own convenience, not that of the clergy, and hence arose disagreements and dissensions, and these of frequent occurrence, they were forced to think of choosing a superior for themselves. They determined upon a deputation to the apostolic See, to supplicate for the authority of Bishops and ordinary jurisdiction and that the Pope would deign at length to restore to them the form of an ecclesiastical body by which, in so large a company, discipline might be preserved, and the misery of dissensions avoided. The Jesuit Fathers getting scent of this, and certainly foreseeing, that this so just a petition once proposed to the Holy See, could not be refused; whether because they were unwilling to see their almost settled dominion over the clergy fall to pieces or because they would not bear that their authority over the people should be obscured by the splendour of the episcopacy, or whether they would not suffer the distribution of the alms to be taken from them or at least an account of its distribution required, whether induced by all these and other reasons, it is certain, as done in the theatre of the world, that whilst the priests, suspecting no evil, were deliberating about collecting the money necessary for so long a journey, about the persons to be chosen for the work, about drawing up the instructions and the points to be proposed, two persons were secretly sent out of the country, one being Father Baldwin a Jesuit, the other James Standish a secular priest but already wholly dependent on the Jesuits, who hastened on their journey, and having reached Rome petitioned of Pope Clement viii of happy memory in the name of the English clergy for a superior. There were present at the speech made by Standish, and the Pope's answer, Fathers Persons, Baldwin, John Worthington, William Medcalf, Jesuits, and Martin Aray and John Bennett, secular priests, three of whom still survive, viz. Baldwin, Worthington, and Bennett.

To this supplication the good Pope easily consenting, the carrying out of the matter was put into the hands of Cardinal Cajetan, at that time Protector of England. But he making use of the advice of Father Persons thrust upon the English clergy that new and hitherto unheard of power of an Archpriest in place of Episcopal and ordinary jurisdiction. The Archpriest himself with 12 Assistants assigned to him, were considered either secret Jesuits or men most devoted to them, whom the illustrious Protector in his instructions expressly commanded that the government of the clergy should be carried on by the advice of the Fathers of the Society, and this is amply clear from the letters themselves in the public records. These things being accomplished with the greatest speed, and the Jesuit yoke imposed on the clergy by force and cunning which they had refused to submit to willingly, within a few months whilst the English priests involved in difficulties, prolonged their deliberations, these letters of the Protector constituting the Archpriest, were suddenly published in London in England.

The priests at first were staggered and wonderstricken at the novelty of the thing; then bearing it with difficulty and indignant; then abhorring the cunning and imposture. But lest the Catholic harvest should be set on fire by the flame of dissensions, the priests meeting together besought the Jesuits and the new Archpriest to carry themselves peaceably and to guard against exciting tumults until they themselves might inform the Pope about the state of affairs, which when they had done, if the Pope by his authority wished to confirm and ratify what the illustrious Cardinal Cajetan had instituted, they would refuse nothing but putting away all contention would straightway obey the Pope's command. The Archpriest and the Jesuit Fathers not only treated the proposed condition with contempt but threatened them with suspension of their faculties unless, without stop or delay, they showed themselves obedient to the published letters and acknowledged the authority of the Archpriest.

In the meanwhile the Archpriest made certain laws hitherto unheard of amongst Catholics, viz. that it was not lawful for any priest to write to foreign parts without the knowledge and leave of the Archpriest: that it was not lawful for priests to meet together or without the knowledge of the Archpriest to discuss about any question; and some other propositions to the same effect, with the penalty of the loss of faculties to be incurred ipso facto to those who dared to do the contrary; endeavouring to effect this, that no priest would be able to carry to the Sovereign Pontiff and the Roman Curiâ, a true history of what was done. The said Archpriest having thus fortified his doings on all sides either because they did not acknowledge him as superior or that they were said to have broken the laws he had made deprived all the chief priests of the whole kingdom of their faculties; and one Lister, a Jesuit, brought out a book in the vulgar tongue in which he endeavoured to prove that all the priests, who put off submitting themselves to the Archpriest until the sovereign Pontiff should be informed, were schismatics and rebellious to the Church.

But the English clergy when they saw themselves weighed down by perplexities and difficulties and conjectured from these beginnings that matters would end in an unbearable slavery, judged that they must oppose these beginnings lest by too much patience they might prepare for themselves a too late and fruitless repentance. Therefore they appointed two of the gravest priests,* who taking no notice of the threatenings of the Archpriest, and supplied with informations, letters, and commands, should implore of the Apostolic See a remedy for the evils both existing and about to come. These, relying alone on the justness of their cause, after a difficult long voyage, at length reached Rome; which fact when Father Persons was informed of it, before they came to the Pope or Cardinals, by the authority of Cardinal Cajetan, he caused them to be seized as evildoers and to be handed over to himself to be kept in strict custody within the College, where these innocent priests were shamefully treated for some months and their letters, papers, informations and all their writings taken from them; never having seen the Pope, nor been listened to by anyone in authority, their case unheard they were condemned to exile, one into Loraine, the other to France, both being forbidden under the severest penalties either to go to England or to dare to return into Italy.

^{*} Dr. William Bishop, later on Bishop of Chalcedon, and Robert Charnock.

When the English priests understood these things it cannot be described by what waves of desperation they were tossed about. At home the threats, prisons, chains, sufferings from heretics, endured for the Sovereign Pontiff and dignity of the Apostolic See; but in Rome those decrees against the most deserving priests, which are never found promulgated against any class of evildoers in a well regulated republic. These things succeeding according to the intention of the Archpriest, as if secure and about to render an account of his doings to no one, he goes on in his severities against the priests so that whosoever was not protected by the favour of the Jesuits was straightway deprived of his faculties and good name, his case unheard. Which when it seemed to the clergy not only shameful but unbearable, they determined to bring a remedy or to make trial of the very worst. An appeal therefore to the Apostolic See, strengthened by the most weighty reasons and signed by fifty of the gravest priests, was drawn up to implore of the faith and equity of the Sovereign Pontiff, to defend justice. They placed this appeal before the Archpriest and asked him to defer and cease from injuries whilst the dispute was going on. But the Archpriest not only rejected it, but carried on more violently what he had begun.

To carry out this appeal they determined upon a second deputation to the Apostolic See with a full exposure of their grievances and such proofs as would admit of no disguise or subterfuge. Four* priests therefore of known piety, probity, constancy, and prudence were chosen by their Brethren and all obstacles being overcome, they started on their journey to Rome, and having reached Paris, they stayed there some time. Being timid and cautious, owing to the recent example of their brethren, they besought letters of the most Christian King, to his ambassador at Rome, that under his protection, they might be able to have a safe access to the Sovereign Pontiff.

Having obtained these letters, they hastened on to Rome, where when they had arrived, the said illustrious Ambassador making the way safe, they were paternally received by Clement viii of happy memory, then Pope and most graciously heard. But when they had related the history, full of marvel, of all that had been done, the Pope committed the discussion to two illustrious Cardinals (one of whom was the illustrious Borghese, afterwards Paul v). Before these, on the appointed day, appeared the four priests, and the two Procurators of the Archpriest, to whom was added some Jesuit Fathers as assistants. The Appellant priests objected fourteen articles, and these exceedingly grave, against the Archpriest and the Jesuits. Seven of these were discussed, proved, and sentence passed on the first day. The other seven were not even allowed to be examined, the illustrious Cardinal Borghese, saying the matter was sufficiently and more than sufficiently proved and made clear. An Apostolic Brief at the command of Clement viii was drawn up, in which though it did not please the Pope to recall what had been instituted by Cardinal Cajetan's letters, still it declared all the priests free from the sin of Schism, rebellion, disobedience. It denied that they were deprived of their faculties by any sentence of the Archpriest. It declared the laws made by him were null. It forbade him in virtue of holy obedience to use the advice of the Jesuits in his government of the clergy or to communicate matters regarding the clergy to them, and the instruction of Cardinal Cajetan on this point ceased. It liberated all the appellant priests from his coercive jurisdiction, over whom unless after consultation and permission obtained from the Protector for the time being, it did not allow him the power of decreeing anything. It commanded an equal distribution of the alms for the future. manded that three of the Appellants be chosen into the number of the Assistants, and that henceforth he should practise greater justice, charity, and moderation, in the exercise of his office. It commanded some other things which are contained more fully in the Apostolic Brief now brought out and printed and made public. This Brief indeed by no means restored the discipline necessary for the clergy nor took away the foolish and useless jurisdiction of the Archpriest, but in removing the Jesuit Fathers from the government of the clergy and bridling the fierceness of the Archpriest, it quieted tumults and strifes and in some way established peace to the clergy.

But the Jesuit Fathers that they might escape from the disgrace cast upon them, laid the whole of the blame of the maladministration upon the Archpriest both at Rome and in England. But the Archpriest, when he was made cognisant of this, publicly testified that all these things had come from the Jesuits alone as authors and instigators, whilst he himself was unwilling and opposing. Hence a quarrel having arisen between them, the designs which they had secretly thought of and were not able to bring about, are produced in open day.

But how did this tragedy end? The Archpriest already suspected and odious to the government and by their diligence apprehended and imprisoned, to his lasting disgrace approved of the oath of fidelity, and the Jesuits secretly carrying the matter to the Pope, he was deprived of his authority and jurisdiction and another* procured by these same men was appointed in his place, the clergy being unaware and unconsulted. When it was made known to the clergy that they had a new Archpriest, whom they suspected from the recent example of his predecessor had been promoted by the faction of their adversaries, they contemplated making a new appeal to the Apostolic See that they might be able by a canonical remedy to ward off the violence and the injuries which they rightly seemed to fear. But some of the graver priests, desiring to avoid quarrels. thought to try if all could be smoothed over by peaceful means and the scandal, sure to follow from contention, be prevented. Therefore they came to the new Archpriest and firstly asked him to solemnly promise them to observe the Brief of Clement viii not to consult the Jesuits in his government of the clergy. Then that he would choose his assistants from the graver priests as occasion offered. Finally that as Pastor and Father he would employ all his deliberations for the advancement, convenience and utility of the clergy, and not strive to build up alien structures on their ruin. To all which (as he was a man of a prudent and humble disposition) he solemnly and on the word of a priest promised, and they in their own name and that of the whole clergy acknowledged him for their superior and promised him entire obedience. And at length they lived in the most perfect peace and love under him to the end of his life. Regarding this man it is to be noted how he was forced to rule the clergy with this useless jurisdiction; for almost the whole of the six years in which as Archpriest he presided over the clergy, not a month nor a day passed in which by himself and his assistants he did not complain of the inconvenience of this jurisdiction and supplicated for it to be changed into ordinary. Therefore at his own great expense he maintained an agent* at Rome almost the whole of his time to entreat for Episcopal jurisdiction over the clergy. But why this was refused, by no conjecture could we ever understand: or why when he died another ₱ with the same authority was put in his place, we protesting: we know of no explanation of this. This one thing we have clearly understood that the last Archpriest, certainly a most pious man, often and for long deliberated about resigning the Arch-priesthood at the feet of his Holiness with the protestation that with a safe conscience he was not able to bear so useless a burden from which he could produce no usefulness to the flock nor rightly render an account as was just, to his Holiness, of the administration of his office.

This narrative contains only those things which are taken either from the most trustworthy historians of our affairs or from those things which were done, with the world as a witness and onlooker, and set down in the public records, or finally are found witnessed in the Apostolic letters. From this narrative it can be easily understood how it was that after the heresy revived by Elizabeth, the Catholic Bishops in England, created by Mary, became extinct and no one whilst they lived seemed to have troubled about consecrating others. These being dead, Douai Seminary erected and priests in great number sent into the English harvest in Cardinal Allen's lifetime, this new clergy had neither a superior nor had asked for one. From which, this inconvenience happened, that since within the confines of the kingdom they had not an ordinary superior to preserve discipline and protect the form of an ecclesiastical body, the fatal seeds of strivings and discords were sown, which surely could have been easily prevented by the authority of an ordinary superior. From this same narration it is made clear how on Allen's death when the clergy besought from the Apostolic See, Bishops as a remedy of these evils, the new and unheard of authority of an Archpriest was thrust upon them, against their will.

Which thing such as it is and how pleasing to God, will be apparent from its unhappy issue both to the authors of it and to the Archpriest himself, and it can be judged, how fatal to the clergy and English people. This also I think is worthy of observation that the best of Popes, permitted these so dangerous novelties, persuaded to it by the perfidious relation of our affairs, which doubtless would never have been allowed, if the truth had been known. From which fact, it becomes manifest how necessary it is that an agent of the English clergy should be always at Rome, who is able to relate the state of our English affairs to his Holiness, as occasion occurs, and to carry on the business of the same, with his Holiness, faithfully and uprightly.

(ii) Papers Relating to Doctor Richard Smith, Bishop of Chalcedon, and his Jurisdiction 1625-33.

The following papers, chiefly from the archives of the Old Brotherhood, regard Bishop Richard Smith, whom the Pope appointed to succeed Dr. William Bishop, Bishop of Chalcedon, on his death April 1624. There is a notice and portrait of Bishop William Bishop, vol. ii of our Records, and so it is fitting that there should be some notice also of the second Bishop for England after the so-called Reformation, Dr. Richard Smith. There are unkind remarks on him in two places in C.R.S., The English Martyrs, v, 393-6. These papers I hope will place the Bishop in a better light. His life as Bishop was destined to be almost from the first a troubled one. His previous history was as follows: He was born at Potter-Hanworth, Lincolnshire, in 1568. For a short time he was a student at Trinity College, Oxford. He went to the English College, Rome, in 1586, and was ordained priest there in 1592. He then went as Professor of Philosophy to the English College, Valladolid, from 1593 to 1596, and received his doctor's cap there. In 1598 he went to the English College, Seville, to teach. He returned to England 1603, and was settled at Battle Abbey, the residence of the Dowager Viscountess Montagu, whose chaplain he was, and whose life he afterwards wrote and published at Rome in 1609. She left him an annuity in her will. In 1609 he went to Rome as the agent of the Archpriest Birkhead and the secular clergy, and stayed there a year and a half. He was afterwards at the College of Controversial Writers at Arras, and a long list of his works proves his capability. Several are quoted in Gillow's Dict. Engl. Caths. v. 512-14.

On the death of Bishop William Bishop, his name was sent to Rome, amongst others, as fit to succeed the deceased Bishop, and the choice of Rome fell upon him. He was consecrated under the same title of Chalcedon on January 12th, 1625, and according to Southcote's Note Book (C.R.S., i, 100), came over into England the end of April. This same Note Book, prepared for the press by the Rev. John Morris, S. J., tells us under the date 1627 "there began a controversy about approbation between the Bishop and the regulars, Jesuits and Benedictines chiefly, in April," and, again, "The faction of the regulars against the Bishop of Chalcedon grew strong and hot, and was earnestly prosecuted both at home and abroad." The generally received account of the Bishop's doings was, that he wanted to exercise an external jurisdiction and erect an external tribunal to prove wills, exact tithes, etc., which would bring the Catholic laity into danger of the loss of their goods and their lives. The best answer to this grossly exaggerated account of what the Bishop aimed at is the following calmly-reasoned letter which he addressed to the lay-Catholics, and the short letter In the letter to the layin answer to the three lay-gentlemen. Catholics, he shows that the dispute did not concern the laity at all. but the regular clergy, and he gives the following four points to be considered: 1st, what it was he demanded of the regulars; 2nd, with what authority; 3rd, upon what cause; 4th, in what manner. In his short answer to the lay-gentlemen he shows that he could not by any possibility have attempted any external tribunal. Two proclamations came out one after another against him. He was a hunted man: a price was set upon his head: he had to lie concealed. Southcote's Note Book says, 1628: "The Bishop of Chalcedon was declared guilty of high treason for exercising Episcopal jurisdiction in England by a proclamation of the 11th December 1628," and again in March 1629 (Ibid., p. 105): "The Bishop had to conceal himself more carefully." In one of his letters he says "from my hiding place." The regulars were up in arms against the Bishop, but not content with keeping the dispute, which was really between themselves and the Bishop, to those it concerned, they stirred up the laity, especially the nobility, to opposition to the Bishop, and got up a protestation, signed with the names of the principal nobility and gentry, against the Bishop and sent it to Rome, as if the chief Catholic laity were leagued against him and wished for his withdrawal out of the country. Many of the names affixed were proved to have been used unfairly, some even untruly, and some whose names were there were at the time mere infants. The paper describing the deathbed retractation of Sir Nicholas Fortescue, which will follow, refers to this protestation. The Viscount Montagu was a conspicuous instance of fidelity to the Bishop, and a letter of his is printed here.

There is a letter from the Vicar Apostolic of Holland, who had had experience of much the same troubles. Also a letter of sympathy from the Bishop of Ossory in Ireland, David Rothe, the author of the famous book Analecta. A few letters and papers of the regulars are here printed which prove their animus to make a row against the Bishop both at home and abroad. The Bishop withdrew into France, according to Southcote's Note Book, August 24, 1631. Two letters are here to the Bishop in France from George Leyburn, * at that time one of his officials, who had gone over to Calais with the Bishop and safely returned to London, describing what was going on for and against the Bishop in his absence. There is a letter from John Southcote, * author of the Note Book so often quoted, giving some account of the books in circulation against the Bishop. This is followed by four letters of the Bishop: three to Peter Fitton ats Biddulph his agent at Rome, and one to Lord Weston the Lord Treasurer. Of the Bishop's after-life in France, Mr. Miles Carre vere Pinkney tells us in a small book composed by him called "Pietas Parisiensis, or a short description of the pietie and charitie comonly exercised in Paris, By Thomas Carre Confessor of Sion. Printed at Paris 1666," p. 38: "I remember I have frequently heard from the mouth of that most illustrious and venerable old prelate Monseigneur of Chalcedon (in whose blessed company I had the honour and happiness to be for above 20 years together) who all that time and before, was ordinarily employed by the Archbishop of Paris to give holy orders and the sacrament of confirmation."

* Afterwards President of Douai College.

Alias Lovell alias Clark.

The Bishop and Mr. Carre (Pinckney) were instrumental in founding the first English Convent of Nuns in France, viz. the Augustinian Convent at Paris. The Annals of the Convent will tell us the rest of the Bishop's life: "Mr Carr went to Paris where he knew My Lord Bishop of Chalcedon Dr Richard Smith 2nd Bishop of England from ye fall of religion was resident at ye Palais Cardinall of his Eminence Cardinall de Richlieu. By his means Mr Carr procured letters patent of establishment from ye King Lewis 13th dated March 1633, and enregistered in Parliament ye 31° August 1633. The Lady Abbess was blessed by Bishop Smith 26 March 1634. He consecrated their Church July 1640. On ye 20th December 1642 My Lord Bishop was pleased to take up his residence at ye monastery, taking a little apartment belonging to them, with a parlour to converse with them. There he remained during ye rest of his life, shining in all piety, learning and most admirable holiness of life. He had so great a concern and prayed so fervouressly for ye house that God Almighty favoured him with a supernatural promise or revelation which he communicated to Mr Carr who was his confessor, that he thought he heard a voice whilst he was praying earnestly for ye house that said it should be preserved and not fail. This M^r Carr often spoke of who was very slow in believing supernatural things yet regarded this with much edification and veneration of my Lord Bishop. His Lordship lived 13 years at ye monastery. On the 18th of March 1655 he died and was buried in ye Church of ye Monastery before ye high altar." The Bishop's prayer for the preservation of the English convent was wonderfully answered, for the community remained in the same house until the time of Napoleon III, when in 1860 they had to move to the Boulevard Eugène, Neuilly. They celebrated their fifth Jubilee in 1884.

It may be well to notice that in the Camden Miscellany, vol. ii, 1853, "Discovery of the Jesuits' College, Clerkenwell," some of the foregoing papers are in the list of papers found there, and are now in the Record Office, but they have never been printed before. The Miscellany gives an interesting though short notice of Bishop Smith.

It was through Bishop Smith that St. Cuthbert's College, Ushaw, now possesses St. Cuthbert's ring, which the Bishop at his death left to the convent where he died. The nuns, who had carefully and reverently preserved it for over two hundred years, as the gift of their co-founder, gave it to Cardinal Wiseman for St. Cuthbert's College, and the Cardinal placed it at Ushaw during the Jubilee celebration in 1858. Archbishop Eyre, in his Life of St. Cuthbert (2nd edition, p. 308) confuses Bishop Richard Smith, the owner of St. Cuthbert's ring, who died in 1655, with Bishop James Smith, Vicar-Apostolic of the Northern District from 1688 to 1711.—R.S.

A TRUE COPIE OF THE BISHOP OF CHALCEDON'S LETTER TO THE LAY-CATHOLICKS OF ENGLAND (16 Oct. 1627).

Right Honorable Right W^{II} and Right Worthy Catholicks.—Having understood that some of yu either through mis-information or for want of due information have taken offence that I mooved unto the R^d Regular Priests their requiring of my approbation to heare the confessions of secular persons and that this chaunced to yu at that time when I being busied in my pastorall function in the remotest parts of the realme, did not know that yu were made soe much as acquainted with the matter, I have thought it my dutie as well for mine owne discharge as your satisfaction to informe yu as fullie thereof as the brevitie of a letter will permit nothing doubting but that if yu had knowne soe much from the beginninge yu would rather have given me thanks than taken anie manner of offence at the same, and allbeit such as refuse to demaund my approbation have had this advauntage of me to prevent me in this informing yu (which I of purpose forbare to doe least I should disquiet yu with a matter which if they had pleased, had bin ended without your knowledge) yeat have I such assurance in the justice of my cause and your juditious and charitable construction of my proceeding, as I feare noe disadvantage of time.

Four principall points therefore are to be considered in this matter: first what it was I demaunded of the What things are regulars and secondlie with what authoritie I to be considered. demaunded it, thirdlie uppon what cause or occasion, fourthlie in what manner, in all which if my act is justifiable no man can justlie be offended with it. As for that which I demaunded of the regulars, it was nothing What I demaunded touching their faculties which I meant not so of the regulars. much as to meddle withall, much lesse to take away or in anie sort to limitte or restraine as some have misreported. but it was onlie concerning theyr personall approbation which according to the Canons and generall practize of gods Church all priests (except onlie parish priests) as well all regulars as seculars are bound to have of the Bishop or ordinarie before they can heare the confessions of anie secular person though he be a priest. Now for regulars to demaund this approbation of a Not ill but good. Bishop or ordinarie is not ill but good, an act of vertue to wit of humilitie and Christian obedience to the Canons of the Church which commaund it: which kind of vertuous acts become religious men more than others because they professe these vertues more than others doe, neyther was it hard for them to performe because I offered to theyr superiours that if they would give me a list of the names of all theyr bretheren whom I knew I would presently approove them and that the rest might either come to me or to anie one of my vicars generall and that if they found any difficultie therein I would appoint some others to approove them wheresoever they would. Neyther was it prejudiciall to them because I allwayes pro-Not prejudiciall. tested that if they would shew me anie priviledge whereby they were exempted from approbation eyther of ordinaries in generall or of me in particular I would presentlie relinquish my demaunds. Yeat to this day have they not produced any such priviledge, yea allbeit at the first they pretended theyr priviledges, yeat now seeing the weaknesse of such theyr pretence they seeme to stand uppon the insufficiencie of my authoritie for the demaunding of any such thinge. Neyther finallie is it a Not Strainge. strainge thinge for regulars to demaund the said approbation of ordinaries but (as themselves know) usuall in all Christendome and practised by regulars as they professe in a late booke of theirs entituled "An answere to a great prelate," wherein they acknowledge that they are at the Bishops feet when they are to have approbation to heare the Confessions of secular persons and that none of them doth heare confessions without theyr consent or atleast of their vicars generall according to the Councell of Trent. Thus you see that what I demaunded of them was not ill but good, an act of vertue and that commaunded by the Canons of the Church, not hard but easie to be done of them, not prejudiciall but agreeable to theyr priviledges, not strainge but usuall to them in all countries where ordinaries be soe that in this respect they could leese nothing in yeelding to my demaund nor I wronge them in proposing it.

As for the authoritie wherewith I demaunded it, that is as great as any ordinarie hath or can have to demaund the same of regulars in his cittie or diocesse for I had to demaund it. his holines in expresse tearmes by his Breve giveth me in England all and everie facultie which ordinaries have or can have in theyr citties and diocesses. Now it is most certaine and confessed by the regulars in theyr woords before cited that ordinaries have facultie to examine and approove Regulars in theyr diocesses. And to think that facultie is no power is to be ignorant of the common use of the woord for as St. Thomas sayeth faculty according to the common use of speech signifieth a power which a man hath at his will. Likewise to say that under the name of faculties is not comprehended jurisdiction is to deny the very definition of jurisdiction given by lawyers and devins who define iurisdiction by facultie as by the genus or gender thereof and therefore who giveth all faculties that appertaine to ordinaries must needs give all theyr jurisdiction as who giveth all faculties of a reasonable soule must needs give freewill because freewill is defined and comprehended under the sayed faculties as under the gender thereof. Moreover if by faculties be not comprehended jurisdiction regulars here in England should have no jurisdiction in the court of conscience because they have it under no other tearme than of faculties and consequentlie they could not absolve because as the Councell of Trent and Florence declare absolution cannot be given without jurisdiction. But howsoever the bare name of faculties did not include jurisdiction, cleare it is that by all and everie faculty which ordinaries have or can have jurisdiction is comprehended. And this allsoe his holiness yeat farther declareth when immediatelie after the graunt of the sayed faculties he appointeth that appeales in secunda instantia shall be made from me to his Nuncio in France, whereby he plainlie declareth that under the name of faculties of ordinaries he had made me judge in prima instantia as ordinaries If any object that neverthelesse my power or jurisdiction is not ordinarie but deligat I answer that to this purpose it importeth little whither my authoritie be ordinarie or deligat soe longe as it is as ample as the authoritie of ordinaries for soe by vertue of this authoritie I may examine and approove regulars as well as other ordinaries do by vertue of theyrs and if I have this authoritie as an ordinarie I can doe it jure communi: if I have it as deligat of his holinesse I can doe it constitutione speciali but much more forciblie and stronglie because (as the law sayeth) the authoritie of the Pops deligat is greater than the authority of an ordinarie and the reason given by the law is because this authority is the Pops authority and he representeth his person and therefore who resisteth the Popes deligats authority resisteth the Popes owne authoritie. But in truth his holines by his Breve hath not made me a deligat but a true ordinarie in England: for this difference is betwixt an ordinarie and a deligat that an ordinarie hath authoritie of his owne or in himself though given him by Prince lawe custome or some approved community but a deligat (as the law sayeth) proprium nihil habet sed ejus qui mandavit jurisdictione utitur, hath no authority of his owne but what he doth, he doth it by the authoritie of his delegant. Now evident it is that his holiness doth not give me his owne authority for he sayeth not impertimur tibi facultates nostras or delegamus tibi authoritatem nostram as he would have saved if he had meant to make me his deligat and not an ordinarie. Neyther doth he make me deligat of other ordinaries for neyther have they anie authority in England neyther doth he say impertimur tibi facultates quas alii ordinarii habent in Anglia but he giveth me an authority of mine owne that is peculiar to myself in England which is not the authority of his holines but distinct and far inferiour to it as the authoritie of other ordinaries is, year equall notwithstanding to theyr authoritie and thereby maketh me as true and absolute an ordinarie in England as other ordinaries are in theyr diocesses. The onlie difference is in the manner of making, for whereas they are ordinaries made ordinario modo, I am an ordinary made extraordinario modo (as the lawyers speake) as Legats Nuncios and such like are ordinaries who though they be made extraordinarilie and for a time and at the good pleasure of his holines and perhaps be also ordinaries of other places yet are true ordinaries of the Province to which they are sent. Moreover by the common consent of civilian canonists and Divins deligatus a principe ad universitatem causarum est ordinarius, one delegated of a prince to an universalitie of causes is an ordinarie and this is most evident in his holines's legats, Nuncios vicars general. Chiefe penitentiaries and the like. Now cleare it is by my Breve that I am delegated by his holines to an universalitie of causes belonging to ordinaries. Finallie the congregation of Cardinalls de Propaganda fide hath not onelie writ to me and to my predecessor letters with this title ordinario Angliæ et Scotiæ but allsoe hath graunted faculties to regulars for England with this clause de consensu ordinariorum and warned me to appoint divers priests recognoscere the letters patents and faculties of such as have bin sent or shall hereafter be sent into England, least they remaine there anie longer without fruite which is a farr greater matter than I demaunded of regulars. Nevther is this authority of an ordinarie dangerous but rather usefull to the present state for our late authoritie useful

sovereigne Kinge James in his wisdome did forsee

and say in the conference at Hampton Court, no Bishop no King which though he meant of Protestant Bishops yet is it in some sort allsoe true of a Catholick Bishop, for if in former times we had bin so happie as to have had a Catholick Bishop who would have given to God that which is Gods and to Cæsar that which is Cæsars, it is most like that there had bin noe libellinge nor practisinge against the Prince, his state or person by anie Catholicke, as sometimes there was when (as the Scripture sayeth of the Israelites for wante of a Kinge) everie Catholicke did what he thought good because there was no Bishop in England. The present state may have more assurance of Catholicks by means of a Catholicke Bishop if he be obeyed in such sort as he should than they can have by theyr owne meanes alone for by means of the Bishop the state may have a duble bond to oblige Catholicks to theyr allegiance and dutie to wit spirituall by means of the Bishops authoritie and temporall by theyr owne authoritie which dubble bond will be harder to breake than a single bond alone would be. And thus much for my authoritie touching which if anie desire further satisfaction I ame readie to give it them.

As for the motive or cause why I mooved this matter to the regulars it was (as God, my conscience and some laymen can beare me witness) the quiett of your consciences and assurance that your confessions should be valid and out of all doubt, for when certaine lay persons both judicious and vertuous had read Pius y his Bull concerning both judicious and vertuous had read Pius v his Bull concerning this point wherein he decreeeth all to be voyed and of no effect which regulars eyther wittinglie or unwittinglie doe in this matter without the approbation of the ordinarie they were much troubled with scruples and doubts least all the confessions which they had made to regulars wantinge my approbation had bin voyed and of no effect neyther could I or theyr confessor fullie satisfie them therein. Which I seeing and fearing that the like scruples and doubts might happen to other secular persons who were committed to my charge I resolved to deale with the regulars to provide for the

Laymen have cause to thank me. quiett of your consciences and the full assurance of your confessions and therefore what cause soever the regulars may have to be offended with me surelie yu have great cause to thanke me for my goodwill and care of your soul's good. And admitt that I had bin in this point too carefull of your spirituall good and overfearfull of your harme yeat sith even in temporall matters abundans cautela non nocet overmuch wariness is pardonable how could anie of you justlie blame me for being too carefull of your spirituall good and fearfull of your like hurt? Sure I am that if I had bin your temporall governour yu would not have blamed me for being too carefull of your lives liberties or goods and being your spirituall Pastor will yu blame me for being too carefull of your spirituall life and everlasting good? Another cause of my mooving this matter may be alleadged that in my consecration I tooke an oath (as all Bishops doe) to observe the holie canons totis viribus and to cause them to be observed of others (and the same is commaunded by the Councell of Trent) amongst which canons this of approbation is one. A third reason is because since I had this chardge two regulars apostotas from theyr order came into England and without all faculties whatsover heard confessions to the great prejudice of soules and scandall of religion. And two other such apostatas did the same before my time, neyther can I hinder this great inconvenience redounding to the great hurt of your soules unles I have the examination and approbation of regulars for apostataes will say that they are regulars as well as others and that therefore I have no more authoritie over them than over others. Many more reasons might be given of this matter but the brevitie of a letter will not admitt them, and these I hope will suffice for this purpose.

As concerning my manner of proceedinge in this matter it was as secrett as charitable and peaceable as I could devise for first I mooved it not to anie regulars I demaunded it. till one of them had mooved it unto me and demaunded my approbation because he could not otherwise satisfie his penitent. Secondlie at the first I mooved it to noe regulars but onelie to the Provinciall of two of the most principall orders here in England hoping by theyr meanes to draw theyr brethren to the same conformitie without anie division or dissention. Thirdlie I mooved it to them in privat, none being present but themselves and if they had kept it from the layitie these had never known of it for to this day have I told it but to four lay persons whom I accounted my speciall friends. Fourthlie I dealt with them in favre manner shewing them the reasons for which I thought they were bound to have my approbation which were soe stronge as not onelie the sayed provincialls thereuppon demaunded my approbation and undertooke to deale with theyr bretheren to doe the like but allsoe divers of theyr bretheren did the same even after they knew that theyr superiours had revoked what they had don. And not onlie secular priests but allsoe all other regular orders in England (as I am informed) besides two did the like. And lastlie when some of them would not demaund approbation upon pretence of prejudicinge theyr order I for the quiettinge of the consciences of theyr penitents offered them that till his holines had decided this controversie I would be content if they asked my approbation not as a thing due to me but as a charitye don to theyr penitents and that I would give it to them under my hand and seale that I would take no advauntage of this theyr demaund to anie prejudice of theyr order and yeat this would not be accepted. Thus yu see that what I demaunded of the regulars was lawfull and was necessarie, was easie, usuall and noewayes prejudiciall to them: that the authority wherewith I demaunded it was lawfull and sufficient. that the cause and motive of demaunding it was both reasonable and necessarie and finallie that my manner of demaundinge it was peaceable and charitable. And now having sayed thus much for my defence in this matter which I hope will be sufficient to anie indifferent man I ame to request some few and most reasonable things at your hands. The first is Things requested of the laytie. that you would deale with such regulars confessors as have not demaunded my approbation to demaund it because the Canons, the Councell of Trent, the See Apostolicke and the congregation of Cardinalls de Concilio have declared that no priest regular or secular can absolve unlesse he have a parochiall benefice or be appropried of the Bishop or ordinarie and the same doe Divins allsoe teach who withall affirme (and the practize of the Church sheweth the same) that under the names of Bishop or ordinarie ar comprehended all that have episcopall jurisdiction. Now it is more than probable by what hath bin sayed before that I ame ordinarie in England and most evident that I have Episcopall jurisdiction and that regulars here have no parochiall benefice. Besides regulars in demaunding my approbation do themselves no wrong as is manifest by what hath bin sayed and doe you great pleasure in preventinge scruples and doubts about the validitie of your confessions. And who is he that without anie prejudice of his owne, will not put his friend out of all doubt in soe important The second is that as I have as year don nothing that hath increased your temporall troubles soe hereafter I will be as carefull thereof and I shall be glad to take your advice for preventing anie such inconveniences. Likewise that I intend not to use my authoritie to the prejudice or wronge of anie religious order but desire with all my hart that they freelie enjoying theyr priviledges and leaving me and the clergie our rights, we may all in Christian peace and charitie every one in his ranke, labour for gods glorie and the salvation of soules. The third point is that vu would not easilie believe things spoken against me till you heare what I can say for myself, nor suffer others in my absence to dishonour me or to alienate the hearts of Catholicks from me, for this were not well don towards anie privat man much less towards your spirituall father and pastor whose honour and fame yu are bound to maintaine as much as in yu lieth. And (as the regulars professe in theyr for sayed answer) if there be anie thing in prelats to be wished otherwise it is not in publicke that we must proclaime it and soe to begin to mangle theyr reputation. Theyr name and theyr life ought to be as the sun which is ever crowned with beames and glorie and a man must never be soe adventrous as to interpose the moone of anie passion or indiscretion to ecclipse the faire lights of the world. S. Hierome sayeth that he was ashamed that some out of theyr cells should give judgement upon Bishops and that god forbid that he should speake anie ill of those who are the successors of the Apostles. And in another place that the safety of the Church consisteth in the honour of Bishops and S. Cyprian addeth that all schismes and heresies arise from contempt of Bishops and who is not with the Bishops is not with God. The Holy Church in the consecration of a Bishop accurseth them who curse him and blesseth them who blesse him. Our Blessed Saviour announceth that who despiseth them despiseth him and the Holie Ghost having appointed them to governe the Church who spurneth against them spurneth against the Holie Ghost. Catholicks together with the holie fathers define a Church to be a people united to a Bishop and a flocke adhering to theyr Pastor and therefore who seek to divide the people from theyr Bishop and pastor seeke the ruine and overthrow of the Church. Finally the holie Canons commaund all priests and monks to be deposed and laymen to be excommunicated who make factions against theyr Bishop. It may be that some of yu uppon humane infirmitie not having bin heretofore acquainted with Episcopall authority nor accustomed to ecclesiasticall discipline may now at the beginning especially being incited by some others account it strainge but if yu consider that as the apostle sayeth "all discipline for the present certes seemeth not to be of joy but of sorrow but afterwards it will render unto them that are exercised by it most peaceable fruite of justice." Yu will be glad both of the authority and discipline for besides many other spirituall benefitts it is a most needfull and effectuall meanes to procure that peace which yourselves and all good men so much desire between the secular and regular clergie and which is between them in other countries where this ecclesiasticall discipline is observed. For if (as S. Hierome sayeth) even among so few as twelve and soe perfect men allsoe as they were yet our Saviour thought it necessarie to make one head of all the rest, to take away occasion of schisme or dissention. How much more will some subordination be necessarie amongst so manie hundreds of priests and them so farre inferiour in perfection to the Apostles? Neyther can there be anie subordination more sweet or more effectuall than that which is presented by the holie Canons and generally practised in the Catholicke Church which if it were here practised as it is in Catholicke countries, it would assuredlie produce the like effects of peace which there it doth. And if yu seriouslie consider this without passion or partiall affection to this or that order but looke onelie to the common good of our afflicted Church, noe doubt but for your parts you will endeavour the best you can to further it and in the meantime follow the commandment of the sayed apostle in the next chapter saying Obey your prelats and be subject to them for they watch as being to render account for your soules that they may doe this with joy and not mourning for this is not expedient for yu. Pray for us for we have confidence that we have a good conscience willing to converse well in all. And I hope in gods goodness and your vertuous disposition that as your fayth through this long triall hath appeared more precious (as St. Peter speaketh) than gold tried by fiar soe your obedience to the Holie Canons and my authoritie to see them putt in due execution will appear through this opposition and diverstie of opinion more cleare and evident than otherwise it would: and that yu, loving god as yu doe all will cooperat to your good for which end both my Episcopall authoritie was instituted by god, given by his vicar and receaved by me, the height of whose ambition is onelie to serve vu. For as a most worthie Bishop sayed most trulie, we are christians for ourselves but Bishops for yu and whether we be priests or Bishops we are to offer sacrifice for yu, to administer sacraments to yu, to adventure our lives for yu for all things (as the glorious apostle sayeth) are yours whether it be Paul or Apollo or Cephas or the world or life or death or things present or things to come for all are yours and yu are Christs and Christ is Gods, whose peace be ever with yu all most deare and most worthy Catholicks. 16th October 1627.

Yours to serve in Christ Jhesus Rich Chalc.

"The 3* Laye Gentlemens Letter to My Lord Bishop" (1627).

(Endorsement as above.)

Right Reverend father in god. Wee have sene a letter of your Lordships of the 16 of October directed to the lave Cath: of this nation. Soe much thereof as doth nott immediatlie concerne ourselves wee shall endeavour to lay asyde. But for as much as there is other matter which importeth our persons and posteritie with all that which can be deare unto us in this world, wee shall most humblie declare what sence wee haue and what judgment wee are inforced to make thereof. Your Lops letter consisteth of foure pointes whereof wee conceive the second principallie to concern us which is of your authoritie as ordinarye delivered by you to us in these words. As for the authority wherewith I demanded itt that is as great as any ordinarye hath or can have to demand the same of regulars in his cittye or diocesse. 20 and am made a judge in prima instantia. 3º And equal authoritye and therebye maketh me as true and absolute an ordinarye in England as other ordinaryes are in their diocess. 40 Itt is cleare by my breefe that I am delegated by his holines to an universalitie of causes belonginge to ordinaryes. 50 and hath been stiled by the Cardinals de propaganda fide ordinarius Angliæ et Scotiæ. These passages with the whole scope of the second part of your Lordships letter argue your Lordship to assume your authoritye over the laye Cath: to be as great in England and Scotland as any ordinaries exercised in Cath: tymes and nowe is exercised in Cath: contryes. The extent of this assumed authoritye concerning the laitie wee shall humblie crave leve to lay open to your Lordship. First an ordinarye hath power of questioninge and provinge of wills. 20 of grantinge of administrations, 30 of decidinge of controversies of Tythes, 40 of contracts marriages divorses alimonie bastardye And fiftlye of slaunders and many other. In which causes examinations are to be taken upon oath and sentences and censures will followe. Nowe controversies of this nature have mixture with temporall authoritie concerning our temporall fortunes. And have bene by our temporall lawes and statutes so assisted, altered and directed both in the tymes of our Cath: and protestant princes as hath seemed convenient to the Church and state of these kingdomes from tyme to tyme. All which are soe already settled as that any innovation is most dangerous as beinge contrarye both to divers ancient and moderne lawes. For the erecting of a tribunall about the administringe any course of justice eyther distinct and much more if itt be contrarye to our lawes is an offence of high treason. And that all they that submitt and conforme themselves thereunto maye be drawen within the compasse thereof or of misprision of treason or premunire attleast if they have any little privitie and participation thereof. Besydes that the execution of the authoritye of this tribunall in soe manye cases as will dailye arise allowe noe possibilitie of secrecie, and will provoke the present government to an exact search after itt and suppression thereof. Itt may therefore easilye appeare unto your Lordship howe dangerous itt is for the laitie to submitt and conforme ittself thereunto and unsafe even to have bene soe longe silent to your Lordship by whome it hath bene soe procleymed and published. Moreover the inconveniences must be great which were to followe out of the contrarietie of such sentences as will often happen betweene your Lordships courts and the courts of these kingdomes. These dangers are soe known and have by us bene soe naturelie considered that they admitt noe further question thereof. And if they had bene soe understood abroad together with the considerations of our longe sufferings and present estate of misereyes wee presume noe such authoritye would have bene imposed upon Neyther cann wee be persuaded that there is a necessitie of conforminge ourselves thereunto as to a matter of faith or yett that wee can be obliged to loose our states and ruine our posterities where the necessitie of profession of faith doth not oblige us. Wee alsoe most humblie beseech your Lordship to beleeve that this which wee doe here present unto you is the sence of the laitie. And we desire that itt may be made knowne both here and abrode for which wee cannot receed for the reasons formerlie expressed. To the rest of your Lordships letter nott soe directlie concerning the generall state of the lave Cath: butt rather the regulars. Wee humblie beseech your Lordship that wee may nott be called into more interest and prejudice thereby than wee were in the tyme of your Lordships predecessor. And that these differences may be carryed with such charitie sweetness candor and without noise as may advance that union wherein your Lordships desyres and ours, are to meete for the greater good of our contrye. And thus wee most humblie take our leves of your Lordship.

Resting your Lordships obedient Lay Catholics of England.

THE BISHOP'S ANSWER TO THE 3 GENTLEMEN (2 Oct. 1627).

Deere Syr, I have receaved a letter without date or name but delivered by three gentlemen unto M^r Far: for to send to me in answer of a part of my letter to the laie Catholicks: and withal the substance of the discourse which they had with him. The text seemed sharp but the comment and exposition made thereof by them to him did sweeten the matter. And if they desire no more than that I will not execute my authoritie to their danger or trouble they both have and had what they desire. For as I have not hitherto done so nether intend I hereafter to doe anything that may increase their temporal troubles which I would ease if it lay in my power. The authoritie itself can bring trouble to none but to myself and the execution thereof shall not increase their troubles. I pray you certifie you them of this and withal excuse me that I answer not them by letter at this time because whatsoever I write is carried to the state and increaseth my danger. Let them also know that lately for the desire I have of the peace of theirs and other mens consciences I have made an offer to the superiors of Regulars that I will approve them and all their subjects if they will but ask my approbation as a charitie done to their penitents and not as a thing done to me till his Holiness decide otherwise: or if this course like them not, let them but propose some other reasonable course which may procure the same quiet of consciences in all and I will accept thereof. For as in the moving of this matter I sought the quiet of the consciences of the laitie and the assurance of their Confessions so I doe still and if that can be had by any reasonable way I have my desire. No more at this present but sweet Jesus be ever with you and us all. Yours assured

D.—Letter of Philip Archbishop of Philippi and Vicar Apostolic of Holland to Richard Smith Bishop of Chalcedon. 26 July 1628.

Revendissime Domine Confrater, Gratissimum nobis fuit videre litteras Rmæ Dñationis vestræ communium studiorum et difficultatum indices, nihilque perinde in vobis foret, quam si per mutuam communicationem aliquid hic inde percipere possemus solatii: facile colligo non absimiles nostris esse vestras difficultates cum regularibus qui ægre satis eam quam profitentur præstant obedientiam non solum ordinariis in quorum subsidium mittantur sed etiam Sedi Apostolicæ, ita ut nuper quidem prælatus Romæ Generali cujusdem ordinis ministro dixerit videri sibi quod Regulares eatenus tantum obediant mandatis suæ Sanctitatis quatenus per ministros justitiæ ipsos valet constringere. Experimur hic non obstantibus resolutionibus a Smo D. Não datis A: 1623, quibus inter cætera jubentur Regulares obedire in iis quæ curam animarum in hisce partibus concernunt Vicario Apostolico tanquam specialiter Sedis Apostolicæ delegato, ipsos tamen suo more omnem ordinem evertere, imo studiose id agere, ut perturbato ordine ipsi agant omnia pro placito ac pietatem quæstum faciant. Mandavit Sua Sanctitas non semel per se et sæpius per Nuncium Apostolicum accurate servari concordata inter nos et Regulares intervenientibus Episcopis Belgii Anno 1624 inita, sed etiam hodie obstrepunt et recusant manifeste. Piget et pudet plures quærelas in Urbe deponere de re illic, ipsis manifestissima. Unum video quod non parum nos consolatur, nempe quod inordinato suo agendi modo id efficiant Regulares apud cordatos homines etiam laicos ut minori in æstimatione vel eo nomine sint quod ordinariam potestatem impugnant et privatis commodis inexplicabili cupiditate studeant. Adverto etiam Romæ tot tantas que ex omni parte de Regularium inordinatione deferri quærelas ut necessaria adhibere debeant remediæ et potestatem ordinariorum magis stabilire nisi et suam velint periclitari. Quod approbationem a Rma Dñatione vestra non requirunt pro audiendis confessionibus secularium non miror: quia fere persuadent sibi nefas est dubitare de ipsorum sufficientia, cum tamen sæpe minime sint idonei: alii opinantur semel quocumque in loco ab aliquo Episcopo admisso ubique admittendos. Satis id (ut opinor) inepte cum non omnium locorum par sit conditio quod difficultates quæ emergunt: ideoque apud Episcopos Belgii ea praxis viget ut singuli Episcopi confessarios etiam alibi admissos de novo examinori curent et approbari: nec video qua ratione id R^{mæ} Dñationi vestræ non liceat a Regularibus eo missis requirere nisi specialiter doceant se in Urbe examinatos et idoneos declaratos, que ubivis terrarum confessiones secularium audiant. Ego quidem quia aliquandiu absens fui ob varia impedimenta huc usque specialem approbationem non ursi circa eos qui putabantur idonei. Sed quia video paulatim irrepere minus probatos, statui accuratius examinare Frivolum satis arbitror quod nos proprie ordinarios non esse dicant: quicquid enim de eo sit, saltem potestatem ordinarii habemus cui accedit Vicaria Apostolica. Ad calumnias et traductiones quas patimur quando non per omnia votis Regularium assentimur jam occalluimus, nec puto tam facile ut solet jam credi detrahentibus. Si quid in Urbe per procuratoris nostri cum vestro communicationem fieri posse putabitur monebo ut noster consilia aliquando cum vestro conferat et de . . . * nos frequentius per literas certiores faciat. Ut autem . . . * dicam quod sentio, adeo tarde ex Urbe aliquid resolutionis habetur, illisque totius orbis negotiis occupatis, nostra tam tenuitur cordi esse videntur aut (si dicere liceat) tam parum fidei nostris relationibus etsi fundatissmis, tribuitur ut tœdeat nos frequentius querelas deponere ac præeligamus in multis gementes tacere ac negotia Deo commendare quam pro humano solatio frustra laborare. Charitas autem Christi urget nos ut stemus pro bono ordine quantum possumus et humilibus precibus invicem juvemus. Deus patientiæ et solatii confortet nos vobiscum ut bone facientes non deficiamus quem etiam oro ut Rmam Dñationem vestram pro utilitate istius ecclesiæ conservet et custodiat velut ut pupillam oculi, Ex Ultraiecto die 26 Julii Anno 1628, Reverendissimæ gratiæ vestræ, humilis frater in Dño Phil: Archieps Philippeñ. Most Rev. Lord and Brother. It was most pleasing to me to see the letter of your Lordship, a sign of our common struggles and difficulties and nothing would be such a help to us as mutual correspondence whereby we might be able to receive some comfort. I easily gather that your difficulties with Regulars are not unlike my own, who reluctantly show that obedience which they make profession of, not only to Bishops to whose assistance they are sent but also to the Apostolic See so that lately a certain prelate at Rome said to the Minister General of one of the Orders that it seemed to him that regulars only obey the commands of his holiness as far as he is able to force them by the ministers of justice. I experience here notwithstanding the resolutions made by the Holy Father in the year 1623 by which amongst other things, Regulars are commanded to obey the Vicar Apostolic as the special Delegate of the Holy See, in those things which concern the cure of souls in this country, that they according to their custom subvert all order, yea do this eagerly that order being overturned they themselves may act as they please and make piety a traffic. His Holiness has commanded more than once in his own person and oftener through the Apostolic Nuncio that the concordat between us and the Regulars entered into in 1624 at the instigation of the Belgian Episcopacy, be carefully obeyed: but to-day they cry out and openly reject it. It grieves and shames me to lay many complaints at Rome about matters here most manifest to themselves. One thing I see which is no little consolation to us, viz. that Regulars by their inordinate way of acting effect this that they are in less estimation amongst wise men, even the laity, on this account because they attack the Bishop's power and are eager after their private advantages with inexplicable cupidity. I notice also at Rome that so many and so great complaints from every part are made about the unruliness of Regulars that necessary remedies ought to be employed and the power of Bishops to be supported unless they wish to see their own in peril. I am not surprised that they do not seek the approbation of your Lordship for hearing confessions of seculars because they almost persuade themselves that it is wrong to doubt their own sufficiency, when however they are often by no means fit. Others think that once admitted by some Bishop in whatever place, they are to be admitted everywhere. This opinion as I think is quite absurd since the condition of all places is not equal as to the difficulties which arise, and therefore the practice of the Belgian Bishops is this that each Bishop takes care to examine again and approve of Confessors admitted from elsewhere: nor do I see why it is not lawful for your Lordship to require this of Regulars sent thither, unless they teach that they are especially examined in Rome and declared fit, who may everywhere throughout the world hear the confessions of seculars. I indeed because I was sometimes away on account of various hindrances I have not up to now required a special approbation concerning those who were considered fit. But because I see by degrees less approved creep in I have resolved to examine more carefully. I consider it mere silliness that they say we are not properly ordinaries, for whatever the case may be at least we have the power of ordinaries to which the Vicar Apostolic is added. As to calumnies and dishonour which we suffer when we do not assent in everything to the wishes of the Regulars, we are already hardened to them, nor do I think detractors are so easily believed now as they used to be. If it is thought that anything can be done at Rome by the communicating of my agent with yours I will let you know that ours may sometimes take counsel with yours: and more frequently inform us by letters. To say what I think, so slowly is a decision about anything drawn from Rome, occupied as they are with the business of the whole world, our matters seem to be so indifferently taken to heart or (if I may so speak) so little faith is placed in our reports although most true that I am weary of oftener complaining and prefer to lament in silence over many things and to commend the matter to God rather than uselessly labour for human consolation. But the charity of Christ urgeth us to stand up for good order as much as we can and let us help each other by humble prayer. May the God of patience and comfort console us both that in doing good we may not fail, and I beg of Him to preserve your Lordship for the good of that Church and to keep you as the apple of his eve. From Utrecht, 26 July 1628.

The humble Brother in our Lord of your most Rev. Grace Philip Archbishop of Philippensis, Vicar Apostolic.

E.—Letter of Viscount Montague to the General of the Jesuits (Vitelleschi). 6 August 1628.

Admodum Reverende in Christo Pater. Pudet me in illorum vituperium vel loqui quidquam vel scribere quos et impense amavi et summis porro laudibus præ cæteris fere quibuscunque mortalibus extuli. Eo certo in patres Societatis Jesu animo affectus fui, eaque de meritis et virtutibus ipsorum opinione imbutus ut cum de illis aliqui subinde quereretur arbitratus tamen fuerim eos vincere in bono malum. Cæterum cum dictos Patres in hoc missione Anglicana servientes perciperem, occasione approbationis a Rmo Episcopo Chalcedonensi habendæ commotos animoque turbatos. a salluberrimis ac plane piissimis Paternitatis Vtræ conciliis jampridem eisdem datis, quibus jubebantur Rmo Episcopo Chalcedonensi cum religiosa modestia respondere ac non tantum deviasse sed quosdam etiam nominatim vero R.P. Provincialem necnon P. Lawrentium Andertonum non vereri partim verbis a religiosa modestia et humilitate alienis derogare, partim etiam scriptis intemperatioribus ipsi Rmo quasi in faciem benedicere, non potui non vehementer dolere et rem secus ac volebam introprotari. Quodnam sit Regularium jus in negotio Approbationis controverso. meum non esse disputare profiteor: sed quod ad illorum modum procedendi attinet qui approbationi adversantur, in quibus prædicti patres Societatis, Monachi Benedictini et duo Domincani recensentur cæteris interim Religiosis hic similiter in missione versantibus nimirum Franciscanis Carmelitis Minimis approbationem haudquam refugientibus) certo optassem plusculum humilitatis et temperantiæ ab eisdem ostensum fuisse. Sed illud etiam merito ægre ferendum videtur quod ad oppositionem suam adversus Rmum Episcopum sustentandam eumdemque affectat erroris revincendum non timuerint iidem patres in litteris suo et aliorum regularium conspirantium nomine ad prædictum R^{mum} missis ipsi con: Tridentino Sess 24. Cap. v. circa matrimonia clandestina statuenti manifesti imponere: quasi a sola receptionione dicti concilii non autem ex decursu triginta dierum post ejusdem decreti promulgationem in singulis Parochialibus ecclesiis provenit, quod præfata matrimonia invalida redderentur et quasi eadem Sacra Synodus in principio præfati decreti non declararet sub Anathemate ejusmodi matrimonia rata esse et vera matrimonia quamdiu ecclesia ea irrita non fecit: quod prius non facit quam prævia Concilii receptione accedat illius decreti specialis in unaquaque parochia cum trigenta dierum decursu promulgatio. Quod hic in Anglia ob defectum Parochorum et Parochialium Ecclesiarum fieri nequit. Porro ut Reverentiæ Vræ bona fide constet quod scribo apposui ipsa verba litere traducta quæ ejusmodi sunt. We are much astonished when we seriously consider in what manner your Lordship without any show of probability in our judgment and also contrary to your own knowledge urgeth this decree of the Council of Trent to prove the confessions of seculars made here to regulars without your approbation to be invalid: seeing that your Lordship knoweth and acknowledgeth as much to your agent that the Council of Trent, for as much as concerneth decrees of Reformation, is not here received nor hath force to bind in this kingdom and therefore in the above mentioned letter you request your agent to procure a dispensation for the full annulling of three clandestine marriages which nevertheless the Council of Trent for the invalidity of absolution given here by Regulars without your approbation to be of force and the decree of the same Council for the invalidity of Clandestine Marriages made here not to be of force. Quod Latine sic sonat. Multum attoniti sumus cum serio consideremus quomodo Rema Dna Vra absque omni specie probabilitatis ut nostra fert opinio atque etiam contra propriam vestram scientiam urget hoc decretum concilii Tridentini ad probandam confessiones secularium hic factas regularibus sine vestra approbatione invalidas esse quandoquidem Rma D. Vra scit et agenti vestro tantundem agnoscit quod concilium Tridentinum quantum ad decreta Reformationis attinet non est hic receptum nec vim habet obligandi in hoc regno ideoque in literis supra memoratis, rogatis agentem Vestrum uti procuret dispensationem ad tria matrimonia clandestina plene irri tanda, quæ tamen concilium Tridentinum ipso facto irritat et invalida facit. Vultne Rma Dom: Vra ut Concilium Tridentinum vim habeat ad invalidandam absolutionem datam hic a regularibus sine Vra approbatione et decretum ejusdem Concilii pro invalidandis matrimoniis clandestinis hic factis vim non habeat. Hæ clausulæ literis Regularium ad Revmum Episcopum Chalcedonensem missis relatæ ex eisdem literis fideliter de verbo ad verbum transcriptæ et a me in Latinum quanta potui fide traducta sunt. Ita testor ego G. Farraris, P.br. Not: Apost: Hactenus ex prædictis literis quibus nomine R.P. Provincialis assensum suum præstitit. P. Lawrentius Andertonus hujus oppo-sitionis e societate facile princeps cum vicario cuidam Generali exhiberetur ad Rmum transmittendæ in quibus quidem literis cum asserunt authores Rmum agnoscere concilium Tridentinum non esse hic receptum nec obligare quodque propterea tria clandestina Matrimonia a sua Sanctitate irritari supplicaverit duplici se vitio constringunt, altero falsitatis arguentes Rmum agnoscere Concilium non esse receptum nec obligari in Anglia, altero imposturæ inferentes matrimonia clandestina ex generali concilii receptione irrita esse ac nulla, de quibus paternitas Vra poterit quam facillime judicare. Neque vero hæc scribo quod vel patres Societatis vel eos qui ex Benedictina sunt familia suis defendendis juribus (seposita omni animi impotentia) operosus incumbere gravate feram, neve quod in Rev. admodum Paternitatem vestrum minus quam soleo (hoc est maxime) sim affectus, vel etiam quod mea in societatem Jesu quam summo honore ac amore sum persecutus adeo deserbuerit devotio ac reverentia ut non ei desideratissima quæque exoptem: sed ut Paternitas Vra intelligat quam acerbo animi dolore perceperim pientissimæ Societatis Alumnos Ecclesiæ Prælatum quem ipsa dignitatis suæ sacrosancta species omnibus venerandum commendare debebat indignius tractare ejusque causa, Sacrum Synodum Tridentinum in alienos sensus detorquere peneque violare ac profanare. De sacramento Confirmationis a Christi fidelibus Patribus Societatis addictis et ab eorundem institutione dependentibus notabiliter neglecto et (quod alios loqui audio) quodammodo contempto multorum querelæ non desunt quas mihi in præsenti accumulare non est animus cum qua in hoc genere scripti ea intentione scripserim ut meam erga paternitatem vram et universam societatem propensionem testatam facerem cum quæ in ejusdem Societatis Patribus improbanda video magna fiducia et (ut spero) religione Paternitati Vro suggero: ut (quod vestra pietas promittit) imposterum caveantur. Valeat Admodum Reverenda Paternitas Vra et mei aliquando in suis sanctis Sacrificiis memor esse dignetur data Londini octavo Idus Augusti M.D. cxxviii Admodum Reverendæ Paternitatis vestræ Studiosissimus. [Translation.]

Very Rev. Father in Christ. I feel ashamed to speak or write anything in blame of those whom I have exceedingly loved and moreover extolled with the highest praise above all men whatsoever. Certainly I was affected with that mind towards the fathers of the Society of Jesus and was imbued with that opinion of their merits and virtues that when anyone complained about them nevertheless I had thought them to overcome evil by good. But when I perceived these said fathers who are working in this English mission, on the occasion of the approbation to be had from the most Rev. Bishop of Chalcedon, agitated and violently moved from the most salutary and pious advice of your Paternity already given to them whereby they were commanded to reply to the most Rev. Bishop of Chalcedon with religious modesty, etc., not only had they turned from that way but that certain ones also, namely the Rev. Father Provincial and Fr. Laurence Anderton did not fear partly by mis-becoming words to detract from religious modesty and humility, partly by the most intemperate writings to the most Rev. Bishop himself as if to bless him to his face: I could not but deeply lament and interpret the matter otherwise than I would wish. What is the right of the Regulars in this controverted matter of approbation I own it is not my place to dispute about; but what regards the manner of their proceedings, who oppose approbation, in which the said fathers of the Society, the Benedictine Monks and two Dominicans are reckoned (the other Religious here living in like manner in the mission namely Franciscans, Carmelites, Minims not refusing approbation) certainly I would have desired a little more of humility and moderation to have been shown. But this also seems deservedly to be suffered with regret that in its endeavours to support the opposition against the most Rev. Bishop and to convict the same of manifest deception, these same fathers in their own name and in the name of the other Religious plotting together, have not feared to play a trick upon the holy Council of Trent, Session 24, Chapter v, decreeing about Clandestine marriages: as if the force of the decree arose from the reception alone of the said Council and not from the lapse of 30 days after the promulgation of the decree in each parish church, that the said marriages were rendered invalid: and as if the same Sacred Synod in the beginning of the said decree had not declared under anathema that marriages of such a kind were approved and true marriages as long as the Church did not annul them which she did not do, before that with previous acceptation of the Council, the special promulgation of that decree in each parish with 30 days grace, was added, which case here in England cannot happen on account of the absence of parish priests and parish Churches. Moreover that your Reverence may be certain of my good faith in what I write I have put down the words themselves literally translated, which are as follows: We are much astonished when we seriously consider in what manner your Lordship without any show of probability in our judgment and also contrary to your own knowledge urgeth the decree of the Council of Trent to prove the confessions of seculars made here to Regulars without your approbation to be invalid: seeing that your Lordship knoweth and acknowledgeth as much to your agent that the Council of Trent for as much as concerneth Decrees of Reformation is not here received nor hath force to bind in this kingdom. And therefore in the above-mentioned letter you request your agent to procure a dispensation for the full annulling of 3 Clandestine marriages while nevertheless the Council of Trent for the invalidity of absolution given here by Regulars without your approbation to be of force and the decree of the same Council for the invalidity of Clandestine marriages made here not to be of force. Thus far from the aforesaid letter to which by name Father Provincial showed his assent; Father Laurence Anderton easily the chief of the society in this opposition when he showed it to a certain vicar general to be handed on to the Bishop, in which letter indeed when its authors assert that the Bishop acknowledges that the Council of Trent is not received here nor binding and that therefore he had petitioned that 3 Clandestine Marriages be annulled by his holiness they fetter themselves with a double deformity, the one of falsehood, arguing that the Bishop acknowledgeth the Council of Trent does not bind in England, the other of imposture inferring Clandestine marriages are invalid and null from the general reception of the Council concerning which your Paternity will be able with what ease to form a judgment. Nor do I write this because I bear unwillingly that the Fathers of the society or those of the Benedictine family exert themselves laboriously in defending their rights (putting aside all passion of mind), nor because I am less inclined to your Paternity than usual. that is most especially: or that my devotion and reverence towards the Society of Jesus which I have treated with the highest honour and love, has so failed that I do not heartily wish to it all that is most desirable: but that your Paternity may understand with what bitter grief of mind I have seen the members of the most pious society treat unworthily a venerable prelate of the Church, the sacred nature of whose rank ought to procure favour from all: the holy Synod of Trent twisted into an alien sense and almost violated and profaned: the Sacrament of Confirmation by the faithful of Christ devoted to the fathers of the Society and dependant on their training notably neglected and (what I hear others speak of) treated with a certain contempt, which complaints it is not my intention at present to accumulate, since what I have written in this kind I have done it with this intention that I may bear witness of my love towards your Paternity and the whole Society, since what I see in the Fathers of the Society to be condemned, with great confidence and (as I hope) with respect I place before your Paternity that what your piety promises, may be guarded against in the future. May your very Rev. Paternity have health and deign sometimes to remember me in your holy Masses. Given at London the eighth of the Ides of August, M.D. cxxviii.

Your Very Reverend Paternity's most devoted.

F.—Letter of the Bishop of Ossory, David Rothe, to Bishop Smith. December 6, 1628.

Perillustrissime ac R^{me} Dñe. Gaudium mihi sed mærore mixtum attulit Epistola R^{mæ} D. V. 4 Julii scripta et post plusculas septimanas vel ut verius dixerim menses mihi reddita. Gaudii causa erat vestra illa non vulgaris humanitas (quam tota spirabat) et promptitudo animi studiumque movendi et præcavendi omnem ansam offensionis ac perturbationis inter operarios utriusque ditionis ac jurisdictionis in qua servanda norma post hæc obsequentes utriusque fore universos opto et confido et quantum in me erit ut ita fiat annitar. Et dum in ista spe conquiesco, tristitia mihi suboritur ex eo quod in iisdem literis subjungit R^{ma} V. de altercatione quorundam Regularium adversus hierarchiam jurisdictionem et Episcopalem authoritatem vestram occasione approbationis quam urgetur et necessario regendam existimatis pro vestra muneris et officii ratione necnon pro ipsius commissi vobis gregis securitate conscientiæ. Ea sane res vera est hodie pluribus in petram scandali ad quam clausis quasi oculis in media luce impingunt, dolendumque si Episcoporum quæ summa esse debet observantia et authoritas ex eo veniat in despectum unde fulciri magis et corroborari ipsam oporteret. In hoc regno reperitur nonnihil diversus hierarchiæ status ab ea qui cernitur in aliis regnis et dominiis puta in Anglia, Hollandia et in similibus quæ protestantium imperio et regimini subsunt. Qui etiam pro nostris consectantur Episcopi tametsi titulares illi et citra pacificam possessionem constituti, maneant, tamen suos titulos ac denominationem obtinent jurisque sui ac jurisdictionis apices ex antiquis territoriis et inproprios greges eo fore tenore ac forma verborum quibus antiquitus et in pace eãbæ provideri illis consuevit in Curia Romana. Sunt igitur hic plures provinciæ metropolitanæ quæ singulæ suos habent Archiepiscopos sive præsentes in partibus sive ex occasione absentes. Sub his diversi Ecratus de suis pastoribus sive Episcopis sigilatim provisi sunt nec pauciores quam decem in universum Episcopi diversis locis dispertiti in Hibernia nunc degunt. Undecimus qui tenebatur in carcere jam ab octo diebus desiit in humanis esse. Ex hoc denario residentium numero unum nuperrime allocutus sum metropolitanum, alterum etiam e nominatissimis apud nos Episcopis cum his duobus sermo mihi serius et cum aliis antea frequens de isto approbationis negotio intercessit. Et quia de mea ipsius diœcesi certior sum quam de cæteris (quamvis non penitus mihi incognitis) liberius hoc quicquid est, de illa possum profiteri quod cum in ea vivant in præsenti diversorum ordinum regulares permulti etiam in ipsa sede cathedrali (quæ Dei providentia est et principis indulgentia seu conniventia) quatuor obtinent diversas residentias et refugiæ seu conventus et in quibusdam ex illis religiosi plures in aliis pauciores cohabitant omnium autem computatione facta excedunt numerum trigessimum. Quotiescumque recentes operarii habitatum huc adveniunt et ex crebra migratione ac mutatione quæ fit non raro ventitant ex transmarinis partibus et aliunde omnes illi præsentantibus eos veteranis sui ordinis habitatoribus se sistunt coram meipso si adsim, sin minus, coram vicario meo generali ut me annuente seu approbante inoffensi valeant liciteque exercere illa officia quæ requirunt approbationem. Idque locum habet tam in concionatoribus quam in confessariis. Siqui vero inter illos essent de quorum sufficientia dubitandi causam haberem, haud securum me crederem si prætermisso personali examine admitterentur. his enim locis nitimur plerique et antecessores nostri antistites conati sunt Tridentinas sanctiones diversis apud nos Synodis receptas et promulgatas (dempto decreto de clandestinis matrimoniis annullandis) in usum et praxim redigere quantum id ferre poscunt loca et tempora in quo standum esse judicio Episcoporum non frustra arbitramur: et ad hanc disciplinæ formam de approbatione præsertim retinenendum suffragari nobis existimamus non solum concilia generalia Viennense Laterañen et Tridentinum sed etiam citeriores sumorum Pontificium constitutiones ac signanter Pii Quinti et

Gregorii xv una cum declarationibus Cardinalium sub eodem Gregorio et sub Urbano viii fæliciter regnante eorumque approbatione editis et sancitis quarum pænes nos authenticum manet transumptum. Hisque et similibus adminiculis freti juxta temporis conditionem instamus operi et qua possimus vigilantia et industria gubernamus diæcesim in varios districtos et parochiis jamdudum distributam pro districtibus seu decanacibus ruralibus, vicarios foraneos constituimur: pro parochiis, pastores qui pastoralia sacramenta omnia puta, Baptismum, extremum unctionem, viaticum, et matrimonii bene-dictionem administrant, et hoc absque obice vel impedimento Regularium qui nisi de licentia ordinarii vel parochorum et in casu raro contingente non attingunt illa munia pastoralia quæ diximus. Si quis autem in ista diœcesi nostra, inordinate ambulans regularis præsumeret recedere ab ista regiminis norma sic apud nos passim usitata, et fere sine contradictione jam practitata, prius a nobis clam vel palam pro ratione delicti admonitum, viis postea et modis idoneis coercendum, et juxta regularia instituta corripiendum, novo jure nobis adminiculante, satagimus in viam reducere. Unum erat quod multum infuscavit Episcoporum in his partibus authoritatem, nimirum quod illis aliquando restrictiores facultates quam quibusdam regularibus privilegiorum communicatione attributæ fuissent: sed provisum est modo et publici Agentis sollicitatione impetratum ut Regularium quidem facultates restringerentur, Episcoporum vero præ illis ampliarentur. Id quod non mediocriter exornat et cohonescat Episcoporum jurisdictionem. Hoc utique sine communis Agentis industria vix sperare potuimus nec incommoda quædam quæ formidare poteramus nisi eo pro nobis excubante avertere a nobis potuissemus unde etiam cognoscimus summam necessitatem retinendi semper in Urbe idoneum negotiorum gestorem qui cum publico mandato nostro procuret negotia. Ideoque in hanc curam incumbimus complures in hoc regno uniti Antistites ut assumpto jam nuper ad Ferneum Episcopatum Rmo Dño Joanne Rochæo qui nostras vices per annos aliquot in Urbe repræsentabat, alius surrogetur quam primum qui urgeat istud opus: Utinam nobis contingat quam maxime aptus et opportunus ut is cum cleri Anglicani et Hollandia id est cum Chalcedonen: et Philippen: Agentibus communia consilia conferat et remedia pariter communia promereatur a sede Apostolica. Nec dubitandum quin res nostræ faciliorem in Urbe et fæliciorem cursum habituro sint si conjunctis humeris eandem sarcimam sustollamus et pro viribus enitamur ne Episcoporum authoritas pedibus insolentium proteratur, ut qui simili navigatione utimur similiter declinemus syrtes et in eundem tranquillitatis portum pari voluntate invehamur. Quid autem indignius aut ecclesiæ Catholicæ perniciosius dici potest aut cogitari quam si capita ecclesiarum particularium loco submota et vel supposita brachiis vel pedibus procultata honorem suum amittant et jurisdictionis suæ dejecta gradu turbentur et vacillent. Intendo in his destinandis ad Rmam Vram Dm. uti consilio Reverendi D. Edwardi Shellæi mihi noti et chari ut ejus

[Translation.]

Most Illustrious and Most Reverend Lord. The letter of your most Rev. Lordship written the 4th of July and after a few weeks or to speak more truly, months, delivered to me, brought to me joy mingled with sorrow. The cause of joy was that uncommon kindness (which the whole letter breathed) and readiness of mind and desire of removing and guarding against all occasion of offence and disturbance amongst the labourers of either authority and jurisdiction: in the keeping of which rule I desire that all of either side would conform, and I confidently hope and as much as I can will endeavour, that so it may be. And while I rest in this hope, sadness arises in me from that which in this same letter your Lordship adds about the dispute of certain regulars against hierarchical jurisdiction and your Episcopal authority on the occasion of approbation which is demanded and you think necessarily, in order to fulfil your duty and office and for the safety of the consciences of the flock entrusted to you. That point of approbation is truly at this time to many a rock of scandal against which with as it were closed eyes, in midday light they dash themselves. It is a thing to be lamented if the reverence and authority of Bishops which ought to be supreme should come to be despised from that very quarter whence it ought to be more supported and strengthened. In this kingdom is found a somewhat different state of the hierarchy from that which is seen in other kingdoms and dominions, such as England, Holland, and other countries under Protestant Rulers. The Bishops who labour earnestly for us, although titulars and established in the peaceful possession of their sees, yet they hold their titles and designation and the fulness of their right and jurisdiction from the ancient territories and over their own flocks, uninterruptedly and with the form of words by which anciently and in peace the same was wont to be provided for them in the Roman curia. There are therefore several metropolitan provinces, each of which has its own Archbishop, whether present in those parts or for some reason, absent. Under these, the different (Dioceses) are provided with their pastors or Bishops; not fewer than ten Bishops, scattered in different localities, now live in Ireland. The eleventh, who was confined in prison eight days ago, ceased to be amongst men. I spoke lately with one of the residential Bishops, a metropolitan, and with another of the most noted Bishops: with these two, I had a serious talk and with others often before, about this point of approbation. And because I am more sure of my own diocese than of others (although they are not entirely unknown to me) and I am able more freely to give evidence about it because there live in it at present many regulars of different orders, even in the Cathedral city itself (which is through God's providence and the indulgence and connivance of the Viceroy). These religious occupy four different residences and homes or convents, and in some of them are many religious, in others fewer; a computation being made of all, they exceed the number of thirty. As often as new missioners come here to make their home and from frequent removals and changes it often takes place that they come from beyond the sea and elsewhere: all these accompanied by the veteran members of their order dwelling here stand before me if I am at home, if not before my vicar general that with my consent and approval they may be able without hindrance lawfully to exercise those functions which require approbation: and this holds good for preachers as well as for confessors. But if there be amongst them those of whose capability I have reason to doubt I would not believe myself safe in admitting them without a particular examination. For in this country most of us Bishops endeavour and our predecessors did the same, to bring into use and practice the Tridentine decrees received and promulgated in our different synods (with the exception of the decree annulling clandestine marriages) as far as places and times require this to be done, a matter which we think rightly ought to be left to the judgment of the Bishop. And as to this rule of discipline about approbation we hold what the general councils of Vienne, Lateran, and Trent especially recommend to us that it ought to be retained: and those lesser decisions of the sovereign Pontiffs and signally of Pius v and Gregory xv, together with the declarations of Cardinals under the same Gregory and under Urban viii now happily reigning, and set forth with their sanction and approval, authentic copies of which are in our possession. Relying on these and the like helps, according to the condition of the time we devote ourselves to work and with vigilance and industry we govern our Diocese, already divided into different districts and parishes. For the districts or rural deaneries we appoint Vicars foran: for the parishes, pastors who administer all the pastoral sacraments viz. baptism, extreme unction, viaticum, and bless marriages and this without hindrance or impediment from regulars, who, unless with the leave of the Bishop or the parish priests and in a case very rarely happening never touch these offices, which we call pastoral. But if any regular, walking irregularly, presume to recede from this our standard of rule thus with us everywhere used and almost without contradiction now practised, he is first admonished by us either secretly or publicly according to the nature of his fault, afterwards checked by suitable ways and means and according to settled rules, reprimanded, a new law helping us, we strive to bring him back to the right path. There was one thing which much lowered the authority of Bishops in these parts, viz. that more restricted faculties were given to them than to certain regulars through the communication of privileges: but it is provided for now and at the request of our public agent it was asked that the faculties of regulars should be curtailed and those of the Bishops amplified, a thing which much adorns and honours the jurisdiction of Bishops. We could hardly have hoped for this without the industry of our common agent nor for the removal of certain other inconveniences which we had reason to fear unless we were able easily to avert them from us through him who was on the watch for us. And hence we know the supreme importance of always retaining in Rome a suitable agent of our affairs who with our public command manages our business. And therefore many Bishops in this kingdom united together, devote themselves to this care that now the Rev. John Roche who for some years represented us at Rome, being lately raised to the Bishopric of Ferns, another should be substituted quickly who may press on that work. Would that one especially fit and suitable to us may be met with, that he with the agents of England and Holland, that is with Chalcedon and Philippensis, may take mutual counsel and may deserve equally mutual relief from the Apostolic See. Nor do I doubt that our affairs will have an easier and more happy course if putting our shoulders together we bear the same burden and according to our strength we strive lest the authority of Bishops be trampled on by the feet of the arrogant: that we who go the same voyage may equally escape the sandbanks and may be carried into the same harbour of rest with the like will. What can be said or thought more unworthy or more injurious to the Catholic Church than that the heads of particular Churches, moved from their position, and even put under the arms or trampled under foot, lose their dignity and cast down from the place of their jurisdiction are violently moved and tossed to and fro. I purpose in sending this to your Lordship to use the advice of the Rev. Edward Shelley, known and dear to me, that by his aid the business of our mutual correspondence of letters between us may be established for the future. One only thing remains, that not failing in courage we pursue with confidence a just and legitimate defence of our right. May God be present to your undertakings. To His Divine protection I suppliantly commend this cause and the safety of your most Rev. Lordship. Your Lordship's most devoted servant and brother to serve you. David, Bishop of Ossery.

G.—DR MATHEW KELLISON* AND OTHERS TO THE BRETHREN IN ENGLAND. DOUAL COLLEGE, 14 Aug. 1628.

Verie Reverend and our much respected Brethren. Wee have received your generall letter by which you desired us as being members of the same body to assist you in these your great troubles caused by the late controversie, which your letter we imbraced with noe lesse feeling than affection. For as we glorie that we are members of your renowned body soe as members should doe, we were as sensible of your difficulties as of our own, fulfilling therein that of the Apostle Si quid patitur unum membrum compatiuntur omnia membra. And therefore by and by we set to paper and seconded your twoe letters to those twoe congregations in most ample manner and with al the reasons we could think of, yea and with all the vehemence that either our modestie or their authority would permit, esteeming your cause our cause, yea the Churches cause, yea God his cause. For wee are of opinion that we being members of our body cannot subsist unles we helpe one another and we think with the Apostle aforesayd, that non potest oculus dicere manui operâ tua non indigeo aut iterum caput pedibus non estis mihi necessarii. Wee, as wee acknowledge, cannot stand unless you helpe us with prentises and meanes to mainteyne them as hitherto you have done most friendly and charitablie and be it spoken without arrogance on our part or offence on yours, you cannot subsist unlesse we send you backe these prentises fitte freemen of their trade, we being hitherto the only hope almost of your posteritie and the seed of your harvest. And therefore as wee ever have been ready to assist you to our abilitie soe be you assured we ever will bee: hoping that you also on your part as you have not heretofore been wanting to us soe you will not be hereafter. And indeed as we have at this tyme assisted you to our power soe at this tyme wee stand in need of your helping hand which you have often reached us but never could more opportunely than now at this tyme which hath been for these three yeares the hardest tyme that ever wee passed. If you ask of us how you may assist us, our necessitie is soe ingenious and inventive that not to speake of other meanes known better you than us wee have thought of one meanes by which you may help us and yet not prejudice yourselves. Soe it is that at this present Mr Harvey and Mr Ireland our old friends and benefactors are here with us, who out of compassion of our necessities (which they both have often tyme lessened) have been content to conferre with us how these our wants may be supplyed in some part and thereupon wee aggreed to make our earnest sute unto you and by you unto your and our most Reverend B. and others whom it may concern that sithence ther are Arrerages of some 4 or 5 hundred pounds due to the house where Mr Ireland resideth which are not like to be sent to ye use of vt house as he and his brethren are informed, that the said Arrerages may by your charitable consents and my Lordships authoritie be converted to our use and benefit. Hereby you shall singularly oblige us and in doing this good to us, you shall do noe hurt but rather good to yourselves, wee being a branch (as to our no little joye you terme us) of your true vine, a member of your body to which we shall ever wish as much good as to our own and shall ever continue your loving Brethren and servants ready ever to Mathew Kellison Antony Champney 14th August 1628.

H.—.....TO HENRY SILLESDEN, S.J., 28 May 1629, 7.s.

Avises out of England: sent to F. Silisd:* of the 28 of May stilo novo 1629 & amongst the rest touching F. Rudisind's book.

F. Scroopes letter to me.

I find yours of May 7th and now must tell you that it is hard to procure particulars well proved against Mr Harvie seeing he lieth to us and our friends inaccessible and unknown: the brags and continuance of all former claims are made by his adherents. Yet that which occurreth lately is that his Lordship gave command to a secular priest to publish in the Venetian Chapel when the assembly of Catholics was great this inclosed order for the gaining of the Jubilee and many copies of it are spread abroad. You will see that approbation of the ordinary is still here exacted by his Lordship. I had lately a letter from your old friend Mr D. Lovel wherein he writeth thus. I do not know or hear of any order (otherwise than by you and yours) made by his holiness and sent unto his Lordship but rather do assure myself confidently there is no such order made especially touching the administration of the 3 Parochial Sacraments, dependantly of my Lord which I confess I did expressly write to F. Blunt that his Lordship did require and that upon very good warrant. And for as my Lord Bishop persisting in his challenge assure yourself he doth and will persist to challenge what his holiness hath given him by two Breves. Thus far his Archdeacon, Mr Muscott another Archdeacon writ lately unto me in these words. I beseech you take notice of these inclosed (which were 3 prayers to be said in Mass for our Queen's good delivery) and make known to all your brethren this command of my Lord of Chalcedon and that with as much speed as you can, &c. Mr Salisbury, his father told me very lately that he and some others heard a Vicar General avouch that he was ordinary and I think he will procure this testified under their hands. They further avouch that the Nuncio hath sent to his Lordship to call in Mr Rudisants books and burn them and that they are censured for erroneous and scandalous. Also they show to their own friends and cause them to report them to others 2 Breves commanding regulars to depend of the Ordinary for the exercise of their privileges. If you know anything concerning such Breves or that ours by reason of any such do change their former practise I pray you let me know. Communicate the promises to Mr Courtney. As also whereas I hear from Mr William Lancaster now in his new lodging where Lathom was before, that there they are assured that the laity is agreed with the Bishop, this is a most notorious untruth, they being still as impatient of his pretended authority as they were at first, and certainly they will never yield unto it. Mr Wallies, his father's house was lately searched for the Bishop and many or all exposed to greatest danger by reason of searchers for him. Mr Lovel, May 6, writeth thus to me. Mr Muskett who is my Lord Bishops Vicar in and about London not being well hath appointed me to publish this plenary universal Indulgence, &c. Spiritual commodities to be reaped by the Universal plenary Indulgence: r. Absolution from all sins whatsoever. 2 Absolution from all censures inflicted either by law or man so they be not imposed by form of judgment. Conditions required: r. To pray for the protection of the Catholic faith, the extirpation of heresy, peace amongst Christian princes and especially for the present necessities of the Church. 2. To fast Wednesday, friday & saturday the first or second week after notice thereof. 3. To confess to a priest secular or regular approved of the ordinary, and so to receive the B. Sacrament one of the forsaid days or the Sunday following. 4. To give alms according to their devotion and it is wished that these alms be given to the College of Doway which is in great need. This copy agreeth word for word with the original order declared by my Lord Bishop.

I.—" EXTRACTS OUT OF FA: BARLOW'S * LETTER."

The Bishop giveth out in this his visit that he is ordinary; that ye Regulars cannot administer the 3 Sacraments without his leave, that it belongeth to him to nominate pastors, &c., adding that thus it is decreed at Rome. His Secretary Mr Farrar is taken and another of his officials with a load of writings touching this controversy. Whereat the Counsell being much displeased hath obtained of the King leave to curb these insolent pretendours who go about without his leave to make a Patriarchy in his country. The Commissioners to cross the Pope who authoriseth this Bishop, have drawn up certain captious propositions to be propounded to the priests taken which are these following: I. An solus Papa absque consensu patriæ possit ulla ex causa principem deponere. 2. An Papalis definitio rerum spectantium ad fidem extra generale consilium sit infallibilis veritatis. 3. An Catholici qui vivunt sub principe protestante teneantur obedire papa proccipiente ne assumant arma contra invasionem ab eo missum ut principem deponat. By which articles they intend to divide the clergy, employ them in new disputes, to put us to a new divinity. For if the 2d proposition be denied most of all the difficulties touching Christ and the Sacraments and other things will remain but probable. The secular priests say that had it not been for the Regulars these things would never have come to the notice of ye state and that the Regulars have caused this persecution and indeed secular priests are more bitter one against another than Catholics and Protestantes. It is reported for certain that the Bishop of Chalcedon was taken, but for a good sum of money which he always carrieth about him he escaped. This controversy is so generally known to the Protestants that the Parliament-men long to be together to take order with us. Item it was conceived that the King upon displeasure against the judges who sentenced the martyrs of Lancaster, would have given some sort of toleration if this foul business had not brought all the Counsell upon his back. When ye Nuntio of Paris sent the Bishop word by Mr Fitton that he would suspend his faculties if he did not surcease from medling, his answer was I am as good a man as he and therefore I care not for him. Our navy is to go towards Denmark. Felton says that the remonstrances of the Parliament moved him to kill Buckingham. Denbigh is gone to invite Hamilton to come to be Master of the Horse.

J.—Dom Rudesind Barlow to Fr. Henry Sillesden, 9 April 1629.

F. Rudisind Barlow to F. Silisden. R. Father upon the back side of Mr Fittons letter which is in everybody's hand these or such like words are writ from Rome. Jan: 1629.—We have discovered by an accident that all the Jesuits greatest friends are the greatest opposers of the Benedictine's book, so that it appears they seek to ruin the Benedictines and yet to make them believe we do it. There is no name to this nor to Mr Fittons letter so that I hope all may be false and that these be uncharitable offices of such as convert their employment of preaching the Gospel, to sowing of schism. These certainly will be no martyrs although they be condemned twenty times. I send you a copy of my letter to the Nuncio of France wherein yow shall see the state of our controversy in England. Methinks you should cry out as well as we or do something to promote the common good. The cause is not ours only neither are we so far off the hooks but that we could come on again with such conditions as you would hardly believe. And sure I am that you would not believe they would be performed as indeed I do not, And partly for this but principally for that I am heartily and sincerely united to you I will hearken to nothing that tends to a breach. Methinks that Fa: Talbot should show these things and urge them in Paris to such as might make the Nuncio sensible of the Bishops violence and indescretion. The seculars inform that I am only a hair-brained fellow and that it is no heed to take of what I write or say. But if you there, and Mr Foster at Paris; I here, and ours at Paris and such as I can find out in France cry with open mouth as we have occasion given to do something would be got from the Nuntio without whom they at Rome will do nothing, because he indeed is ordinary. Deal freely and let me see what you do in the matter.—Oratio pro muliere prægnante sumpta ex missali Sarū et jussu Rmi Episcopi dicenda ab omnibus sacerdotibus in Missis suis pro fælici partu Serenissimæ Reginæ nostræ Præcipitur etiam omnibus sacerdotibus in privatis suis precibus ferventer orent Deum pro salute et prosperitate Regis ac Reginæ et fælici statu totius regni. Very Rev. S. My Lord of Chalcedon out of his Pastoral care hath sent these inclosed commanding all priests to pray for the safe delivery of her gratious majesty. [Rev. George Leyburn at this time was one of the officials of the Bishop, and had gone over to Calais with the Bishop when he left England to go to France. In 1652 he became President of Douai College. He was uncle to John Leyburn who in 1685 was consecrated Bishop for England. Lovell alias Southcot. See C.R.S., vol. i, Southcote's Note Book. Fa. [First letter 7 Sept. 1631.]

Most honoured Sir,—Some few hours before my departure from Calais I did commend unto you one with a hearty remembrance of my humble service: since I have enjoyed a happy passage and on Sunday morning I arrived at my old abode. This little success maketh me harbour hopes of a far greater happiness in the accomplishment of your pious designs. Sweet Jesus bless and preserve you from your enemies which are great in number and make your poor friends happy in your wished return. I have been with the ambassador, who no sooner got a sight of me but he came running unto me and was much recreated to hear the wished tidings of your safe arrival: and I did give him many humble thanks from you, for his loving affection towards you, signifying also how honourably you had been treated by the governor of Calais for his sake. I did also go unto fa: Ph: and his companion to commend your loving affection, and they did show unto me a letter from Chevalier de Garre in which he did wish them to hasten your return into France; to assist you with all their power and to furnish you with whatsoever moneys should be requisit for your journey. Wherefore I beseech you to render him humble thanks: and their counsel is and I am of the same opinion that you manifest your self to rely much on him and use him in all your business for he can have free access unto the King and Cardinal and car de saux, when those about you cannot; and I am sorry that I did not in my memorial from Calais signify that you should repair unto him at your arrival in those parts. Mr Lovell told me that he hath writte unto you that you should speak as much as you could in the ambassadors commendation. But I pray be careful you do not prejudice your self. Many and open commendations and praises will breed jealousy of a part taker and you know well how affairs stand betwixt the ambassador and Chateauneufe and Chevalier de Garre. You may please signify unto your friends here what you judge most convenient to be done by them and I do assure my self that they will apply their best endeavours to answer unto your desires. They have gone 4 or 5 of the Chief to satisfy the Spanish Agent in whom the Jesuits information hath made great impression: and he hath them so frequent in his mouth that by the assistance of a friend I have gotten them in writing. First he says that the Spanish Divines hath declared against you: secondly that you have a pension of the Cardinal Richlieu: thirdly that you include your self in a corner to revolve the people and make a faction amongst Catholics, having been sent for their comfort: fourthly that you have been the Cardinals chaplain: fifthly that your controversy is a French plot devised by the French to hinder the increase of Catholics for their own politic ends or at least to Frenchify them and avert them from Spain. and that you are an instrument of theirs for the compassing of their designs. Since they have been assured of your departure their informations made unto him were thus: that the plot of the gardener was only a colour for your escape and flight: that if you had proceeded well, you should have acquainted him with your departure and demanded his assistance and that you have suppressed a Bull of the Pope in which it is declared that you have no such authority as is pretended and that for this reason you have left the country, and these points the agent did utter with great passion and bitterness: although at this present he is more calm and hath said openly that he doth not approve Don Carolo's proceeding in the Declaration. We are shortly to go to visit Abbate Scallio who is arrived here extraordinary for Savoy and peradventure we shall be able at least to draw from them some certificate prejudicial unto the former declaration. I pray be mindful to solicite for some fund for a College for infallibly ours at Lisbon will never enjoy wished success as you will understand by this enclosed; and it will be a great motive unto the state of France to do for us when they shall understand that we are as it were banished out of Spain for our affection towards France. Concerning Mr Fortes; his going towards you, do you judge it convenient? As for my part nothing doth more afflict me than that none of our chief is with you, for you will be overcharged with business. Concerning your moneys I will commend unto you a bill of exchange the next week. As yet I am not settled. Concerning occurrences there are not any, only the Poland Ambassador had his audience two days ago: his business is not as yet known: in his speech he did often mention the Palatinate. Our King and Queen are both at White-hall. This is all, only fa: Ph: and his companion doth remember their services. If you see fa: Sancy signify unto him passages as they have happened. I am in great haste. I am ashamed to have written unto you so imperfectly but I was in great haste otherwise I should have been more exact. I received a testimony from my cousin Broughton which I have given unto Mr Lovell who will impart all other passages. London, Sep: 7, 1631. Your obedient servant Chalvers.

[Endorsed by the Bishop.] Objections against Chalcedon.

[Second letter 1631.]

Most honoured Sir. Since I commended unto you my last I have received divers from Mr Rogers and Mr Cudbert Car with their attestations which I have given unto Mr Lovell. This inclosed from Mr Car, Mr Lovell did open, and concerning the moneys mentioned he is to receive them. Our adversaries continue still in their endeavours for gaining of hands against an Ordinariship and although they be rejected in many places notwithstanding some they win for them through wrong explications of Ordinariship. for wheresoever they do attempt hands they signify that to be an ordinary is to have power to place and displace priests ad libitum, to erect a Tribunal to exact Tithes, &c., and I do assure you faithfully that if they did not proceed in this nature they would not prevail: for if any of our friends speak and confer with those who are most devoted unto them and ask them whether they do not desire a Bishop, they will answer that they judge Episcopal authority most necessary conditionally that his holiness will tie his hands from attempting a Tribunal, &c. Concerning this inclosed from Mr Rogers I wish that you will please to send your resolution touching those cases of affinity. I am become a great eye sore unto Sir Tobie and Foster in regard of my negociation and yesternight father Basile did tell one of my acquaintance that there was an expression-commission made by the Council to apprehend me because I did go out of England with a traitor. This he had from Foster. For my part I am not greatly scared for I do imagine that they cause this bruict to run, both to give notice that I was the man that did accompany the Bishop though they cannot prove it: and to put me in fear and so to draw me from doing business for my friends. There much troubled with my living with the Dutch Agent in so much that now they never visit him and more with my going so often unto the ambassadors and most of all because they know Mr Ph: is my great friend. I shall know shortly whether this be true or not and if it be, I must absent myself for a time. Howsoever I am ready to endure whatsoever crosses it shall please my B. Saviour to impose upon me. Foster and the Capn: with the grand Osurior or the Ambassador continue still in their violence to get out the orator in so much that the Queen is much offended and lately told the Ambassador that she did perceive that he did trouble him self too much about her household and therefore wished him hereafter to abstain for she is mistress and will ever be mistress of her own house and she added that if she should know that any of her household did keep correspondence with him more than she should approve that she would send him whither he should not hear The grand Osurior hath already lost himself, for now again since the coming of the Court to St James he hath opposed the Queen. He would need have the lodging of Mr Ph: and the Queen said he should not but did appoint for him others which he refused and retired unto Somerset House where he remaineth yet cometh daily to the Court.

L.—A LETTER OF REV. JOHN SOUTHCOT ALIAS LOVELL ALIAS CLARKE TO THE BISHOP OR HIS SECRETARY AT PARIS ABOUT THE BOOKS PUBLISHED AGAINST THE BISHOP.

[Brother Foley, vol. vii, p. 851, refers to this letter as being quoted by Turnbull in his annotated copy of Oliver's Collectanea S.J.]

The last week I had a short letter from you of the 19th of this month, together with the two printed papers in French which we will cause to be divulged here as well and as soon as we can. But how to get direct proofs to convince them to be the true authors of the books we do not know, more than the common voice and opinion which is generally here such that all that read this declaration presently cry out against the untruth thereof. Mr Homes the Benedictine told me that fa: Knott gave him one of his books and he saith that he composed it in the Clink. Fa: Faulkner told Mr Beckett if I be not deceived that fa: Flud had answered the Sorbon censures and was the author also of the Spongia. That he was the author also of the Apologia both the anagram of his name showeth and was acknowledged by themselves in divers parts of the kingdom, though I know not their names in particular. And Mr Gray the Jesuit sold them up and down, from whom I procured two or three copies by père Windoes means. Besides, all their penitents and followers of the better sort had these books in their houses and carried them sometimes in their pockets: and they were read generally by them all, who notwithstanding refused to read any book written on the other side. Moreover they were read publicly at the table (as I hear) at St Omers to the schollars there: and my young nephew that came lately from thence told me that he had read the Apology himself being at Gaunt or at Liège as I take it. I beseech you let us not fail to have some few copies at least of Aurelius' answer to all their exceptions against his books which we will keep secret or divulge as you shall direct us. It is great pity that there was nothing added in this declaration in dislike of the doctrine. Methinks that should have been stood upon much. I cannot yet learn who that Bazadry is mentioned in your letter. Mr Labourne will inquire. The holy oils are not yet come. I hear no more of Anthony Smith. God send him to be constant in his purpose. Mr Fitton wrote to us the same which he wrote to my Lord, and it were good those reports of the malice touching persecution were known to the King and Treasurer, but we know not well how to do it, for our friend at Court is fearful to speak. We sent you the last week a copy of the Queens letter to Crequey but desire you not to show it to the Nunce who will the sooner conceive it was not gotten by importunity, and think there is more in it than perhaps there is, which it were not amiss he should that he may inform to Rome according to his own conceipt of it. We all wish there could be a letter procured from the Cardinal to the Treasurer here in my Lords behalf. Surely it would do much: and it is wished that the Cardinal would write more than once to him about that matter and employ the French Ambassador or some other here to treat about it with the Treasurer and to seek to allay and answer all difficulties. If he be my Lords friend indeed and a friend to the cause he cannot refuse to do this, being desired. The King begins his journey towards Scotland upon the 11th day of May. There are 4,000 and 500 persons registered to accompany his Majesty in this journey, and the are so laid that he intendeth to be here at London back again by St James-tide the 24 July. This is what occureth and so with duty remembered to my Lord. 24th April 1633.

We hear some flying report that fa: Joseph there is in disgrace but we do not believe it.

[The address.] Pour Monsieur Antoine Penon à Paris.

M.—BISHOP SMITH TO THE AGENT AT ROME REV. PETER FITTON. March 11, 1633.

Dear Sir. Albeit I wrote to you in answer of 3 of yours whereof the last was of the last of Jan: yet would I not miss to let you know what hath passed since between me and the Cardinal and Nunce. The Cardinal* is not willing I should go to R[ome] and saith that he will provide for me as well as he can: but perhaps I might do more good there, if his holiness would provide for me. He saith that he knoweth nothing of any Scot that is to be or like to be Cardinal. The Nunce telleth me that it is sub judice whether I or another be to be sent B[isho]p into England. And I gave him the names of five whom I thought the fittest, as Mr Southcot alias Lovell and Mr Muskett for the South, Dr Champney and Mr Trollop for the North, and Mr Bennett for Wales, but I charge you to tell none whome I name. And if any one of these were B[isho]p then

there were two English B[isho]ps and I should do some good abroad and he would be able to do more good at home than I can by reason of the proclamations and the enmity of Jes[uits]. A Jes[uit] in this town began to preach without leave of the Archb[ishop], contrary to their own agreement for which he was interdicted. The College of Lisbon earnestly desireth that privilege for to take orders for which I wrote long since to you. In England a minister hath been degraded and condemned to perpetual prison for saying in his sermon of the Q[ueen] God convert or confound her. And another man fined £500 for breaking pictures in the windows of a Church. A Monk insulted upon Mr Dade* for making peace with the clergy, and here they commend Rudisinds Mandatum and say it is sold openly in Doway. I have got a grant of the King to set up a Nunnery in this Town and I hope this day it is sealed. Your naturalization was gotten but the patent is lost by reason the deposing of the late Grande search so as we must begin of new. I wrote unto you both by Nancy and Brussells upon the 4 of this, and by Brussels sent the B[isho]ps letter for me whereof I had sent you the copy half a year ago. I had writ thus far when I received yours of the 5 of Feb: by the way of Nancy which I do not perceive to be much speedier than by Brussells, yet I will send still that way hereafter as you desire. As for the relation which I gave of England to the Nunce I have long since sent you a copy and it containeth nothing but how much our country was disposed both from our King, Queen, Counsel, Bishops and others towards Cath[olic] Religion if affairs of Church were settled. By the Nunce it seems we are to have but one B[isho]p for he told me that they who protect the Catholics (who this should be he told not) would that we had a B[isho]p but no more for this time than one, lest it should offend the state, and he said he was of advise that I should be sent back again. And I told him I thanked him for his good will but not for the thing. In any case do what you can that if another be put in my place his Holfiness] declare it was at my request and that I did not declare confessions to be invalid nor did persecute regulars pro quibus Christus mortuus est, nor was never presentable as Jessuits] preach and let them know that my dishonour will be to him whose delegate and official I was. The Capuchines have not signed that agreement between the Bishop and Regulars. Sweet Jesus be with you. II of March. I always write the night before I send the letter. Yours ever.

N.—BISHOP SMITH TO Mr FITTON AT ROME. 17th June, 1633.

Dear Sir. Even now I received yours of the 22 of May. That same Instructio pro Catholicis Angliæ, &c., is surely the same in English which is Brevis et certa declaratio in Latin and made by the same man and therefore it would much redown to his disgrace to have that put in Indice and I marvel that you never saw that here in Paris. But the Jes[uits] most desire to have that disgraced

^{*} Fr. Thomas Dade, O.P.

A Barlow, O.S.B.

because it most moveth Catholics and hath drawn some from them. As for my coming to R[ome], my Brethren do now somewhat mislike thereto and I am more backward than ever particularly because the Jessuits give out in England that I am cited thither and if I should go, they would then brag the more, particularly because when I was there last,* the Jes[uits] sought to cast me into the Inquisition and de facto cast a book to of mine which yet came out with honour. The Nunce told me that the Pope would assist me for my charges and therefore I doubt not but he would have me there and having (as the Nunce told me) accepted of my imagined resignation I doubt whether he would ever let me return. The Bishops here have promised to write as effectual letters to the Pope and the Ambassador as I will myself and I have to send them by the next. As yet I have not heard what the Cardinal hath done for me who as I wrote to you long since, hearing of that message delivered to me by the Nunce said to me divers times ne vous mette en peine nous ferons votre affaire. To-morrow I hope to understand what he hath or will do by his brother to whom and also to his sister I spoke for to call upon him and this day his brother cometh from the country to this town. 8 days ago P. Aurelius came forth which is very learned and very eloquent and stingeth the Jes[uits] whom he oftentimes calleth maligners of maligners. The Bishops have gotten under the hands of two of the chiefest Jes[uits] here that the propositions which they condemned are contra fidem and that they cannot hear confessions sine Epop licentia obtenta and sent this to the Court but the Nunce and gral of Jacobins would have added this clause juxta canon

Sedis Apostolicæ beneplacitum which the Bishops will not admit and so I know not to what it will come. Fr. Oliver shall be very welcome to me when he cometh and the Dominicans see little if they see not more danger from Jes[uits] than from the B[isho]p. I have written to our Brethren in England that unless 3 or 4 of the gravest of them go to R[ome] as they did in the time of the Appelants, they will get little and I would you write to the same effect for verily I fear it is the only mean. For myself I should be heartily glad to be put out of office so one or more were in my place and I think I could give sufficient reason to persuade my friends that it were not convenient for me to return. Our English Ambassador here died on Corpus Christi day. He was a moderate man and as I think my friend. I have long since writ such a letter to his Holiness as you desired, to wit, that for myself I should be glad to be discharged yet because I made that petition, inscio clero, I desired him to hear their reasons and then I would do as he shall appoint. But by the extraordinary favour which the ambassador showed me I gather that I am not so odious to the state as the Jesuits would have believed. And he told me that if it were in Englishmens hands whether the clergy or Jesuits should rule Catholics the question would be soon ended, and was glad to hear me assert that I intended no tribunal, &c. Fr. Joseph hearing what the Nunce had said to me, said that it would enrage the secular clergy and that matters could not continue so, and as I think, set the Cardinal on to do for us but would not have this known. The Nunce is with the King who is going to Loraine and with him also is the extraordinary Nunce. From England [they say that]* Jes[uits] give out that the Pope intendeth to send [an Archbishop]* and that their general said that then he would call all his, out of England; and before they gave out that I was shortly to return with full authority and that they were undone. These things I think they give out, upon no ground but only to amuse our Brethren that they write not to R[ome] but think themselves sure. An ancient priest speaketh openly in defence of the oath and I fear if they be disappointed of Episcopal authority more will do the like, and that matters will go to great confusion. A Catholic cited another for legata pia and another cast a Jes[uit] ₱ into prison for carrying a woman overseas who he said was his wife. And if no justice be settled there, men will seek justice at heretics hands. I pray you let the congregation de Indice know that Instructio pro Catholicis &c. containeth nothing but what Brevis Declaratio doth and that there is nothing but a mere epitome of the Popes Breves as in truth there is not any touching faith nor anything also against good manners or any disgraceful speeches of any regulars. I send you up a copy of purpose that you may see what to do. Even now I receive your second, written of the same day and sent by Lyons. It is like that his Hol[iness] will give me a Bishopric or Abbey which is no good sign that he will continue Episcopal authority in England. I might long since have had a Bishopric here, and doubtless may have by the Cardinal and I will not give away Episcopal authority for so small a matter. But if his Holiness will take it away I cannot resist because it is ad beneplacitum. When the Nunce writeth to me I shall do as you advise. There is speech that the Hollanders have taken all the forts about Antwerp and that thereupon Cardona is sent for back out of Loraine and that Manor is returned to Brussells. If his holfiness will bestow a Bishopric on me and withal send another Bishop into England I shall account myself exceedingly beholden, so I be not to live in Italy or out of France, but I shall count it no favour to have a Bishopric so as England loose a Bishop. Sweet Jesus direct me and assist you. 17th June. Yours ever

O.—BISHOP SMITH TO Mr FITTON AT ROME. 26 August, 1633.

Dear Sir. I have yours of the 23 of July and am very glad to hear that resolution is taken to give England a Bishop but I fear they will be long in finding out a fit person if they seek to content the regulars in the choice. And it is pitty that seeing that regulars have no regard of seculars in choice of their superiors, regard should be had of them in choice of ours. And for my part I had rather have a special Breve that I might show it to others that I am not deposed for my behaviour and yet a word also in the Breve of my conscience would do well. Besides I have had but one hundred pistoles of the Cardinal since I came over and above £300 sterling have gone out of my purse, since that time so that they must think of maintaining me if they will have me live out of my country. I am told that the Cardinal intendeth to give me no certainty lest I should leave him and he meaneth to make use of me as I find. I shall be glad to hear more of that minister and of his book. while ago I sent you printed p[ropositi]ons defended in Cambridge, with the clergys letter to me for to return and since they have writ to this Cardinal Nunce whom I always find willing to favour us. I am glad Mr Barcley is not disgraced and I have writ so to England and to hasten Mr Ducket of whom as yet I hear nothing. I was in hope to have gotten leave for a Nunnery here but the first president saith it is an [extraordinarie] * matter and requireth the meeting of all the chambers so that if the Cardinal take not the matter to heart I have no hope and god grant that we need them not. The elder Plat is come hither to read in a monastery at £6 and the younger is come also to be guide to young gentlemen. Let me know what opinion is there of Aurelius, # his work. In any case labour what you can for to get the new Bishop to have authority of externs both for to avoid the coming in of apostates as also unless he have some authority over regulars they will contemn him. And commend me kindly to Monsieur La Bard canon of our Ladies and put him in mind what Mons' Roche desired him to get, a Breve for me that though I should die in Curia yet such benefices as I should have should be at the gift of those to whom heretofore they belonged and not to the see because the condition of getting such a Breve within some months is put into my letter of nationality as they are in all others nowadays. Sweetest Jesus be with you. Yours ever. 26. August.

P.—Bishop Richard Smith, Bishop of Chalcedon, to Lord Weston, the Lord Treasurer. 8th Nov., 1633, n.s.

Right Honourable. Although it may seem strange to your Honour to receive a letter from such a person as myself in these disjointed times yet I trust it will not be taken in an ill part nor attributed to any presumption in me when the necessity of a just defence impelleth thereunto: for that I understand from good hand that I am brought into suspicion not only with your Honour and some other eminent persons of the Councel but also with his majesty as the supposed author or abettor of certain scandalous writings and reports wherewith (as I hear) one Arismendes a frenchman stands charged before your Honour at this present. For my part I do protest unfeinedly and do assure your Honour in verbo Episcopi that neither by myself nor by Arismendes nor by any other person did I ever speak or write or cause to be spoken or written anything tending to his majestys displeasure or to the dishonour of any of his Majesty's Privy Council but have contrariwise sought occasions with all strangers to extol his Majesty's most eminent parts both natural and moral and particularly to defend his royal clemency towards his Catholic subjects when I chanced to find any ill affected person by sinister informations go about to impeach the same. Neither was I ever so undutiful or so inconsiderate as to speak or write even amongst familiar friends of any Privy Councellor or other civil magistrate but with all due respect to his place and person, having ever esteemed it a chief part of Christian duty not only to speak honourably but to think and judge the best of the actions of all those that are in authority and from my heart have ever detested as unchristian and unnatural the contrary practise and herein I dare confidently refer myself to the report and censure of all those that know me by experience. And as for Arismendes in particular to say nothing that I was fully possessed at his last being here that he was an apostata Fryer (though since I hear it is another of that name and not he) and therefore not likely to be employed by me in any business of such a nature, I had so little correspondence with him or he with me that I did not so much as see him when passing by Paris the last winter, he went for Spain. Neither had I seen him as he returned from thence this Spring, but that some letters were sent to me by him from Lisbon wherein I was wished to inform myself further of him by word of mouth touching the state of a certain College lately there erected by a Portugal gentleman. Whereupon he came thrice unto my chamber but I absolutely refused to send any letter or message by him to England, neither dealt I with him concerning any other matter at all but only the state of that College and this I do aver in the faith of a Christian and word of a Bishop to be most true. Furthermore because your Honour cannot be ignorant how much I have been opposed these years past by some domestic adversaries who have sought not only to disgrace me abroad but to discredit me with the state at home and to incense his Majesty both against my person and claim, I thought good with this occasion by your Honours means humbly to present unto his Majesty a most sincere profession of my allegiance and to testify my most unfeined love unto my natural country being ready to confirm the same with any oath that ever Catholic Bishop took in England or that Catholic Bishops used to take in other countries: and whereas amongst other numerous aspersions to make me odious it hath been objected that I am wholly (as they term it) frenchified. I humbly beseech your Lordship to believe and so to inform his Majesty and the Lords of the Privy Council, that though I stand obliged to some of the French in particular, yet do I and ever shall carry with me as true and sincere an English heart as any subject his Majesty hath, desiring to receive no favour either from Spain nor France but what may stand with his Majesty's good liking, of whose Royal clemency and goodness I profess myself wholly to rely: and as for the claim of my episcopal authority I do not see that it can be justly offensive to his Majesty or hurtful to the state but rather useful to both being only spiritual and not temporal and not granted over Protestants but our Catholics only, whom it was chiefly intended thereby to keep in peace and good order amongst themselves and in due obedience to his Majesty: neither did I ever go about (I take God to witness) to erect a new Tribunal to make probate of wills because by these or the like my adversaries have most calumniously divulged of me in all places: knowing those things not to be within the compass of that spiritual authority which was granted unto me, and which I never intended to exercise in any undue manner or in any particular matter wherein the spiritual good of this church could not be procured but with offence and prejudice to his Majesty's service. And here I may and do challenge the most averted and violent of all my adversaries to allege any one particular action of mine from the beginning of my entrance into England since I was first made Bishop wherein I have prevaricated in this kind to the offence of his majesty, to the disturbance of any court of justice or to the hurt and prejudice of any subject in particular. So little advantage have my adversaries hitherto had against me and so little ground by my outward actions to traduce so wrongfully and so publickly as they have done my inward intentions. But I fear the zeal of my defence hath transported me too far already which hath spun out the thread of these lines to a greater length than I intended. Wherefore not to trouble your Lordship any further. In conclusion I hereby request your Lordship to excuse this boldness and to do me the favour to recommend the contents hereof with his majesty for whose long life and prosperity I daily pray from the bottom of my heart as also for our most gracious Queen and all their royal issue and so I rest Your Honours most ready to do you service R. Chalcedon

Paris the 8 of November stylo novo 1633.

Q.—Attestation of Rev. Edward Johns that Sir Nicholas Fortescue in his last illness fully submitted to the Bishop of Chalcedon. Dec: 2nd 1633.

I being called to assist Sir Nicholas Fortescue in his last sickness immediately before his death I requested him to satisfy the world and clear himself of these two special imputations following whereof I thought he had been injuriously taxed. First I told him that it was reported that he had opposed the Bishop of Chalcedon, his authority and jurisdiction. And secondly that he had been the chiefest contriver of that infamous letter or rather libel falsely published in the name of the lay Catholics of England against the said Bishop, his authority and person. To the honour of God therefore and defence of that prudent noble Knight I thought good to relate his religious answer, word by word as near as I can remem-

To the first then he said. I protest before God as I hope to be saved that I love and honour the Bishop of Chalcedon and do embrace his authority and jurisdiction which I do acknowledge to be just and lawful over all the lay Catholics of England as well as over the clergy. To the second he speak feelingly and said, Truly Sir I never was contriver of that uncharitable letter and therefore I do utterly disclaim from that, yet notwithstanding I do acknowledge my error and weakness in consenting to the publication of the said letter and yielding to the importunity of those gentlemen who were resolved to publish that before their meeting at my lodging. For that error I cry god mercy and ask the Bishop of Chalcedon forgiveness. Moreover if it shall please God to lend me life and the use of my senses till you come again tomorrow I will (as you request) testify this much under my hand. But alas with grief I relate it, that worthy Knight departed this life within few hours after my parting from him, even the second of December 1633. God rest his soul Amen. The last word his man could perceive him to speak was this, Would God that old man were with me now.

JOHN MAWSON, LAYMAN, MARTYR, 1612, AND SOME CATHOLIC MAWSONS.

CONTRIBUTED BY JOSEPH MAWSON.

So far as the present writer is aware, little, if anything, concerning this martyr has come to light since Bishop Challoner wrote. It has been thought that there is not sufficient evidence for the date, and that the person intended is John Mason, already commemorated by Challoner as having suffered in 1591. Bishop Challoner's words do not support, they rather negative, this suggestion. Of John Mason he says that he was executed for aiding and assisting priests, but of John Mawson that it is not known on what charge he suffered, only that he was apprehended while hearing Mass.

Further, the names are of diverse origin. Mawson—hardly known in the south has existed in the north since the year 1300, and even before that date. A Shropshire Visitation pedigree 1 gives after six generations of early date, beginning with Adam Maueson,—Edith daughter of another Adam Maueson, alias Berwicke de Berwicke. The arms are those of Mayesine. The name is a variant of Malvoisin, Mauvesyn-Mossun, met with in Shropshire in the thirteenth century, is perhaps another form, and with them, possibly may have originated the Mussons or Mawsons of Leicester and neighbouring counties. There was a Mauvesyn, Governor of Pontefract, Yorks., but the name did not spread, at least in that form, in the north. In 1312 an Adam Mauson is found on the Subsidy Roll of Haliwell, Northumberland, but not on earlier or later Rolls. According to W. Grainge, "The Vale of Mowbray," p. 46, the Earl of Northumberland in 1095, holding Bamborough Castle, William Rufus built another Castle over against it, which he called Malvoisin, to prevent succours being thrown by the Earl into the Castle. The name of the village which arose on this spot became successively Mulesen, Molsen, Mowssen, and finally Mowson, as at the present day. Mavezin-Ridware in Staffordshire owes the affix to being their possession. M. A. Lower speaks of a similar castle in the Isle of France. Mauvezin is a Gascon town.

At the present time the only locality where the name is common is the valley of the Wharfe, around Otley and Harrogate in the West Riding of Yorkshire, and it may be inferred that there the name originated.

There is reason for thinking that the Westmorland family whose history we are about to trace was connected at an early period with the Wharfedale district. As will be seen below they were connected with Kendal; and it must certainly not be overlooked that in C.R.S., v, p. 292, John Mason, the martyr of 1591, is called "a Kendall man," and that his real name may be Mawson.

Bishop Challoner gives only four names of persons who suffered for their religion in 1612, of whom two were executed on Whitsuneve, May 30th. But the appended evidence of a Protestant gentleman 1 is circumstantial, with the names of other eye-witnesses. They are certainly all four described as "priests," and that may have been the belief of the onlookers.

From a letter of John Chamberlain, Esq., to Sir Dudley Carleton, 13 Nov., 1611: "There were certain priests or Jesuits lately taken and brought from Mrs. Vaux's house, the Lord Vaux's mother. There was some resistance to the taking of them."2

The same to the same, dated London, II June, 1612:

"On Whitsun-eve there were four priests hanged at Tyburn who died very confidently, and were suffered to take their fill. But whose fault it was I know not, but sure it was not well. They have been banished twice at least, and would take no warning. The Earl of Arundel with his young son was present at the execution, and the Viscount Montacute, with divers ladies and gentlemen in coaches, and yet they were hanged early, between 6 and 7 in the morning."

W. H. Overall's Index to the Remembrancer, 1579–1664, p. 132, has a letter from the Archbishop of Canterbury to the Lord Mayor, 11 Feb., 1612:

"Many Papists and Recusants flocked to London. The Lord Mayor to . . . find out how many recusants were lodged within the Liberties of the City and to certify the same to the Archbishop."

The following notes, compiled by a name-sake who claims no other relationship, may, it is hoped, stimulate further enquiry.

They relate in the main to a Catholic family of Mawson in London and Westmorland, of whom various notices are found at later dates, which might well have been, and in the writer's opinion was, that to which the martyr belonged. As the story of a Catholic family in the troublous times following the Reformation, 1600–1700 and later, the record is not without interest. It may also be of some use genealogically.

The first Catholic of this family as yet met with is Nicholas Mawson of Skelsmergh, in Kendal parish, Westmorland. In 1650 his name is in the proceedings of the Committee for Compounding, as a "papist Sequestered," with the note appended, "Several of the Delinquents' and Papists' Estates are farmed out to themselves."3

He was one of the class of yeomen called "statesmen," who in Westmorland and Cumberland held their lands by military tenure direct from the Crown. The year of his birth would be, probably, 1605-10.

The next, Peter, was a son of Nicholas. In 1661-2 a grant of arms was made to this Peter in which he is described as of Millbeck, Kendal, "a person that has faithfully served in the late Wars, and particularly after the defeate at Worcester succoured and preserved many of His Maties Loyall Subjects."1 The arms were, party per bend nebuly, ermine and ermines. Sixteen years later Peter was under suspicion of being a participator in the "Titus Oates plot."2

Another son of Nicholas, brother of Peter, was John Mawson. He is first met with as apprenticing himself to a London goldsmith, for seven years to Michaelmas 1656.3 This would place his birth in 1635; he might, therefore, have been a grandson, and named after the martyr. He was a steadfast Catholic throughout his life. In 1659 he is in business for himself,4 and until 1669 residing in the parish of St. Clement Danes.5 In 1670 his firm has become Mawson and Company, in Fleet Street, goldsmiths keeping Running Cashes, i.e. Bankers 6; and from this time notices of him are pretty frequent in various capacities.

In 1671 we find him married.7 There are two holograph letters of his in that year—one of them still bearing his seal—addressed to Christopher, Lord Hatton, on money matters, and they seem to imply that he was on other than mere business relations with that family. The seal bears out this supposition. It shows his arms (the same as his brother Peter's) impaling Hatton; and John Mawson's wife may have been one of the Catholic Hattons of Oxford or Long Ditton, or belonging to a Westmorland branch of that family.

The Countess of Thanet, mentioned in two letters of his, was a Clifford, and her daughter, Cecilia Tufton, was wife of Lord Hatton and a strong Catholic.

In 1600 Christopher Hatton, gentleman, late of St. Giles in the Fields, London, was proclaimed a Recusant.8 There was some connection of the Hattons with Westmorland at an earlier date, chantries in Kendal Church.1

Three years after the date of the letters, in 1674, we meet John Mawson's name as banker in the Secret Correspondence between the Courts of England and France. Part of the letter is in sympathetic ink. In 1678 he was driven out of London in consequence of the pretended "Popish Plot," but through the influence of Earl Rivers 3 and others he was allowed to return to his shop and get in money to pay his creditors "with whom he has always dealt.

honestly and justly."4

In 1680 John Mawson and his daughter Agnes (she died 1680) 5 are in a Catalogue of persons who "are, or are reputed to be, of the Romish Religion, not as yet Convicted." 6 In 1687 and 1688 he is paying out of the "Secret Service" money of James II two sums of £250 as allowances to Bishop Leybourne; and, also with the second allowance to the Bishop, £140 to Garrison Chaplains "attending the Catholiq soldiers." 7 In 1688 he is on the Commission of the Lieutenancy of London, but in the following year, on the accession of William and Mary, he is taken off. 8 In 1689 a pardon is obtained for him and others by the Earl of Sunderland for "acting contrary to, or omitting to do, what is enjoined by several statutes." 9 In 1696 John Mawson of the Rolls Liberty, Esquire, is on the "Lists of those who were legally summoned" (to take the oath) "but did not appear." 10

In 1698 Mr. John Mawson, Mr. Miles Philipson (doubtless of the Westmorland family), and three others were trustees for administering the estate of Sir William Godolphin, a former Ambassador to Spain, who had become a Catholic, and in his will had left large sums of money for Catholic and charitable purposes, including 6,000 masses for his soul; the residue of his property being left for "his universal heir, his soul." The will was declared invalid. In the same year John Mawson was plaintiff in a Chancery suit.

Godolphin defendant.12

The writer has not yet met with John Mawson's will, nor with the date of his death. The foregoing shows him to have been a firm Catholic, a worthy descendant, if descendant he was, of the martyr.

Mary, only surviving daughter and sole heir of the above, married in 1694 George Porter of Alfarthing, Wandsworth, Vice-Chamberlain to the Queen Dowager of Charles II and grandson of the famous Endymion Porter, Groom of the Bedchamber to Charles I, and celebrated as one of the handsomest men of his day. (The Porters were descended from Robert Porter of Effington, about A.D. 1400.1 A manor called "Porters," near Sudbury, Essex, was held by Robert Porter in the reign of Richard II).2

J. Orlebar Payne has several notices of this Mary, but does not give her own family name. Like her father she was a consistent, practical Catholic. Her house at Hampton, Middlesex, is given as an address for priests,3 who at that period, 1730, were still looked on by the authorities as objects of suspicion. Her will, dated

1734, proved in 1740, has a quaint Catholic touch.4

Of Mary Porter's children only two married, viz.: John and Endymion—the last named to Mary, daughter of Bryan Maguire of Kilkenny, their only child becoming the wife of Thomas Wadding.

John Porter married Catherine daughter of Lieut.-Gen. Sir Richard Sutton of Scofton, Notts., and three of their children married, viz.: John of Alfarthing who married a daughter of Cosmo Nevill of Nevill Holt, Esq.; 2ndly Mary, married in 1760 to the Hon. Raymund Arundell of Wardour; and 3rdly Eleanor, married to Pierce Walsh, whose son, inheriting the estates from his uncle John, took the name of Porter, as Pierce Walsh Porter. The second of this name, son of the last mentioned, died without issue, and the estates devolved upon his three sisters.

The first Pierce Walsh Porter is described as a man of great taste and acquirements, which he evinced by giving 800 guineas for stained glass from ruined French abbeys for the adornment of the chapel of his Egyptian Hall at Fulham, and spending £4,000 on the embellishment of his cottage there.5 Vols. viii, xii and xiii of the Cath. Record Soc. have notices of the Walsh Porters.

Connected with the three sisters above mentioned are the families of Semper of co. Galway; Pieraggi of Corsica; and Pigott of Queen's County. One or other of these, or of the families named above, may still have records giving the one link necessary to complete this history, viz.: that connecting the martyr with the Nicholas Mawson of Skelsmergh, here presumed to be his son or nephew.

Passing notices are extant of a few other Catholic Mawsons. The following is an "Extract from a List of Poor Clares at Rouen ... their Professions and Death":

Sister Beatrice Clare Mawson. 1672 166a

Sister Catherin of the Angels (doubtfully 1683 1669 Mawson).

Concerning the first of these (the other has not been traced), the Abbess of the Convent at Levenshulme very obligingly obtained for me from the Archives of their House at Rouen further information, from which the following translation is taken:

Anno Domini 1669. The 25th of January. "Sister Helen Mawson, now called Sister Beatrice Clare, made her holy Profession, being 25 years of age, and happily departed this mortal life the oth of February, 1672, in the 29th year of her age, having lived praisably in Holy Religion 4 years."

The Catholic Record Society, vol. xvii, p. 53, has the following from Records of the "English Canonesses of the Holy Sepulchre of Liège ": "March 1688 given by Sr. Francis nandyke to pray for her sister Mrs Mauson, f 18.6.2."

At p. 25 it is stated that Mother F. Nyndyke, "daughter to Mr. Thomas Nindyke and Mrs. Jane Houlby [Holtby], borne at Scatolton [Scackleton, Hovingham] in Yorkshire tooke ye habitt of Religion the 29th of June in ye yeare 1647 took to Name Sr. Francis of St. James and was professed the 30 of June 1648 being 27 yeares of ayge." She was born, therefore, in 1621.

In the Cal. of State Papers-Committees for compounding, 1650-1653, the Yorkshire Committee report that they have seized the Estate of Nandyke, a Papist in arms, sequestered in 1644. The Nandykes of the North Riding were connected by marriage with the Catholic families of Ayscough, Amyas, and others.

Robert Mawson of Hawdenby (Haldenby) Park, Adlingfleet, born in Catholic times, his will being dated in 1556. He mentions his daughter Anne, wife of Gerard Haldenby of Haldenby. In C.R.S., xiii, 102, Gerard's nephew Francis is in a list of Catholics for 1574. Francis Haldenby's will of 30 June, 1595, was proved 10 Jan., 1596-7, but only after a Caveat had been entered on 7 Nov., 1506, probably on religious grounds. His grandson and heir would be only 13 years of age, and amenable to Protestantism. Robert Haldenby (father of Francis and eldest brother of Gerard) has only a Caveat against his name, dated 28 Feb., 1561-2.1

These Mawsons were yeomen of standing. Between 1550 and 1750 they intermarried with Saltmarshe, Cracroft, and Amcotts families. A Book of Recusants, 1606-11 (Add MSS. 3 at 765), has Alexander Amcotts, gent., and Roger Amcotts.

Though hardly connected with the subject of these notes the following may perhaps be admitted here, as the final object is the same:

Bishop Challoner gives in his Memoirs of Missionary Priests a vivid account of the atrocities suffered by Matthew alias Major Flathers of Weston, Yorks., a priest executed at York in 1608.

Major, Mauger, or Maulger, was a favourite baptismal name of the Vavasours of Weston, and probably in consequence comes to other

Weston families, including Mawson.1

The will of John Mawson of Weston in the West Riding, dated 1589 (a copy of which is in the present writer's possession), says, "My will is that my Brethern (in Lawe) Martine Flathers shall have a bed in my house when he is sick and I give unto him a legacy of xls." He mentions also William, a brother of Martin. The Registers begin in 1672 only.2

In conclusion the writer desires to express his indebtedness to Mr. Joseph S. Hansom for valuable suggestions and advice during the preparation of this paper. Also to the late Sir Walter Prideaux, of the Goldsmiths' Company, for his courtesy in having the Records of that Company searched, resulting in material addition to these Notes.

To avoid confusion it may not be out of place to make brief mention of Protestant Mawsons deriving from Leicestershire, but living in London in close proximity to the foregoing. Though of much the same rank there is, so far as the writer has seen, no evidence of intercourse between these neighbouring families. This, considering the dangers of the times, was natural, but a slight similarity in their respective arms suggests that they had some tradition of a common origin. Worthy of note on the Protestant side were:

Richard Mawson of St. Clement Danes, London, M.A. Camb., who in 1627 married Marie Hayne. She was probably of the same family as Thomas Hayne of Thrussington, co. Liecester, an account of whom is given in the Dict. of National Biography.

Thomas Mawson (1614-1678) of Wigston Magna, Leicester, an active Royalist, Captain of Horse in the Civil War.

Charles, son of the last named (1646–1723), of Wigston Magna, St. Clement Danes and East Barnet, Chester Herald. The seventh Duke of Norfolk made him executor in trust for his Duchess.

Thomas Mawson (1656–1714) of St. Dunstan's in the West and Chiswick, a rich brewer, whose monument is in Chiswick churchyard.

Matthias (1683–1770) of Ely House and Kensington Square, London, son of this last Thomas, Vice-Chancellor of the University of Cambridge, and successively Bishop of Llandaff, Chichester, and Ely. "Reformer of Abuses"; a great benefactor of his college, leaving £6,000 to found Scholarships and £3,000 for the rebuilding of the College, Corpus Christi. It was said of him that he had "No ambition, no desire to please; and privately munificent when the world thinks him parsimonious." His arms, party per bend sinister, ermine and ermines, a lion rampant, are identical with those of Captain Thomas Mawson of Wigston, above.

HISTORICAL NOTES.

Although the register here printed only dates from the end of the eighteenth century, there is a tradition that the district round Market Rasen—or Raisin as it was formerly called—was from a much earlier period a mission of the Society of Jesus. Fr. Richard Blount, S.J., who in 1620 became the first Provincial of the Society in England, set up about 1633, in Jesuit phraseology, a Residence or District in Lincolnshire, known as the College of St. Hugh, which was responsible for many of the clergy who served Market Rasen in those difficult times.

In 1859 the Mission was finally given up by the Society, and handed over to the care of the bishop of the diocese, the Right Rev. Richard Roskell, Bishop of Nottingham.

For many years the mission was sheltered at Kingerby Hall, an old manor house in the parish of Kingerby, adjoining that of West Rasen. In 1702 Mr. William Knight, of Snarford, Lincolnshire, obtained from Peter Richier, M.D., of Lincoln, a seven years' lease of this manor-house, and a farm of 65 acres of land in Kingerby, at a yearly rental of £130 4s. 6d. There was a chapel in the house, and Mr. Knight maintained chaplaincies there until his death, 21 March 1728, aged 61. the third son of Richard Knight, of Normanby-on-the-Hill, by Mary, daughter of Joseph Bilcliffe. After the Jacobite rising in 1715, we find him as a Catholic nonjuror registering an estate described as "one third part of the rectory of Lubenham, co. Leicester, rented at £210." By his second wife, Lucy Jennings of York, who died also at Kingerby, 23 June 1765, aged 81, he had several sons, and one daughter, Lucy, who, born in 1722, was educated at York Bar Convent, and married. 16 Feb. 1747, Thomas Rookwood Gage, Esq., who in 1767 succeeded his cousin William in the baronetcy and estate of Hengrave. Dame Lucy Gage died 3 Sept. 1781. Of Mr. Knight's sons, Richard (born at Kingerby 24 July 1720) alone survived, and entering the Society of Jesus in 1739 was ordained priest in 1743 and appointed to the mission of Richmond, Yorks., and later on (1764) to Lincoln * where he laboured till his death, which occurred suddenly as he was winding up his watch before retiring to rest on 16 Dec. 1793. To Fr. Knight Market Rasen owed its first chapel and presbytery combined, which he built in 1782. It was the first public chapel built in that part of England, and was situated in the upper storey of the presbytery. The chapel at Kingerby Hall had meanwhile been closed some time after Mrs. Knight's death in 1765, the tenancy coming to an end, and we hear nothing more until 1775, when Elizabeth Richier having died, there followed chancery proceedings, as a result of which the Kingerby estate was ordered to be sold. It found a purchaser in Dr. H. Smith, a physician of Lincoln, who in 1785 (by which time an Act of Parliament had been passed enabling Catholics to acquire land) sold, in his turn, the parish and estate of Kingerby with the manor and all its rights and privileges to Isaac Young, of West Rasen.

The Youngs-an ancient Catholic family of Welsh descent-had settled at West Rasen towards the end of the seventeenth century, and lived there, at the old manor-house, as tenants of the Constables who owned the estate, and still do so in the person of their descendant, the present Duchess of Norfolk, as Lady Herries. In the roof of this house there was a chapel where Mass was frequently said, and in consequence it long went by the name of "the Chapel House." An engraving of it will be found in the "London and Dublin Orthodox Journal" of 8 Sept. 1838 (vol. vii, p. 145), about which time it was pulled down. An old silver-gilt chalice formerly in use there has engraven on its base the following inscription: "Restore mee to Sheaffnall in Shropshire." John Young had married Alice, daughter of a Mr. Weaver, of Shifnal a family which Foley (Records, vol. i) says "had lost all their possessions but stuck to the Faith." Probably the chalice came with them. It has since been restored by the 13th Lord Herries (died 1876), into whose possession it had come, to the Catholic church of St. Mary of Shifnal, where it now is. Fr. D'Arcy, the present rector, writes that "there exists a tradition that it is a pre-reformation chalice, and that the inscription dates from persecution days, and was so placed to secure its return here at some future date."

This John Young died at West Rasen, and was buried there 2 Feb. 1707, being described in the affidavit made by the parson before the magistrates, as a "Popish recusant." His widow was also, eleven years later, buried there on 23 Mar. 1718. Their great-grandson, Isaac Young, the purchaser of Kingerby, had married Ann, daughter of Thomas Champney, of West Rasen, who was Steward to Sir Marmaduke Constable. As Mass was now (1785) said at Market Rasen, as well as at the old Chapel House at West Rasen, he did not reopen the chapel at Kingerby Hall.

The mission at Market Rasen appears to have flourished, and the old combination presbytery and chapel built by Fr. Knight was replaced in 1824 by a chapel and presbytery on a more convenient site at the western entrance of the town.

The chapel, a plain unpretentious building, dedicated to the Holy Rood, was opened for public worship on 14th September of that year. A view of it is given in the "London and Dublin Orthodox Journal" for 5 Sept. 1840, vol. xi, p. 145.

The mission is first mentioned in the "Catholic Directory" in 1824, where, under the heading "Lincolnshire M," we find "Market-raisin, Mr. Brewster."

This is all the information given, without alteration, until 1841, when there is an improvement, and for the first time a list of services at the Rasens is provided as follows:

"Market Raisin. Holy Rood Chapel. Revd. Francis Willoughby

Brewster.

On Sundays and holidays of obligation, Mass at 10 o'clock and Vespers at 3.

On week-days, Mass at 8 o'clock from Easter to November, and at 9 from November to Easter."

"West Raisin. Served the 4th Sunday of the month, from Market Raisin."

To return to Kingerby; Isaac Young died in December 1792, being buried at West Rasen on the 3rd Jan. following; and his son James, born in 1757, succeeded to the estate. He pulled down the old Hall in 1803 and built the present Kingerby House in its place. He had previously married (23 April 1798) his cousin Mary, daughter and coheiress of Thomas Martin, Esq., of Marylebone, and by her had several children, of whom only one married. He died 12 April 1823, and was succeeded at Kingerby by his two elder sons, James, born 1803, who died I April 1876, and Thomas Arthur, born 1805, who died 24 Aug. 1891. George, the third son, died in 1884, having married Sophia Mary, daughter of Henry Owen, of Worksop, co. Notts, but left no issue. One of the daughters, Maria Teresa, who died I Oct. 1872, founded the "Maria Young Spinsters' Fund," which still continues its beneficent work. The estate passed in 1891 into the hands of John Joseph Young, grandson of Edward Young of Normanby, who dying two years later was succeeded by his son Bernard Joseph. He died 9 May 1910, and was succeeded in the property by his eldest son, John Joseph Baldwin Young (born 7 Aug. 1868), the present Lord of the Manor.

As regards the clergy who served the mission prior to 1728 there is nothing known with certainty, and any list of names would be purely conjectural.

The first priest of whom we have any real knowledge is—

Fr. John Raymund Greene, O.P., D.D., who shortly after William Knight's death in 1728 was appointed chaplain to his widow, Mrs. Lucy Knight, at Kingerby.

The Provincial of the Dominicans, Fr. Thomas Worthington, O.P., was a cousin of that lady, which probably accounts for the appointment. Fr. Greene, who is said to have been born in Oxfordshire in 1655, spent the early years of his life in the household of King Charles II, and being brought up as a Protestant, was sent to Magdalen College, Oxford, with the idea of being educated for the ministry of the Established Church. He, however, came under the influence of Fr. Philip Thomas Howard, O.P. (afterwards Cardinal), who at that time was chaplain and grand almoner to Queen Catharine of Braganza, and by him the young man was received into the Church. This and other matters caused so great a stir that Fr. Howard was obliged to leave the country, and was followed shortly after by Mr. Greene, who arrived at the English Dominican Convent at Bornhem, in Flanders, of which Fr. Howard was both founder and prior, 3 Oct. 1674. Here on the 9th Dec. he took the habit of St. Dominic, and was professed on the 15th Dec. of the following year. He made his noviciate in Ghent, studied philosophy at Bornhem, and theology at Naples, where he was ordained priest in 1679. Elected Prior of Bornhem in 1694, he was re-elected for a further term of three years in 1697. After this Fr. Greene twice set sail for England, but on each occasion the vessel being captured by a hostile power, he was sent In November 1707 we find him at Louvain, where he taught theology till 1712, when he was sent to Brussels. On 2 April 1716 he was chosen Provincial of the English Congregation by the Master-General, and from 1717 was again at Louvain. Before the expiration of his term of office he repaired to Brussels, but soon guitted Flanders for the English Mission. He was however recalled in 1722 to Brussels, where he had an attack of quartan ague, and was laid up for a year. In 1726 Fr. Greene returned to England and, as already stated, was appointed in 1728 chaplain to Mrs. Knight at Kingerby. Here he remained until 1730, when he was summoned to London for the Provincial Chapter held that year, and was not allowed to return to Kingerby, the Chapter thinking his services would be of more value in London than in the country. In October 1732 he left England for Brussels in order to exercise his influence with the Dominican nuns there, who were at loggerheads with their prioress, and became their confessor, which office he held till 1736, when a stroke of paralysis obliged him to retire to the college at Louvain, where he ended his days on 28 July 1741, in the 86th year of his age.

From 1730 to 1743 there is a break in the record until the appointment in that latter year of-

Fr. William Anderson alias Ignatius Sheffield, S.J., who came to Kingerby as chaplain to Mrs. Knight. Born in Lincolnshire 12 June 1689, he entered the Society of Jesus in 1721, and eventually became superior of the Lincolnshire District. He is said to have been a great astronomer, and remained at Kingerby until his death, 23 Aug. 1764. His successor in the chaplaincy was-

Fr. Joseph Johnson, S.J., who, owing to Mrs. Knight's death in 1765, was the last of the missioners to reside at Kingerby. Born 29 Nov. 1737 he entered the Society in 1758. Fr. Johnson remained in charge of the mission until 1780, and afterwards became chaplain to Sir Henry Hunloke at Wingerworth, near Spinkhill, Derbyshire, where he died 14 Feb. 1817. He was succeeded by—

Fr. James Leslie, S.J., who two years later became the first resident priest at Market Rasen. Born in 1741, and descended from a noble Scottish family related to the Constables of Everingham, Fr. Leslie had previously acted as almoner to a Scottish regiment in France. He served Market Rasen until 1794, and later on was at Grafton Manor till 1806, when he was sent to Oxford to take the place of his younger brother, Charles, who died there suddenly on 28th December of that year. He remained at Oxford until 1812, when he was appointed chaplain to Peter Middelton, Esq., of Stockeld Park, Spofforth, Yorks. Here he died 25 Aug. 1816 (cf. C.R.S. vii and xii). The next priest was a French

Père François Cosmas Damian Allain, S.J. He was not long in charge, as towards the end of 1796 he left for York, where he appears to have served the York Bar Convent Chapel. In Oct. 1800 he returned to France and died there in 1811. The next priest appointed to the mission by the Jesuit Provincial was a Carmelite-

Fr. Francis Willoughby Brewster, O.C.D., a native of Market Rasen, having been born there on 11 Dec. 1770. He received his early education at the institute of Dr. Shuttleworth, and entering the Carmelite Order was sent to Belgium to study divinity at Tongres, but the Revolution caused him to seek a refuge, first at Heidelberg, and then at Cologne, until the French troops sweeping over Rhenish Prussia and the Low Countries forced the English students to return to England. They arrived safely at Harwich after a stormy and difficult passage, and not long after his return in 1796, Fr. Brewster was appointed to Market Rasen, which mission he served for the long period of fifty-one years, thereby more than covering the Register here printed, which is entirely his own. He is said to have been a pious and zealous priest, and it was owing to his energy that the presbytery and chapel built by Fr. Knight in 1782 were replaced by new buildings in 1824, as related above. He also, when the old Chapel House at West Rasen was pulled down in 1838, opened a new chapel there to take its place. We are told that in order to increase his very inadequate income, Fr. Brewster kept forty or fifty beehives, and cultivated some small fields at a distance of about a mile and a half from the town. Every morning he was at work by five o'clock in the fields or at the hives; after which, returning to the presbytery, he prepared for Mass, which was always punctually said at the appointed hour.

He was the last surviving member of the old English Carmelites, and at the time when preparations were being made for the Catholic Emancipation Act (passed in March 1829), a Parliamentary paper being circulated among the heads of the Religious Orders to ascertain the number of religious, he filled up his paper as follows: "No superior, no inferior, being the last man." In 1845 owing to his age and infirmity, the Rev. John Gosford, of Preston, came to help him as assistant priest, and remained with him in that capacity until the autumn of 1847, when Fr. Brewster, being unable to carry on the work any longer, retired to a cottage near the presbytery where in November 1848 he became seriously ill, and on 11 Jan. 1849 calmly passed away. His body lies in the sanctuary of the church where a monument was erected to his memory.

Fr. Thomas Clarke, S.J., from Lincoln, had been appointed to the mission on Fr. Brewster's retirement in 1847, but it was not until 1850 that he settled down at Market Rasen, his place being meanwhile supplied by Fr. James Walker, S.J., from Wigan. Fr. Clarke was born in Dublin 24 Jan. 1804. He remained in charge of the mission until it was given up by the Society in 1859. He then left for Loughborough, and was afterwards at Tunbridge Wells and also Wardour Castle. He died at Blackpool 2 April 1870.

The first secular priest appointed by the Bishop of Nottingham, into whose hands the mission had now been handed over, was—

Very Rev. Thomas, Canon Sing, well known for his work at Derby and elsewhere. During the short time he was at Market Rasen he enlarged the presbytery, and resigning in 1864 was succeeded by—

Rev. Edward Smith, from St. Barnabas' Cathedral, Nottingham.

He died 18 April 1867, and was succeeded by-

Rev. Algernon Moore, promoted from Osgodby. He was born in Lincolnshire 28 Sept. 1839, and being educated at Bruges and afterwards at Oscott, was ordained priest at Nottingham 6 Nov. 1865. In 1868 he practically rebuilt Holy Rood Chapel, adding new north and south aisles and also a tower; and in 1872 West Rasen was indebted to him for the School Chapel of Our Lady of the Rosary. He resigned in 1875 (dying 5 July 1880), when the Rev. Henry Taylor Cafferata took charge of the mission until the appointment in 1876 of—

Very Rev. James, Canon Dwyer, of Nottingham. Canon Dwyer, who was born at Newport, co. Mon., 11 Feb. 1837, was educated at Bruges, and ordained priest at Nottingham 27 Dec. 1867. He died 14

March 1900, and was succeeded by-

Rev. Francis C. Hays, who, born at Liverpool 21 May 1870, was ordained priest at Nottingham 28 Oct. 1894. He retired in 1907 and was succeeded in June 1908 by the present rector—

Rev. Dominic Hengel, who, born 14 Sept. 1875, at Machtum, in the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, was ordained priest at Nottingham 20 Oct. 1901.

Thanks are due to the Rev. Dominic Hengel, of Market Rasen; the Rev. Arthur H. D'Arcy, of Shifnal; the Rev. Edwin Henson, Nottingham Diocesan Archives; the Rev. Fabian Dix, O.P.; John J. Baldwin Young, Esq., of Kingerby; and Joseph Gillow, Esq., for much valuable and helpful information. The following is a list of the authorities consulted:

British Museum, MS., 4135, Escaeta Com. Lincoln; MS., 15629, Names of Popish Recusants, etc., 1716; Burke, Commoners; Landed Gentry; Extinct and Dormant Baronetcies; Visitation of Seats, etc.; Catholic Directory; Catholic Record Society, iv, xii, etc.; Foley, Records S.J.: Gage, History, etc., of Hengrave; Gillow, Bibliog. Where Foley's dates differ from those given in the official "Directory," I have invariably taken the latter as my authority.

THE REGISTERS.

The book, Lincolnshire Non-parochial Registers No. 43, is now in the Registrar-General's office at Somerset House. Thanks are due to the officials for their courtesy whilst the transcript was being made for the Society. It is neatly bound in vellum, and consists of some 360 pages of good paper of a bluish colour, bearing the watermark date of 1799, showing that the earlier entries were copied from other sources. The first six pages are blank, the entries beginning on the seventh which is numbered I, and so on up to 27, after which the pagination ceases. The entries on pages I to 5 are mostly taken from Prayer-books, etc., after which follow 9 blank pages. The Register proper then begins on page 15, the first entry being dated 10 May, 1797.

Inside the book, attached to the cover, is a blue slip docketed "Registers belonging to Market Rasen Catholic Chapel." To this, seven other slips are joined together by a piece of thread, and an eighth by a pin, bearing the following entries:

* This family of Champney came from Everingham. Mr. George Young, in his MS. notes, referring to Mr. Jesse Champney (whose name figures in the above list) as living at Osgodby in 1842, says, "He has frequently told me that his grandfather [Thomas Champuey] was House Steward to Sir Marmaduke Constable of Everingham, Yorkshire. Sir Marmaduke Constable about the year 1730 was taken to York Castle a prisoner, as being a 'Popish Recusant.'
The soldiers were nearly all intoxicated before starting, from the refreshment that Sir M. Constable ordered his steward to provide for them. Sometime afterwards they came to apprehend Mr. Champney to take him to the Castle also; the soldiers searched in vain for some days, for he was concealed in the fields in the standing corn—once when concealed under a Hay Stack they wounded him by probing with their swords to ascertain if he was therein concealed but he did not call out. Mr. Champney was afterwards made steward of Sir Marmaduke Constable's Lincolnshire [estate] in which capacity he came to reside at West Rasen."

No. VIII.

THE CATHOLIC REGISTERS OF KNARESBOROUGH, 1765-1840. CONTRIBUTED BY T. G. CUMMINS, G. F. ENGELBACH AND J. S. HANSOM.

HISTORICAL NOTES BY THE RT. REV. ABBOT CUMMINS, O.S.B.

The recorded story of Knaresborough mission begins in 1693, when English Benedictines became chaplains to the Plumptons, whose ancient home from which they took their name lay two miles south of the town. The names and activities of the secular clergy who ministered in the district before that date have not been recorded, but amongst the dwindling flock were Knaresboroughs of Farnham and Byrnands of Knaresborough, Swales of Rudfarlington, Trappes of Knaresborough and later of Nidd Hall, Percys at Scotton, and some of the Slingsbys at Scriven and Inglebys at Ripley; besides many of lesser social standing. In the neighbourhood were Middeltons at Stockeld, Tancreds and Meynells at Aldborough, Gascoignes at Parlington. The Ven. Robert Bickerdyke martyred at York in 1586, and Fr. Wilks, confessor in 1642, were born here. Guy Fawkes' mother, after her second marriage to Dionis Baynbridge, lived and died at Scotton. The Plumptons who remained Catholic to the last were the chief supporters of the old Faith in Knaresborough.

Eldred de Plumpton had held Plumpton and Rudfarlington under William de Percy at Spofforth shortly after the Conquest. Peter fought with the barons against King John. Sir William was beheaded with his uncle, Archbishop Scrope, in 1405. Another fell at Marston Moor. On the death of Robert without issue in 1749 the estates were sold to the ancestor of Lord Harewood, the last of the Plumpton name being Dames Angela and Bernarda, Benedictine nuns at Cambrai, though the family is represented by the Palmes family of Naburn and Annes of Burghwallis.

On the closing of the chapel at Plumpton in 1755 the priest remained in the neighbourhood, living on Thistle Hill and later at Follifoot, in which village some land was purchased in 1775 and a house erected that served as a residence and chapel. It still exists and is known as The Priory. In 1797 the priest went to live for the first time in Knaresborough itself, a large house being purchased in Briggate where the mission was maintained until 1831 when, immediately after Catholic Emancipation, the existing site in Bondend was obtained, and a small house and roomy chapel were built in the nondescript style of the period. Ample school accommodation has been provided in later years, the church improved and the residence enlarged.

Celia Fiennes, in a diary written about 1700, describes being taken by a Catholic hostess at Knaresborough to visit a "Chapel with altar decked with flowers and the ground with rushes for ye devout that did frequent it." As Holy Rood chapel at St. Robert's Cave was in ruins at that date and its site forgotten, this can only refer to the Chapel of Our Lady of the Crag near the Low Bridge; it indicates an unexpected toleration of Catholic observance as well as some continued veneration of an old shrine. Both St. Robert's Cave and Our Lady of the Crag have come back recently into Catholic custody.

The hand of Ven. Ambrose Barlow, O.S.B., martyred at Lancaster in 1641, was once kept in the Knaresborough mission to which it probably came as a relic from Plumpton. About 1820 the hand was taken by Fr. Rolling to Downside for more safe and reverent keeping, and later passed to Stanbrook Abbey where it is still preserved.

The Catholic population of the district shows some increase in the early years of the nineteenth century. Within the mission's extensive bounds new chapels were opened with resident priests: Allerton Park by Lord Stourton in 1807, Harrogate in 1861, Rudding Park by Sir Percival Radcliffe in 1874, and Starbeck in 1911; the mother church of St. Mary's being left with fewer people and a very much smaller district than it served a hundred years ago.

For the first sixty years the names in the registers are exclusively English, hardly a single Irish name occurring. At the present time, with the exception of some half-dozen, none of those names are to be found among the parishioners. Through the defection, migration or extinction of the old families the character and nationality of the mission have greatly altered.

Notes on Recusants by J. S. Hansom. Knaresborough.

Some of the names in the registers appear in the Recusant lists, as Cass(e), Malthouse (spelt Maltus, Moltis, Mawtus, etc.), Wheelhouse, etc. In the Exchequer Roll of 1592-3 (C.R.S. xviii) are the names of twenty belonging to Knaresborough. Margaret Lutie, who helped to rescue martyrs' heads from her prison roof in York, and was twice convicted, is one (Troubles iii). A notable omission, by reason of his having been committed a prisoner to York Castle on 5 Oct. 1591, is Francis Yonge, a husbandman and a married man. On 23 Aug. 1593 he, with

Christopher Stonehouse (Stayanus, Stonas, etc.), of Dunsley in Whitby, escaped. The spleen of their jailer was vented on the other Recusant prisoners (Foley's Records S.J. iii). At Wetherby sessions, 14 Jan. 1597-8, he and his wife were convicted of recusancy with others of Knaresborough,-John Kirkman, William Wilkes, * Wilfri . . Gryman, Francis Yonge and Margaret his wife, Alice Bothvirley (? Bothomley in 1593), Richard Bothuirl(ey), Elizabeth Tunstall widow, Agneta Hebden widow, Elizabeth Thorpe widow, Elizabeth wife of Robert Hayes, Jennett wife of John Sissy, Isabella wife of John Bowland, Agneta wife of John Harri[son] (Yorks. Records iii). Still constant in 1604. Francis and Margaret Yonge of Arkenden [Arkendale in Knaresborough parish] had been recusants for seven years [perhaps counting from the preceding conviction]; they are said also to have been secretly married, and to have had five children secretly baptised. With them recur the names of Elizabeth Tunstall and Agnes Hebden widows, and Margaret Mounkton single woman. Henry Craven and Thomas Mushe the elder♥ had only been recusants since 25 Mar. 1603. The following had perhaps temporised, having only been non-communicants for twelve months,—Sir Francis Trappes and his wife [Mary Atkinson], William Slingsby gent., Edward Burnard [? Byrnand] gent., John Johnson yeoman, William Earle sadler, Robert Gibson senior, Ellen wife of John Ingland, Robert Sympson a poor youth, Ellen wife of William Sympson, Isabell wife of John Knagges, Margaret wife of Gilbert Ward, Roger Poynton a workman at forge, Margaret his wife, Jennett wife of John

The reader is referred to C.R.S. vi for eighteen recusants in 1666, including those at Bondend-cum-Scriven and Bilton-cum-[High] Harrogate.

Oliver Heywood, the Puritan minister, quotes some, printed with his registers by J. Horsfall Turner in 1881, as follows,-

1679 n.d. at Skipton. Matthew Harrison ind[icted], William Casse ind, Ann Parker ind, Isabell Simpson ind, William Cowton ind, Ann Young, Edward Bickerdyke, Francis Bridge, Richard Casse ind, George Casse, Bridget ux[or] Ricard Casse ind, John Tucker, William Fawcett

- * The name suggests a possible connection with Wilks (ut supra) alias Tomson, a native of Knaresborough, a secular priest, "Lord Evers' priest," who was arrested at Malton, where the Lords Eure owned property. He was sent to York Castle, tried and convicted, but died before execution, about 1642. William, fifth Lord Eure of Malton, was slain at the battle of Marston Moor, 2 July, 1644. Bishop Challoner probably got his information from the Rev. John Knaresborough's valuable MS., the latter being a native of Ferrensby in Farnham parish, adjoining Knaresborough. Born 1672 and died in York 1724. It is not clear whether the family took its name from the town, parish, or extensive forest. One was forester of Haverah Park in the forest. As recusants, three appear in 1593 (C.R.S. xviii); and Peter K. of Ripley in 1597-8 (Yorks. Records iii), and later lists. Some may have sought relief from the persecution by going to Ireland, retaining affection for their old home, as shown by Emma and Catherine Knaresborough coming in 1843 from Ireland to the venerable York Bar Convent school. Some particulars appear in Knaresborough Wills (Surtees Society). See also Gillow, Dict. Engl. Caths. iv, 60-62.—J.S.H.
- ₹ John Mushe, linen weaver, appears in 1593. There seems no proof of relationship to the two brothers and priests, John and William Mush, both condemned to death. John escaped and William was pardoned.
- * Presumably at Skipton Sessions; also the following paragraph. Heywood calls one "Skipton bundle."

ind, Elizabeth ux George Smith ind, Thomas Jefferson ind, Barbara ux Peter Simpson, John Fawcett ind, all of Knaresborough.

1679 July at Skipton. William Cowton, William Casse, Emmanuel Casse his son, William Casse the younger, Elizabeth Fawcett, Anne the wife of Thomas Jefferson, Ellen his daughter, Anne wife of Thomas Parker, Katherine Wheelehouse, Anne Fletcher, George Casse, all of Knaresborough.

It will be noticed that only three names recur in the second list, i.e. George and William Casse and William Cowton, and what happened to the others, indicted or not, does not appear, but all were evidently arrested or meant to be arrested, for there is added the note,—"Could not take them. Constable discharged."

In the same year.—Thomas Grimstone and Mary Squire of Biltoncum-Harrogate, were not to be found.

At Arkendale were-Robert Hargreaves, Widow Beckwith, and Elizabeth Smith.

At Scriven-cum-Tentergate-John Tucker, Anthony Cass, Daniel

Dodshion.

A smaller class of Catholic residents registered their estates in 1717,—Emmanuel Casse, gent., for a copyhold £1 5s. p.a.; George Cass, gent., for a freehold house; John Thompson junior, tailor, for a house there, and an estate at Ripley, £37 12s.; Matthew Harrison, yeoman, for a house.

Within fifty years the registers speak for themselves.

Spofforth.

Peacock's "Yorkshire Papists of 1604" gives,—Sir Edward Plumpton's wife, and his four servants John Barlielayes, Anne , John Harrington, and Margaret Herman; Jane wife of Richard Paver gent., and Jane Ingleby widow, all recusants for two years; George Gelstrop gent. and his wife for one year. Sir Edward Plumpton, William Reynolds schoolmaster, William Thompson linen-weaver, Damer his wife, William Woodburne, William Swaile, Dorothy his wife, Solomon Swaile their son, William Ramesden husbandman, William Wilson bailiff, his wife, William Godfrey, Francis Chapman tanner, and Rennie Swynburne servant to Sir Edward Plumpton, had only been non-communicants for one year. William Thompson and Damer Kendolle, and Laurence Muncke and Jane Pallor had been secretly married.

In 1666 there appear fifteen recusants at Spofforth, thirty at Plumpton, sixteen at Follifoot, and eight at Linton (C.R.S. vi).

Oliver Heywood gives the following Popish Recusants in 1691,—
At Spofforth, Middleton, etc.—John Middleton, Esq., and Jaine his wife; Abraham Atkinson and William Gill, his servants; Squire [Robert] Plumpton; Henry Pullan; James Hawkesworth; Gabriel Loadman; George Crooke; Catherine Smithson; Ann Shearewood, Elizabeth Loftas [Lofthouse]; John Swaile; Ann Sumpster and Ann her daughter; Andrew Hardwick; Thomas Hawksworth; Philip Lofthouse and Ann his wife; Ellinor wife of Christopher Hodgson; William Gill [? a second]; William Harrison; Thomas Harrison; Margaret wife of Thomas Hodgson.

At Plumpton-William Atkinson and Frances his wife; Widow Bickerdike and John her son; Edward Bickerdike and Isabel his wife; Mrs. Helen Plumpton; Ann Swaile; Barbara Clayton; Edward Briggs and Elizabeth his wife; John Swaile and his wife; Francis Briggs; Ellen Briggs, widow; Thomasin Coats; Margaret wife of John Knowles; Stephen Shann; Elizabeth Pullen; William Mercer; John Parker and Mary his wife.

At Wetherby—only Thomas Emmerson.
At Follifoot—Edward Bayram and Margaret his wife; Roger Deigh-ton and Barbara his wife.

In 1717, besides Robert Plumpton of Plumpton, Esq., who returned the entailed manor at £539 5s. id. p.a. after deducting an annuity of £50 to Robert Lascells, there were smaller property-owning Nonjurors, as Christopher Smith of Follyfoot, yeoman, a house; George Procter of Plumpton, a house for lives of self and Margaret his wife, with land let at £12 2s.

We are indebted to the Registrar-General for permission to transcribe both books, and to the officials for courtesy in the process.

THE REGISTERS. BOOK I.

This is a tall volume, the paper measuring $15\frac{1}{2} \times 6\frac{1}{4}$ inches. It is bound in vellum and labelled "York 217." On the inside of the front cover is pasted the usual certificate, which describes the Roman Catholic Chapel called St. Mary's, Knaresborough, situate in the County of Yorkshire, founded about the year 1797 [sic], and is signed "William Hampson," and dated 20 October, 1840. On page 1 is the stamped "Certificate" signed by John Bowring, Thos Rees & John Shoveller, Commissioners. On page 2 are the following entries:

[Here follow two duplicate entries scored out.]

August the 2nd 1797. The Chapel was transferred to Knaresbro from Follifoot, to which latter place it had formerly been transferred from Plumpton about the time when the male branch of ye Plumpton family failed, which was about the year of our Lord 1755.

Follifoot Chapel House,* with about five acres of good land were sold to one Jackson Esqr. of Hewood, for the sum of six hunfred & fifty pounds.

Knaresbro Chapel house in Brigate was built in ye year 1790 by one Thornton a Cotton manufacturer. Soon after the war broke out with the french republic, he failed, and Mr Lacon, *T ye then existing provincial purchased the Building for the sum of four hundred & twenty five pounds.

[Note written in margin of this and the next page.]

During the troublesome times, the Priest lay concealed at ye farm house on Thistlehill, and there did duty occasionally.

NB. The Plumpton Fund was left, not for Follifoot, but Thistle-hill or Plumpton. twenty pounds were also given to idemnify ye incumbent for ye loss of crops at Follifoot which Mr Jackson ye purchaser insisted should be included in ye purchase—ten pounds were also laid out in building ye necessary, the walls of ye second purchase & ceiling the rooms, which look into ye second purchase.

* Now called the Priory.

The Dom Rowland Michael Lacon, born in 1744 at Lindley, Salop, son of Rowland Lacon and his wife Appolonia Elliot. On the mission at Brandsby 1771-92; at Aberford 1792-1806. Provincial of York 1785-1806. Died at Lindley 8 Feb. 1807 (Birt's Obits O.S.B.).

[The lower half of the next page 43 has been cut out and in its place has been pasted a sheet of blue writing paper endorsed The Rev^d M^r Appleton, Bridge Street, Knaresbro, on which is the following note.]

The expenses in reperations and alterations amounted to three hundred & fifty pounds.

The piece of land on ye north-west end of ye building is not in ye liberty of ye borough; it was taken from ye adjoining pasture, with ye consent of ye proprietors, and transferred to us along with the building in consideration of two small sums one pound ten shillings to ye proprietor & fix 6 o to ye Lord of ye Manor, &c. for surrender, &c. of ye same. The piece of land with a cottage to ye street was purchased in ye 1798 of Robt Shutt for ye sum of eighty pounds and after some exchanges made with Thos. Hornby, cost fifty pounds, besides ye expence of building one half of ye Eastern wall, which as far as the seam in the said wall belongs to the chapel. (43) August 22nd 1797. * Rev. R. H. Sanderson died 1888, buried at Workington.

A family tradition is that Edward, nephew of Dom James Adrian Horsman, was a church student at the English College in Rome when it was suppressed at the Revolution in 1798; and, being unable to follow up his desire to be a priest, married. But his love for the Fathers of the Desert came out by his calling his sons-Macarius, Hilarion, and Arsenius, some of which unusual names are found amongst his descendants.-J.I.C.

Mrs. Daniel. John Daniel.

[The lower half of the leaf containing pages 91 and 92, and the whole of some fifty following leaves have been cut out. The two remaining leaves, one of which is pasted on to the end cover, contain entries in lead pencil in many cases almost illegible, which appear to be temporary notes of births and marriages, afterwards entered in their proper places in the Register.]

Book II.

The second book is $14\frac{3}{4} \times 9\frac{1}{2}$ inches of printed tabulated forms, not used in the order given, "Quality, Trade, or Profession" being generally ignored, whilst "Sponsors" are introduced. Adherence to the original is impossible, and a second line is given here for Sponsors, variations, etc. Repetitions of priests' names are often abbreviated.

Baptisms solemnised in the Parish of Knaresbro'.

[A number of the following entries are duplicates of those in Book I, but there are discrepancies.]

No. IX.

THE CATHOLIC REGISTERS OF COSTESSEY OR COSSEY HALL, NORFOLK, THE SEAT OF THE JERNINGHAM FAMILY, BARONETS. 1785–1821.

CONTRIBUTED BY JOHN PETER SMITH.

HISTORICAL NOTES BY CANON E. H. BURTON AND J. S. HANSOM.

In 1553, on the death of the youthful King Edward VI, John Dudley, who had been created Duke of Northumberland, and other conspirators attempted to place his daughter-in-law, Lady Jane Grey, on the throne. Sir Henry Jernegan or Jerningham was prominent amongst those who proclaimed Queen Mary in Norfolk and Suffolk, and raised forces to secure her rights. For his loyal services the Queen granted him the manor of Costessey, Wingfield Castle in Suffolk, and estates in Gloucestershire and Herefordshire, and appointed him to high offices of State. He remained one of her trusted advisers during the short reign. His religion debarred him State appointments during the following one, but Queen Elizabeth could not but know that her own accession would have been impossible but for such loyalty, whatever her own right may have been. Costessey remained in the family till 1913.

It was subsequent to the date of these registers that the family succeeded to the Barony of Stafford and to the Costessey estate, assuming the name of Stafford, as Stafford-Jerningham. The title and estate passed to Colonel Francis Edward Fitzherbert, now Fitzherbert-Stafford, in 1913; whilst the Baronetcy devolved to Sir (William) Henry Stafford Jerningham.

On a previous page members of the Jerningham family appear as recusants in 1577, and even if there be some defections (as will be quoted) at times under the remorseless persecutions, we know that compositions for recusancy were allowed, and this may be the case where "Elena (? Eleanor Dacre) wife of Henry Jernegan of Cossey" alone appears in 1593 (C.R.S. xviii, 229; see also below John Dereham, the priest). Absence or imprisonment account for omissions. Besides we know (ut supra) that the recusants owning estates in four counties have to be searched—even a fifth, for a true bill was found 31 Dec. 1601 against Henry Jerningham, junior, of St. Clement Danes, gentleman, as a Middlesex recusant. Also on 6 March 1607 Henry Jerningham, of St. Martin's in the Fields. The town residence of the family was in the last parish, a burglary being committed there in the dwelling-house of Sir Henry Jernegan, first baronet, on I April 1629 (Midx. Rec. i, ii, iii). Costessey was much damaged by the parliamentary forces for his loyalty to Charles I. It is difficult to account for a statement (Foley ii, 571), vouched for by Fr. Francis Sankey, S.J., who went to Norwich in 1647, of an anonymous Jesuit reconciling to the Faith, a month before his death, a Mr. Jerningham, few lines later called this knight, who for many years had laid in schism and frequented Protestant Churches. Costessey is not mentioned—only Norfolk; the time is about 1643 or 1644, but follows some events about 1643—after some days; and its vagueness is apparent. The first baronet died in 1646; his third son, Thomas, was knighted in 1627.

George Jerningham, of St. Clement Danes, gentleman, was proceeded against as a recusant 1 Jan. 1616. He may be the George Jarrengam of the same, called a yeoman, 1 Oct. 1618 (Midx. Rec. ii). He would be brother of Sir Henry, and went into exile for the Faith, two of his daughters, both born in Winchester Castle, being professed Franciscan nuns at Brussels in 1623 (C.R.S. viii).

Sir Henry was succeeded in 1646 by his grandson, another Sir Henry, and it is hardly likely, unless he had succumbed, that Oliver Cromwell would have issued the following,-

"These are to command and require you and every of you that you henceforth forbeare to molest the person, seize, take, plunder or carry away any of the horses, oxen, sheep, corne, household stuff or any other goods whatsoever of or belonging to Sir Henry Jareghan of Cossey, in the County of Norfolk, as you and every of you will answer the Contrary att your uttmost perills.

Given under my hand and Seale at Whitehall this 4th day of Jan. 1648.

O. Cromwell.

To all Officers and Soldiers whome this may concerne."

We do not find him compounding for his estates during the Commonwealth for recusancy nor delinquency. He died in 1680, and twenty-one years later his son, Sir Francis, had taken the unmistakable step of having a Catholic chaplain at Costessey. But all through the matrimonial alliances speak of a Catholic element, running with the tradition of constant adherence to the Faith.

Rev. John Dereham, probably a Marian priest, seems to have had a long connection with the Jerningham family. The year 1559, ascribed to a document may be too early, wherein "Henry Jerningham of Wingfield [in Suffolk, another seat of the family], Esq., and his wife; Durham [sic] his schoolmaster, persuaded the old Lady Jerningham that for receiving the Communion she had damned herself." On a previous page (58) Mr. Dereham a preest appears at Cossey on 29 Oct. 1577. Imprisonment must have followed soon, for on 22 Aug. 1578 Mr. Dereham, a priest committed to Norwich, was ordered to appear before the Privy Council.

He had evidently obtained his liberty before 16 Oct. 1585, when "Papists refusing to come to Church" were called on to provide lancomen or light horsemen; the following being quoted—Henry Gerningham, Eaton, I lance; Mr. Dereham, Costessey, I lance; Henry Jerningham, Wingfield, 2 lances, 2 light horse." The Papist recusants complied so readily that Queen Elizabeth allowed them to compound for their recusancy for annual payments, and John Dereham of Costessey offered 46 per annum. In 1592 John Dereham of Cossey, gent., appears in a list of Recusants at large.

If Mr. R. T. Bedingfeld had had the full names on p. 58 he would doubtless have fixed on John, third son of Thomas Dereham of Crimplesham, whom he quotes. No further particulars of this John are given in the County Visitation (Harl. Soc. xxxii, 105), nor of his nephew John, who would be too young, but had a sister Anne married to Roger, third son of Gregory Pratt of Ryston (Ibid. and p. 225).

In 1582 an informer reported that there were living as Catholics at Cossey,—Lady Jerningham, Mr. Charles Waldegrave and his wife, and Mr. Pratt a priest. The last was buried at the parish church 17 April 1582.

A conjecture of Dr. Jessopp's that Fr. John Gerard, S.J., was at Costessey after his landing in Norfolk late in 1588 remains a conjecture. After this we have only the reported visit of an unknown Jesuit about 1643 or 1644.

Canon Husenbeth made search for the names of Catholic chaplains, probably from the family archives, and quoted in Sir Henry S. Jerningham's book; so we arrive on clearer ground at last. He commences,-

Rev. Ferdinand Silver, from 1701-21, when he went to Norwich.-He was of Bristol diocese, born 22 Mar. 1668, took the College oath at Douay 27 Dec. 1689, and the Mission oath 17 April 1691 (Knox, Douay Diary I). His death is recorded, without date, between 17 Sept. 1728 and 23 Jan. 1728-9, amongst secular priests (C.R.S. xii, 3).

Rev. Francis Jerningham, S.J., 1714-27.—A younger son of Sir Francis Jerningham, third Bart., and his wife Anne, daughter of Sir George Blount of Sodington, second Bart. Educated at St. Omers, joined the Jesuits in 1707, and died in London 1739, aged 51. His portrait in oils, formerly at Costessey, was presented to the Jesuits in 1913 by Sir Henry S. Jerningham, and is now at their College, Stamford Hill, Middlesex.

Rev. James Hudson, about 1740; died at Cossey, buried in the porch of the parish church.

Rev. Simon Strickland, died at Sizergh 21 Mar. 1782.—The Laity's Directory, 1794 (C.R.S. xii), gives his death in Yorkshire. He studied theology at Douay 1758-62; taught humanities 1762-65; was ordained priest later, and was missioner at Aiskew near Bedale, York.

He was elected a Capitular in 1781.

Rev. Charles Smith, O.S.B., about 1762.—Charles son of Charles Smythe, born in London 1727. Educated at St. Gregory's, Douay, where he was clothed 17 Oct. 1744, and professed 3 July, 1746. At Swinburne Castle, Northumberland, 1759-61; Gilling Castle, Yorks., in 1761, when he returned to Douay. At Cossey 1767-69, when he finally returned to Douay, dying there 19 Mar. 1780 (Birt, Obits O.S.B., 112). Yet the Benedictines are said to have held the Cossey chaplaincy from 1761 to 1771 (Ibid. 357). It looks as if Fr. Smythe was chaplain from 1761 to 1768, even if he visited Douay in 1761 between being at Gilling and at Costessey.

Rev. Roger Hall, left 1771.—Dom Roger Boniface Hall, O.S.B.; born in Lancashire 1737; professed at Lamspring 1756; at Costessey 1769-71; at Lanherne, Cornwall, 1771. Died at Lamspring 16 Oct. 1803 (Ibid. 124). The earliest loose sheet of registers in the book would seem to be his, judging by the dates. Rev. Charles Thompson, died at Bristol 6 April 1795.—This identifies him with the ex-Jesuit (C.R.S.xii,50), the Society having been suppressed by the Holy See from 1773 to 1814. Born in Maryland 5 Sept. 1746; admitted to the Jesuit noviciate at St. Omers 7 Sept. 1766. After ordination served at Witham, Essex; but Kirk says in Lord Stourton's family; next as chaplain to Anastasia Lady Mannock at Gifford's Hall. Suffolk, for seven years; then for five years with Fr. Robert Plowden, S.J., at Bristol, where he died.

Rev. James Appleton vere Moore [?] who left in 1778.—This description does not agree with Douay Diary I, "Jacobus Appleton, 2di an. philosophus, filius Jacobi [Appleton] et Mariae Smith, Diœc. Nordvicencis (Norwich), ætatis anno 19," when he took the oath of alumni 12 Mar. 1762. He was a master at Esquerchin, while still a subdeacon, in 1767. After ordination he taught at St. Omers 1769-71, and left Douay 31 May 1771, "to be with Sir George Jerningham at Cossey"

(President Blount's Diary, Westm. Archives). After coming on the mission he accompanied the sons of Sir William Jerningham, Bart., in a tour on the Continent, after which he was chaplain to Michael Blount, Esq., at Mapledurham, Oxon., then to Thomas Giffard, Esq., at Chillington, Staffs., next to Sir Walter Blount, Bart., at Mawley, Salop, in 1801, and lastly, in 1804, settled at Stafford, till his death 2 Mar. 1814 (Kirk Biographies, iv; Oliver's Collections, 420, which differ).

Rev. John Hurst supplied occasionally from (King's) Lynn till 1784.—Presumably the one who took the oath of almunus at Douay on 3 Nov. 1753, aged 19, his parents being Catholics of Lancashire. Gillow (Dict. Engl. Caths. iii, 486) says he received his elementary education at the school of "Dame Alice" (Harrison) at Fernyhalgh. In 1762 he was placed in charge of the new school at Betley, Staffs., which was removed in 1763 to Sedgley Park, until Mr. Hugh Kendal arrived as President, 27 May, after which Mr. Hurst remained as Chaplain for five or six years, when he removed to King's Lynn, supplying at Costessey from 1778 to 1784, having also charge of the congregation at Thetford for several years. In 1791 he was placed at Scarisbrick Hall, Lancashire, where he died and was buried at Ormskirk 22 Jan 1702 (Ibid.)

shire, where he died and was buried at Ormskirk 23 Jan. 1792 (Ibid.). Rev. George Chamberlayne, baptized 2 Feb. 1738-9, at the parish church of Great Cressingham, Norfolk, where his father, the Rev. Edward C., was the Protestant rector. Was a king's scholar at Eton College 1750-55; admitted a scholar at King's College, Cambridge, 19 Sept. 1755; B.A. in 1760; M.A. 1764; and was Fellow 1758-81. He became tutor to and travelled on the Continent with Henry Fiennes Clinton, Earl of Lincoln, son of the second Duke of Newcastle. When abroad he was struck with the religious behaviour of Catholics, read works of Bossuet and others, and had some practical proofs of a miracle. He hesitated however for some years, but was received into the Church in the year 1778 by the Rev. Peter Browne of Lincoln's Inn Fields chapel, and confirmed by Bishop Challoner. On 16 May 1780 he arrived at Douay College, being received as a convictor on 27 May and admitted to the Seniors' table, studying his theology till late in 1783, when he was ordained priest, returning to England in 1784. In Boswell's Life of Johnson, under that year, we read-" Mrs. Kennicot spoke of her brother, the Rev. Mr. Chamberlayne, who had given up great prospects in the Church of England on his conversion to the Roman Catholic faith. Johnson, who warmly admired every man who acted from a conscientious regard to principle, erroneous or not, fervently exclaimed, 'God bless him.'" He was appointed chaplain to Sir William Jerningham, Baronet, at Cossey in the summer of 1784, the registers from 22 Feb. 1785 to 30 July 1798 being copies of his. He probably left early in September, said to be in the autumn. One of his successors, evidently Mr. Samuel Jones, records nearly twenty years later, the remembrance of him cherished with affectionate veneration by his former flock.

In 1787 he had been offered the position of President of St. Omers College, but humbly declined. A statement that Bishop Thomas Talbot (V.A.-Midland D. 1766-95) applied for a coadjutor in 1789, and that Chamberlayne's was one of three names submitted to Rome, is discredited by the fact that Bishop Charles Berington was then his coadjutor. If this applies to Bishop James Talbot (V.A.-London D.

1759-90) it is more likely, speaking under reserve.

Chamberlayne came to London in the autumn of 1798, where he lived on terms of great intimacy with Bishop John Douglass in Castle (now Furnival) Street, Holborn. He was elected a member of the Chapter in 1802, died 4 Feb. 1815, aged 76, and was buried in the vault of the Vicars Apostolic at St. Pancras. His remains were found there when the bodies of Bishops Bonaventure Giffard, Benjamin Petre and John Douglass were removed to Old Hall in 1907 (R. A. Austen-Leigh, Register of Eton College; Catholic Magazine, iv, 17; C.R.S. xii, 127).

Rev. James Lane, ex S.J., of Norwich, officiated once on 2 Mar.

1795. He died there 5 April, 1821 (C.R.S. xii).

Rev. John Sanderson was at Oxburgh from 16 March 1798 till 7 July 1811 (C.R.S. vii), and died at Bath 10 Oct. 1813. There was a student of this name studying theology at Douay from 1785 to 1787 when he left in minor orders. The baptism, repeated below, is the only entry in these registers signed by him. Possibly he supplied during the vacancy between the departure of Mr. Chamberlayne and the arrival of Mr. Eustace.

Rev. John Chetwood (or Chetwode) Eustace, born in Ireland 1762; educated at Sedgley Park school 1767-74, then with the Benedictines at Douay for some years, after which he went to Maynooth College where for some time he taught rhetoric. After his ordination he seems to have given offence to the Irish bishops, and returned to England, where he assisted Dr. Collins in his school at Harrow, Middlesex (stated as Southall Park, to which the school was removed in 1806).* We find him below at Costessey before 13 Nov. 1798, until 2 Nov. 1799 at least. After this he is said to have been tutor to George Petre, Esq., and accompanied him to Cambridge. In 1802 he travelled through Italy with Lord Brownlow, Robert Rushbrooke, Esq., and Philip Roche, Esq. There is a gap here, and on a second tour he was taken ill and died at Naples 1 Aug. 1815. During the interval he published "A Political Catechism" in 1810; "An Answer to . . . the Bishop of Lincoln, etc." in 1813; "A Tour through Italy" in 1813, 2nd edition 1814; "A Classical Tour through Italy in 1802" in 1815; "A Letter from Paris etc.," in 1814; "The Proofs of Christianity, 1814," in 1814. Part of his "Tour through Italy" and certain of his views were condemned by Bishop Challener, and he acknowledged his errors. Although a native of Ireland he esteemed himself as English. His names seem to make him Anglo-Irish, as Burke's "Extinct Peerage" and "Landed Gentry" would show although his name does not appear in them (Gillow, Dict. Engl. Caths., i, xx; ii, 182-5; Kirk's Biographies, 70).

Rev. James Hawley, O.S.F., born in 1752, was Guardian when the Community was expelled from Douay and at Tongres after the expulsion. After acting as chaplain at Costessey from 1800 or 1801 till 1803 he became Definitor of the Province and was Provincial 1812–1815. For many years he served St. Peter's, Birmingham, and died at Worcester 30 June 1833,—not 1834 as erroneously stated by F. Thaddeus, Franciscans in England, p. 248.

Rev. William Hayes, educated at Valladolid, came on the mission in the London District 9 April 1800, but left it for a post in Staffordshire. He was only a few months at Costessey, in 1803. For very many years, certainly from 1825 and possibly before, he was missioner at King's Cliff, Northamptonshire, where he remained till 1855. We have not found the date of his death.

* Kirk (Biographies 70) says he was at Southall Park before going to Costessey. He probably knew nothing about Dr. Collins being at Harrow, nor about the definite dates in these registers. If Eustace was at Southall Park it must have been in or after 1806, and much after he had been at Costessey. There is certainly a long gap or interval, which may have been devoted to literary work, &c.

Rev. William Barnes, son of Helm and Grace Barnes of Tisbury, Wilts., was born 8 Nov. 1764 and educated at Rome. After ordination he returned to England in 1793 and was chaplain at Thame Park till 26 May 1796, when he left to accept another chaplaincy "in the North." In 1800 he was missioner at Brighton, but left there 10 Oct. 1803 to become chaplain at Costessey, where he remained till 1807. He died at Madeley, Shropshire, 28 April 1845, where he had been certainly for twenty years and probably longer.

Abbé Thomas Denis D'Eterville, an emigré from Bayeux diocese, France, appears once in 1807, once in 1818, and twice in 1819, during Mr. Samuel Jones's chaplaincy. He officiated once at Oxburgh in 1803.

Abbé Pierre Charles Fleury, alias Robertson, educated in Paris, and ordained for the diocese of Coutances, came to the London District in August 1801, and was chaplain at Hales Place till 3 Feb. 1804. Then he went as missioner to Dover, where he remained till he became chaplain at Costessey in 1808. He left Costessey in 1811 for Swinnerton Hall, Staffs., where he died 13 Feb. 1813.

Sir William Jerningham, sixth Bart., died 14 Aug. 1809, and was buried in the vault of St. Augustine's chapel which he had just completed. It was consecrated on 21 Aug. The architecture, on the lines of King's College chapel at Cambridge, on a small scale and much simpler in detail, is ascribed to his third son, Edward, a barrister, and accomplished musician, who took a leading part in Catholic politics.

Rev. Thomas Price, educated at Valladolid, was chaplain from 1811 to 1813, in which year he became pastor of St. Austin's Chapel, Stafford, a building which he incorporated into a new church. He also built schools, and developed the mission considerably. He died at Stafford

Rev. Samuel Jones, born at Wolverhampton, was one of four brothers who all became priests. He was educated at Oscott (1808–1813), where he was ordained on 12 Mar. 1813. The next seven years he spent as chaplain at Costessey, leaving there in 1820. Eventually he became missioner at Shrewsbury (1824-33), where he enlarged the chapel. He died there on 8 Aug. 1833.

Rev. John Fountain, who signs one entry in 1815, may perhaps be identified with the Rev. John Baptist Fontaine, S.J., a French Jesuit who entered the English province, renewed his vows in 1815 when that province was restored, and died in Paris Mar. 29, 1821, aged 82 (C.R.S.

Rev. Frederick Charles (? James) Husenbeth, D.D., namesake of his father who was a native of Mayence or Mentz in the archbishopric and electorate of the same, lived at Mannheim in the Rhenish palatinate, and settled at Bristol as a wine merchant, dying there 15 Mar, 1848, aged 82. His mother Elizabeth, daughter of Nathaniel James, born 1773, was a convert in 1806. The son was born at Bristol 30 May 1796, and baptized at St. Joseph's, Trenchard Street, on 5 June, when his second name is given as Jacobus or James, his mother's sirname. He was educated at Sedgley Park School and Oscott College, where he was ordained 25 Feb. 1820, whence for a few weeks he officiated from Saturday to Monday at Stourbridge, co. Worcester; coming to Costessey 7 July, 1820. Late in 1824 or early in 1825 he returned to Oscott College to teach divinity, but soon resumed his work at Costessey, where he died 31 Oct. 1872, practically devoting his long priesthood to this mission. He was grand-vicar to Bishop Walsh, V.A.-M.D., from 1827, and from 1852 provost and vicar-general of Northampton. He had preferred to live in a cottage as missioner of Costessey, rather than as chaplain at the Hall, and started a public chapel, dedicated to St. Walstan, a local saint, with the assistance of Lord Stafford and others. It was opened on 10 April 1844, the architect being John Chessel Buckler of Oxford, a Protestant, whose four sons became Catholics, three being Dominicans, and the other, Charles Alban, succeeding his father and becoming Surrey Herald Extraordinary. Dr. Husenbeth was a painstaking and voluminous writer over a wide range of subjects, many of his works being printed (Gillow, Dict. Engl. Caths. iii, 492-507; Cath. Ency. vii, 589; C.R.S. iii).

During Dr. Husenbeth's term there were at the Hall, perhaps for short periods-

Rev. William Foley in 1823, the first regular missioner at Northampton in October of that year, where the first chapel was opened two years later (Gillow, Dict. Engl. Caths. ii, 306).

Rev. Henry Elwes, 1842-52. Vide C.R.S. xiii, 339. He is mentioned in the "Life of Fr. Ignatius Spencer (the Hon. George S.), the Passionist." As private chaplain his duties would take him away with the family, and it is said that he accompanied Lady Stafford to Kissingen. His parentage has not been ascertained; but he is not known as a member of the Elwes family of Billing Hall, co. Northampton, and Brigg, co. Lincoln.

Rev. William Collis, afterwards a Canon, in 1864. From vague accounts in "St. Francis' Magazine," No. 43 for Oct. 1919, he was born about 1820, and after education in his native town, going into the business of his father, an auctioneer and estate agent. But, when of age, becoming a Catholic family estrangement ensued, and he obtained a clerkship on the Great Eastern Railway, and later to promotions at Cambridge, Audley End, Peterborough, etc. He contributed to the education of three church students, but all these failing he offered himself for the priesthood when over forty years of age. He studied at the Collegio Pio, Rome, and at St. Edmund's College, Old Hall, where he was ordained priest 28 Feb. 1863, going to Costessey in the following year. In 1868 he was appointed to the mission at Shefford, Bedfordshire, where he remained until his death on 21 April 1893. There he founded St. Francis' Home for Catholic orphan boys, which at one time was also intended for the seminary of Northampton diocese; notable benefactors named being Mr. John Eyston of Welford, and Mrs. Lyne Stephens of Lynford Hall, Norfolk, who not only paid the debts of the Home, but bore the cost of a new church.

Rev. George Davies, as chaplain at the Hall in 1869 till 1872, when he succeeded Dr. Husenbeth as missioner; but St. Walstan's chapel was shut during his term. He was made Domestic Prelate, and died 16 June,

Very Rev. Thomas Canon Fitzgerald in 1896, removed to Norwich in 1910, where he died 19 Jan. 1915. He reopened St. Walstan's church.

Rev. Francis Byrne came in 1910.

Thanks are due to Sir Henry Stafford Jerningham, Bart., for his help and the use of his interesting book written in 1909 to commemorate the centenary of the opening of St. Augustine's chapel at Costessey Hall in 1809. E.H.B.

Register of Births Marriages & Deaths of the Catholic Congregation at Cossey in Norfolk.

The book is on parchment, 10\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{2} inches, handsomely bound in vellum gilt, having brass clasps. The writing is very good and legible. Outside the cover is,—Cossey / Catholic Register / 1800—the date when older registers were copied into it, and new ones begun. Two loose sheets of paper are in the book, and are here printed before the regular registers, the first being an earlier list of baptisms, and the second a list of marriages from January, 1812, to May, 1813.

Thanks are due to the Right Rev. Bishop of Northampton for the loan of the book, which has been transcribed for me by Mr. William Clement Kendall, and also to Mr. George F. Engelbach for collating the proofs with the originals.-J.P.s.

^{} The signature of Mr. Tho Price has been cut out and supplied in a later hand above.

THE CATHOLIC REGISTERS OF THE DOMESTIC CHAPEL OF THE GORING, BIDDULPH, AND WRIGHT FAMILY AT BURTON HOUSE, BURTON, SUSSEX. 1720–1855.

CONTRIBUTED BY FATHER BERNARDINE, O.S.F.C. EDITED AND ANNOTATED BY JOSEPH STANISLAUS HANSOM.

The manor of Burton, anciently Botechitone and later Bodexton, and Boderton in Commoners, is near Petworth. John Goring (will II Hen. III) was the first of Burton. His grandson William and his four lineal descendants were knighted, the fourth being made a baronet. Sir Henry Goring, the second baronet, by his marriage with Mary, widow of Sir Thomas Gage of Firle in Sussex, second baronet, and daughter of John Chamberlain of Shirburn Castle, Oxon, had inter alios Sir William, the third and last baronet, and a daughter Anne married to Richard Biddulph, Staffs., whose descendants (Wright) eventually inherited in 1835. Sir William Goring, having no issue by his wife Dorothy Plowden, relict of Philip Draycott of Draycott and Paynesley, Staffs., the estate passed to his sister Anne (Mrs. Richard Biddulph). Sir William, as a Catholic Nonjuror, in 1717 made declarations of his property at Burton, and also (in right of his wife) at Draycott and Paynesley. His will dated 22 Jan. 1723, was proved 17 March 1724, desires burial at Burton.* Dame Dorothy, his widow, by her will of 2 July 1729, proved 8 June 1737, desired "to be buried in the church of the English Sepulchrines (nuns) at Liége, all her English servants to have their charges borne to London" (J. O. Payne, English Nonjurors and Records of English Catholics). She may be the Madam Draycott at Liége at an earlier date. She returned there in her second widowhood. Sir William Goring had also been there, and also Plowdens (Cath. Rec. Soc. xvii).

After remaining in the Biddulph family until 1835 the Burton estate went by bequest of John Biddulph to his kinsman Anthony George Wright, who assumed the name of Biddulph, whose son Anthony John Wright-Biddulph d.s.p. 12 Aug. 1895. After his death the estate was sold, no longer being in Catholic hands: but the mission continued.

The old domestic chapel in Burton House seems according to the Registers to have been dedicated to the Blessed Virgin.

Mr. T. W. Horsfield, in his "History of Sussex" (1835), says—"In 1759 a great part of Burton House was destroyed by fire, when a new, spacious and splendid structure was begun after a design of Giacomo Leoni. In 1826 this mansion was itself destroyed by fire, and a new house has lately been erected. An elegant chapel for the service of the Church of Rome has recently been fitted up."

This was evidently the chapel built outside Burton House, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, and blessed in December 1831 by the Right Rev. Dr. Bramston, Vicar Apostolic of the London District.

* He died 29 Feb. 1723-4. An obituary list of one of the Kemps of Slindon (C.R.S. vii, 387) puts it on 11 March. This is the difference of the old and new styles.

The foundation-stone of the present church was laid 12 Sept. 1866, the Rev. Thomas J. Capel (later well known as Monsignor Capel) being then the Rector. The surrounding Catholic cemetery had been consecrated by Dr. Grant, Bishop of Southwark, on 12 August previously. It was consecrated on 18 August 1869, under the dedication of SS. Anthony and George, by Archbishop (later Cardinal) Manning, who preached at the solemn opening on the following day.* Mr. Anthony John Wright-Biddulph bore the entire cost and endowment, and placed it in the hands of lay trustees.

This church is very ornate, in the Decorated Style of Gothic, well supplied in altars, stained glass and other appointments. It stands at the corner of the park of Burton House; so the mission is now described as that of Burton Park, and abuts on the village of Duncton.

Brother Foley says (Records S.J. v, 793) the first chaplain at Burton

Fr. William Tunstall, S.J., in 1678.

He was a Yorkshireman, born 1611-2; entered the S.J. at Watten in 1731; procurator at St. Omer's in 1642; on mission in Yorkshire 1643-4; professed 25 Nov. 1646; in France 1646; procurator at Watten 1747-8; ditto at Liége 1755-6; at English College, Rome 1660-72; Rector at Ghent 1672 to 1678. At the commencement of the Oates conspiracy was chaplain to Lady Goring (Mary Chamberlain, wife of Sir Henry Goring), and it was to him, at Burton, that a circular letter from Fr. Edward Petre was addressed summoning the triennial meeting of the Jesuits in London for 24 April 1678. This letter was used against the Jesuit prisoners. He escaped to the continent and died at Watten 25 March 1681 (Foley v, 690, 793; vii, 784). It would seem that his stay was very short.

Fr. Anthony Selosse, S.J., the younger, coming next.

He was a native of French Flanders, born 1653, and entered the S.J. 5 Oct. 1671. After ordination went to Burton Castle, the seat of Lady Goring (sic). There are no dates, but Foley puts the death of Sir Henry Goring in 1683, and the statement may well be wrong. An old document quoted by him says only that he went as chaplain to Lady Goring, and Selosse must have been there temp. Charles II, for when affairs under James II (6 Feb. 1685 to 11 Dec. 1688) permitted it, every Sunday after Mass at Burton Castle, he used to walk to Chichester, five miles or more (really eleven), where, in a Protestant meeting house, he gave instruction, etc. After the advent of William of Orange a posse of police and a numerous mob riotously attacked Burton Castle in the dead of night, seized Selosse and thrust him in Horsham gaol on 21 Dec. 1688. At the Spring Assizes of 1689 he was put on trial, but there being no evidence against him, he was offered liberty if he would take the oath of allegiance and supremacy. Declining such apostacy, he remained altogether sixteen months in prison, when he was arraigned again, but discharged at the instance of the Spanish Ambassador, on the plea that he was a foreigner. He then again went on the mission

* The Archbishop was near the scenes of his former activities as Protestant Rector of Wool-Lavington and Graffham, and Archdeacon of Chichester, and the grave of his wife Caroline Sargent. Horsley relates that the parish church of Burton, where the tombs of the Gorings were, had not been used for service for many years. There is a story that, as Archdeacon of Chichester, Manning directed its reuse for Protestant worship. The churchyard was mainly used for burials of Catholics, most of the dependants of the family being of the Faith, and the population being small. A great part of Burton House park is in Lavington, and other parts in Duncton and Wool-Lavington.

for two years, presumably at Burton; after which he returned to St. Omer, where he died 11 May 1696 (Foley v, 781, 793). Lady Goring would not be likely to dispense with the consolations of religion from 1692 till her death in 1696, but at present we have only Jesuit records to depend on. Lady Goring was senior coheiress of her father; Shirburn Castle eventually vested in her, and was by her left to Joseph Gage, her fourth son by her first husband. So she had another home; and would be welcome at Firle. But we have no knowledge of her residence, after the departure of Fr Selosse, in England or abroad. On page 316 is a record of two of her children buried at Brussels. An earlier member of her own family, George Chamberlain, had settled at Ghent after 1570; and was father of a namesake who was Bishop of Ypres from 1626 to 1634. As heir male he returned to England to secure the inheritance to the coheiresses.

The Rev. Bernard Kelly (Dict. Engl. Cath. Missions) assigns the year 1700 as the approximate time of the foundation of the chaplaincy or mission. Philip Draycote "æt. 7, 1663, unmarried 1681, ob. circ. Aug. * 1698" (Harl. Soc. lxiii, 74). But he was married after 1681 to Dorothy daughter of Edmund Plowden of Plowden. "Madame Dracoate came (to Liége) yo 2d of August * 1698 with her 3 servants till yo 2d of May" paying 700 florins and 10 pence to the Sepulchrine nuns at Liége, and "Sir William Goreing his Nephew and Man" paid 277 fl. 1 p. about the same time. Between 2 March and 25 April 1700, each paid further sums to the nuns (C.R.S. xvii, 196-7). Their marriage and arrival at Burton House may have been soon after, and the chaplaincy been renewed. They had both opportunities of meeting, at Liége College, Jesuits of whom several appear below.

An attempt is now made to add a few notes to the names of those priests which appear in the register, more especially the earlier ones. It should be noted that when Foley refers to the Hampshire Jesuit District, that it contained Hampshire, Sussex, Wiltshire, and Dorset. The dates attached after their names may have been extended, both before and afterwards. Notices of deaths make it practically clear that some ended their lives as pastors at Burton.

Thomas Smythe, 23 Oct. 1720, only one entry.

Foley (Records S.J. vii, 721) gives Thomas Smith alias Lewis, born at ..., co. Durham, on 18 Oct. 1674-5; a student at St. Omer's; entered S.J. at Watten 7 Sept. 1691; professed 2 Feb. 1709; on mission in Hampshire district in 1708, and next year in co. Durham; about London in 1711; from 1714-20 minister and professor of Hebrew at Liége; and (omitting reference to Burton) died in England, 9 April 1721, aged 47.

This note is given on the supposition that Thomas Smythe was a Jesuit like many of his successors at Burton. The Smythes, baronets, were of Eshe Hall, co. Durham, and later of Acton Burnell, Salop, but it would not be safe to say he was of that family. In C.R.S. xiii, 163, note 12, "Addresses of Jesuits 1727-34," there is a discrepancy, if those years are correct, with the death in 1721.

Robert Constable, 21 May and 18 June 1721.

Foley (vii, 160) gives Fr. Robert Constable, born 15 Feb. 1673-4 at , Yorkshire. Burton not mentioned. Professed S.J. 2 Feb. 1726. In 1728 was living in France with an English nobleman. Died at Watten 4 Feb. 1739, aged 66 [64]. The account is very vague.

^{*} The first date is approximate and may be too late; but allowance must be made for eleven days between the new style at Liége, and the old style then in use in England.

John Bodenham, 14 Oct. and before Christmas 1721.

Younger son of John Bodenham of Rotherwas, co. Hereford, and his wife Mary daughter of Charles Trinder of Bourton-on-the-Water, co. Gloucester. Born in co. Hereford [? Rotherwas] 8 June 1690. Educated at St. Omer's; entered the S.J. at Watten 29 July 1709. We find him as above in 1721. Professed 15 Aug. 1726; missioner at Courtfield, co. Hereford, 1724-40, when he became rector at Watten; recalled to England in October 1741; died at Croxteth Park 29 Oct. 1750; buried at Sefton, Lancashire (Foley vii, 68; Burke, Commoners iv, 85; Landed Gentry).

John Norris, no date 1722, and 30 Sept. 1722 to 26 March 1731, S.J. He signs "S. J." once, to the death of Sir William Goring, 29 Feb. 1723-4. Son of Andrew and Charity Norris of London, but born in Lancashire in 1672. Entered the English College, Rome, 18 Oct. 1691; and the Jesuit noviciate at St. Andrew's, Rome, 5 April 1692 or 93; professed 15 Aug. 1709; teaching at Liége in 1710, at St. Omer's 1712-4, and at Ghent 1715-9. Foley only speaks of his being at Burton Castle 1724-8 out of nearly nine years evidenced in the text. In 1732-3 he was again in Rome at the English College; on the mission in Suffolk District till his death there [? at Kelvedon] 10 May 1754, aged 82 (Foley vii, 550). In Vol. v, 217, Foley says he died at Burton!

During Fr. Norris's term,-

Edward Wythie, once, on — May 1725.

Foley (vii, 554) says Withy was born in co. Cambridge [? at Sawston] in 1689; was a chaplain at Wardour Castle, Wilts., in 1724; professed S.J. 2 Feb. 1725, and we find him at Burton in the following May. In 1730 he was in Paris with two noble youths; from 1741 in the Hampshire District; and from 10 Feb. 1752 Rector of the London District until 1759, when he became Rector of Liége College until Dec. 1764, dying there 22 Nov. 1769, aged 80.—An Edward Wythie of Cambridge, gentleman, declared a life estate at Sawston in that county in 1717—value £15 1s. p. a. (J. O. Payne, Nonjurors). Several of the Nonjurors were priests described as gentlemen. Dom John Bernard Wythie, also born in the same county, was professed a Benedictine at Douay 29 May 1708, ordained 1716, and died in Rome 15 Feb. 1743 (Birt, Obits).

John Robinson, 29 July to 5 Dec. 1731.

Foley (vii, 658) calls him Robinson alias or vere Gasine or Gazain, born in London, 23 Dec. 1699; joining the Jesuits 7 Sept. 1718. From 1728 teaching at Liége; and, after being at Burton (as above), was on the mission in Lancashire in 1732, dying at Preston 17 March 1742, aged 43 [42]. Elizabeth widow of John Gazaigne of St. Martin's in the Fields, tailor, was a Catholic Nonjuror in 1717. Her will, 25 April 1737—10 Feb. 1743, says she had "the produce of 33,000 livres from the town house in Paris in the name of Eliz: Robinson, which goes at my death to my son John." Query the above. In 1717 she had declared an interest of £64 p.a. in a house [? houses] in Great Russell Street and St. Martin's Lane (J. O. Payne, Nonjurors and Records Engl. Caths.). Recusants of St. Martin's parish—Francis Robinson, tailor, 1674; Andrew R., yeoman, 1674; another or the same Andrew, distiller, 1678 and 1681 (Midx. Records iv).

Peter Davies, 15 May 1735 to 29 Aug. 1736.

Davis according to Foley (vii, 197). Born in London 27 Aug. 1692; entered the Society 7 Sept. 1711; became a Spiritual Coadjutor 2 Feb. 1722; after serving in Yorkshire, was sent to Maryland, North America. Returning to Europe in 1733 or 34 was sent to the Hampshire District, where we find him at Burton in 1735 and 36 at least. From 1740 he was in Yorkshire for some years. Died at Watten 28 Dec. 1759, aged 67.

Fr. Bernardine's suggestion that some page or pages may be lost from the first book seems correct, for,-

Fr. Henry Whetenhall, S.J., was pastor at Burton when Bishop Challoner confirmed forty-five, out of a congregation of about ninety, on 17 June 1741. There can have been no episcopal visitation for many years (E. H. Burton, Life and Times of Bishop Challoner). Foley says Fr. Whetenhall was born in Kent 31 Aug. 1694; entered the S.J. 7 Sept. 1713; professed 15 Aug. 1732 [? 1722]; went to Maryland in 1724 [?]; returned to England about 1736-7; and was sent to Lulworth Castle, Dorset, but Burton is not mentioned; and died in London 27 May 1745, when he would be aged 50. His parentage is given by Gillow in C.R.S. viii, 433. His grandfather, Thomas Whetenhall of East Peckham, Kent, signed a three-generation pedigree at the Visitation in 1663, quartering twenty-four coats with his arms (Harl. Soc. liv, 178). His only son, Henry Whetenhall of East Peckham, as a Nonjuror, in 1717 declared the value of his estate there at £243 6s. 6d., his son Thomas acting with him. The latter died in Brussels 13 Jan. 1768. A third son, James, a secular priest, born in 1702, was ordained by Pope Benedict XIII, became confessor to the English Benedictine nuns at Ghent, where he died 2 March 1773 (J. Kirk, Biographies 247). Two daughters were-Dame Catherine Maura Whetenhall, O.S.B., of Brussels; and Dame Mary Placida Whetenhall, O.S.B., of Pontoise (C.R.S. viii and xiv).

It is possible that there may have been a lapse in the chaplaincy, as Charles Biddulph and his wife, Frances Bedingfeld, had three children baptised at Winchester,—on 17 July 1752, 9 Nov. 1755, and 7 July 1759 (C.R.S. i), extending even into the scanty returns during the period of the following priest-

Thomas Sanders, 20 June 1755 to 17 April 1772.

Foley (vii, 71) says he was born at in Warwickshire, 1 Oct. 1724; entered the Society 7 Sept. 1744; professed 2 Feb. 1762; was teaching at St. Omer's in 1754. After being at Burton (as the registers show) and in the Hampshire District, he became missioner at Worcester in 1777, where he died 12 Nov. 1790, aged 65. The Franciscan Registers of Birmingham give "Born 1 Oct. & bap. 5 Oct. 1723, Thomas son of Richard Sanders & Mary, sponsors Edward Loxley & Ann Wright" (Phillimore's Warwickshire Registers ii, 45); and Richard Sanders of Birmingham died 4 May 1724 (Ibid. iii, 60).

Charles Brown alias [vere] Booth, 13 Jan., and "by Mr. Brown," on 31 Jan. 1773.

Foley (v, 792, and vii, 72) says he was brother of James Booth, the celebrated conveyancer, and born at St. Germain-en-Laye, France, 8 Sept. 1707; entered the Society 7 Sept. 1724; professed 2 Feb. 1743. After serving on the mission in England, he became English Penitentiary at Loreto; later tutor to Henry 8th Lord Arundell at Wardour Castle, Wilts.; in 1762-3 became Rector of the English College in Rome. He was obliged to leave in 1776 on account of charges, stated to be false, made against him and the heads of other Religious Houses in Rome, that they had entertained Prince Charles Edward with honours due to Royalty. Foley says that he was at Burton from 1769 to 1779, whilst the registers show three other priests there during that period. The statement calls for corroboration, and Foley's calling it Burton Castle, the seat of the Gorings, the last male of the family having died 45 years before is wrong. Foley concludes by saying that Fr. Booth's old pupil, Lord Arundel, invited him to Wardour, where he died II May 1797, aged 90; and was buried in the family vault.

A Charles Booth was appointed a Groom of the Bedchamber to Mary of Modena, wife of King James II, then at St. Germain-en-Laye, in 1706; and may be the Captain Booth at Havre in 1692 (Ruvigny, Jacobite Peerage, etc., 219, 240).

John Boone, 18 Jan. 1774 and 28 Feb. 1775.

Foley (vii, 72) says he was probably brother of Edward Boone, S.J., who was a native of Maryland, North America. He was born 18 April 1735; entered the Society. After ordination he went to Maryland in 1765; returned to England in 1770. The next dates as above. Foley says he returned to Maryland in 1784, dying there in 1795, aged C.R.S. (xii, 53) puts his death in August 1795.

William Metcalfe, 24 Sept. 1775 to 25 April 1780, and death on 9 Sept. 1780.

Peter Metcalfe of Gaudby (Gautby) by his first wife, Ann Clod(d) of Gaudby, had two sons monks (C.R.S. iv, 265). The Rev. F. M. Blakiston, Rector of Gautby, courteously sends me word that the only Metcalfe entry in his registers is,—"Septembr 1724 Mr Peter Metcalfe Buryede in wollen."

With one queried year this is Dom William Placid Metcalfe, O.S.B., born at (? Brigg), Lincolnshire, in 1713; professed at Lamspring 26 May 1740; on the mission in the Benedictine South Province for an unknown term; at Winchester 1758-69; at Weston [-Underwood], Bucks., 1769; at Kelvedon Hall, Kelvedon Hatch, Essex, the seat of the Wright family referred to above, 1769-76 [? 75]; died in Sussex 9 Sept. 1780 (Birt, Benedictine Obits, 112). His name only appears to two registers at Winchester in 1769 (C.R.S. i, 170), and he may have been chaplain to the nuns.

During his term comes,-

Mr. Molineaux, 2 May 1777 (once).

Joseph Molyneux alias Tickle, S.J., may have supplied from Slindon, where he was priest and died 3 Sept. 1778, aged 47 (C.R.S. xiii, 355; Foley vii, 514).

G. A. Baynham, O.S.F., 5 Oct. 1780 to 22 Feb. 1781.

Fr. George Athanasius Baynham. The late Fr. Thaddeus Hermans (Franciscans in England, 199) gives only scraps about him. Ordained about 1761; at Douay 1762-7; chaplain to Poor Clare nuns at Aire, Flanders, 1767; at Douay 1768-70; Superior at Birmingham 1770-3; at Aire 1773-4; at Douai 1776-7; at Bruges 1778; several years at Litter Court Books. Ufton Court, Berks. He died there 25 March 1803, aged 66 (C.R.S. xii, 73).

George Bruning, 19 July 1781-14 Jan. 1782.

George Bruning, S.J. His sojourn at Burton is not mentioned by writers. He died at Isleworth 3 June 1802, aged 63 (C.R.S. vii, 389; xii, 82; xiii, 292, 301; Gillow, Dict. Engl. Caths. i, 330; Foley v, 814;

Charles McCarthy, 8 Sept. to 28 Oct. 1782.

A priest, Charles Macarty (sic) died in London 21 Oct. 1799 (C.R.S.

Richard Antrobus, 4 March to 3 May 1783, when he describes himself as Pastor of this place; and on 23 Oct. 1785.

He took the College oath at Douay 11 March 1768, when nearly 33, when he was described as son of Thomas Antrobus and his wife Sarah Greenhow of Chester diocese. It may be a coincidence, but his name appears between the brothers Edward and Thomas, aged 23 and 20, sons of Nathaniel Eyre and his wife Jane Bromehead of the same diocese (First Douay Diary, 75); but Thomas Eyre, who became President of Ushaw College, is said to have been born at Glossop, Derbyshire. We may hope to hear more details of Richard Antrobus when we print the Seventh Douay Diary. He was acting at Midhurst and Easebourne I Aug. 1779 to 18 March 1782 at least (C.R.S. i). Then comes his short pastorate at Burton and a single entry. He died at Hollest House, Sussex, I Feb. 1800 (Ibid. xii, 73). This would make his age 64.

William Pierpoint and Pierrepont, 9 Jan. 1784 to 5 July 1810.

A note of him giving his alias Poole appears in Slindon Register (C.R.S. vii, 355), but Mr. Joseph Gillow, our Hon. Recorder, who wrote it, had not the advantage of seeing the Burton Registers which fill in a long hiatus practically from the time Pierpoint left Douay in 1783 or 1784 to the time he arrived at Cowes, Isle of Wight, in 1811. It appears that he only supplied at Slindon from Burton. It is only from 23 April 1799 that he spells his name Pierrepont. He died at Cowes 15 Feb. 1828 (C.R.S. xii, 179).

John Greenham, 25 Nov. 1810 to 1 Dec. 1816, and his death on 13 June 1817. The Laitys' Directory for 1818 (C.R.S. xii, 135) shows him to be a Valladolid priest, who was formerly at Moorfields Chapel, London.

William Hurst, 9 July and 29 Aug. 1817.

William son of Joseph Hurst and his wife Margaret Preston of Ormskirk, Lancashire; born 8 April 1776; went to Sedgley Park School, under his uncle John, the first President; admitted to Lisbon College, on the Radcliffe fund, 25 Sept. 1788; resided at Westminster several years, and opened St. Mary's Chapel in Romney Terrace 21 Nov. 1813, which he left in 1817. Then comes the omission of his short stay at Burton as above; but his going as missioner to Trinidad in 1817 follows, where he died to Aug. 1823, aged 47. His brother Thomas and nephew Joseph were also Lisbonians; whilst his uncles John and William were Douay priests (Gillow, Register of Lisbon College, 219; Dict. Engl. Caths. iii, 486; First Douay Diary, 70, 71; C.R.S. xii, 160).

Philip Wyndham, 10 Dec. 1817 only.

Vide note to Slindon Registers (C.R.S. vii, 356). Mr. Windham was evidently on a visit from Arundel. He died at Brook Green, Hammersmith, aged 92, not 93 as in C.R.S. xii, 164.

Peter Duval, 4 Jan. 1818 to 16 Sept. 1832, and his death on 24 May, 1833.

During his pastorate three Confirmations were held at Slindon, when there came to receive the Sacrament from the Burton congregation: 6 on 6 April 1823; 16 on 14 Oct. 1827; and 12 on 4 Dec. 1831. The Laitys' Directory for 1834 shows him as Pierre D., of Rouen diocese, aged 69 (C.R.S. v, 382-3; xii, 201).

Thomas J Brogan, 10 Aug. 1833 to 21 Sept. 1841. Was at Sutton Park, Surrey, 1842-5.

Simon O'Carroll, 17 Dec. 1841 to 24 Dec. 1848. Before he left the three following priests supplied. Dennis Sheehan, 23 July 1848.

Jeremiah Donovan, 13 Aug. 1848. Edward Hood, 16 Dec. 1848.

Peter Coop, 12 May 1850 to 10 Aug. 1856.

Fr. Bernard Kelly places him at Midhurst from 1857 to 1860, after which for nine years that mission was served from Burton.

Julius Picquot, S.T.D., etc., 18 Sept. 1856? and 17 Jan. 1857. Gillow (Dict. Engl. Caths. v, 310) says he was ordained at St. Edmund's, Old Hall, in 1814, where he was a professor till 1818; at Spanish Place 1818–45; Winchester 1845–8; Colchester 1848–56; Burton (as above) 1856-7; then retired to Chelsea where he died 13 June 1860. He edited a "Manual of Serving at Mass" in 1855.

It seems doubtful whether the baptism or entry is made by him on 18 Sept. 1856.

J.... MacSweeney, 6 March 1857 to 17 Oct. 1858. Bernard Van Reeth, 11 Jan. 1859 to 1 Jan. 1860. Eugene Reardon, 26 Aug. 1860 to 27 Dec. 1863. John Ryan, O.S.A., 25 March to 9 April 1865.

Richard G.... Davis, 4 Feb. to 25 March 1866.

Thomas John Capel, 27 June and 19 July and 12 Sept. 1866.

Later the well-known Monsignor Capel, who was styled by Disraeli "Monsignor Catesby"; and converted the late Marquess of Bute; a great preacher; Rector of the Catholic University at Kensington; and died in America.

A. . . . V[ictor] W[illiam] Duke, 18 Nov. 1866.

This must be Victor William Duke who was at Chichester from 1866 to 1874, the leading letter "A" being Latin for By.

Timothy Donovan, 1866.

Fr. Louis Pellicetti, O.S.F.C., 1867.

Augustus Philip Bethell, later a canon of Southwark.

Reginald C Fowler, 1872 to 1878.

He went to St. Joseph's, Guildford, but retired later.

Thomas Lalor, 1878 to 1886.

He became a Canon of Southwark Chapter.

Fr. Anthony Brennan, O.S.F.C., 1887. Nicholas Vincent Broder, 1888 to 1894.

He was at St. Joseph's, Brighton, which he built, from 1873-88.

Fr. Nicholas Mazzarini, O.S.F.C., 1894 to 1904.

Fr. Wilfrid Kellard, O.S.F.C., 1905.

Fr. Bernardine Fish, O.S.F.C., 1906 to 1914.

He contributes the transcript of the register, lately Provincial of his Order.

Fr. Pacificus Atkinson, O.S.F.C., 1914 to 1919.

Fr. Bernardine Fish again in charge.

I have to thank Fr. Bernardine for much local and other information.

Book I.

1780. Peter Pellett born april 25th 1780 baptizd the same day by Mr Metcalf.

* This entry is in the handwriting of Fr. Booth alias Brown, who adds Fr. Sanders' name to it in the margin. But this misplaced and incorrect entry is better given above, under the proper year, by Fr. Sanders himself.

* This seems the same writing as five memoranda on page 8.

This looks like the same baptism (sixth below), an autographic entry signed "Ino Boone." So probably the entry above is also wrong in "by Mr Brown"? It follows another baptism "by Mr John Boone."

and under Restrictions the persons therein described from certain penalties and Disabilities to which Papists or Persons professing the popish Religion are by Law Subject."

W^m Ellis, clerk of the peace for the County of Sussex.

[Endorsed] Mr Pierpoint.

3-[Endorsed] License for the Chapel at Burton 3d October 1791. Sussex.—Be it remembered that at the General Quarter Sessions of the peace of our Lord the King held at Petworth in and for the said County of Sussex on Monday the third day of October in the year of our Lord One thousand seven hundred and ninety one, William Pierpoint of Burton in the said County, Catholic Priest and William Shackleford* of the same place, Gentleman, Persons professing the Roman Catholic Religion did deliver in open Court a Certificate under their Hands certifying to his Majesty's Justices of the Peace there assembled that the place of their Congregation or Assembly for Religious Worship is in the Parish of Burton aforesaid and the same was recorded at the said Sessions in Pursuance of an Act of Parliament passed in the thirty first year of the Reign of his present Majesty intitled" an Act to relieve upon Conditions and under Restrictions the persons therein described from certain Penalties and Disabilities to which Papists or persons professing the popish Religion are by Law Subject," which I hereby certify accordingly. Wm Ellis, Clerk of the peace for the County of Sussex.

^{*} The death of Mr. William Shakelford (sic) on 3 Dec., 1794, is in C.R.S. xii, 51. The name appears in the Catholic Registers of Winchester fifty years earlier (Ibid. i).

ADDENDA TO MARKET RASEN REGISTERS, &c.

CONTRIBUTED BY JOSEPH S. HANSOM.

The following are from the bishops' transcripts of Kingerby registers in the Northern Genealogist, vol. i. The earlier years as usual are in old style, from 25 March. The Knights being Catholics, only burials appear.

1640-I. Peter Richier of Lincolne, and Catharine Smith of the same, married 14 Dec. [only relating to the lease in 1702 of Kingerby Hall, p. 194].

1715-6. Mrs Anne Knight*—no date.

1719-20. Richard son of Will. Knight and Lucy [Jennings] his wife, bur. Dec. 27.

1727-8. William Knight, bur. March 2 [? as death is given on 21st].

1728-9. Edmund Knight, bur. Jan. 31.

1731-2. Edmund Styles, bur. Dec. 12. ["Uncle Edmund Stilles" in will of William Knight, 27 Jan. 1726-31 May 1728.]

1752. July 9. Robert Osberne, a Roman Catholic servant, buried. 1764. Buried Aug. 28. Mr. William Anderson, a Roman Catholic priest.

A return of Papists in 1780 gives—Market-Rasen, 33, a school; West Rasen, 47; Kingerby, 4; Total for Lincolnshire, 1061 (Ibid. iii, 104).

A note from West Rasen parish registers reads-

1742. Mary, the late wife of William Utterby, papist, buried Nov. 23rd. (Ibid., p. 104.)

NOTES FROM LINCOLNSHIRE PARISH REGISTERS.

Other notes from parish registers of Lincolnshire on the same page may as well be reproduced here, as they are not likely to appear with any registers which we are likely to produce—

Ashby-cum-Fenton—1698, April 19. William Welford of Hainton, and Elizabeth Simson of Lowth, papists, wr married at Th. Ashton's hous, January 13, 1697. Certified this day. [Doubtless by priest.]

Wyham-cum-Cadeby—1767. Mr Henry Kirby, a Romish priest. His circumstances I know not, aged 55 years, Buried May 16.

* Possibly the "Widow Musgrave" of Kingerby, first wife of William Knight (C.R.S. iv, 262, 264).

Felizabeth Simpson, widow of William S. of Louth, tailor (will 2 Jan. 1695–12 May 1696), who left her a life estate at Orby-in-the-Marsh, with reversion to his son William, who with another son, George, were Catholic Non-jurors in 1717. William S. senior mentions his daughter Elizabeth as wife of Thomas Ashton (J. O. Payne, Cath. Non-Jurors and Records of English Catholics). So the marriage took place in the daughter's home.

* Probably chaplain to the Heneage family of Cadeby (cf. C.R.S. xii, 12).

Conisholme—1773. Ann Bywater, a papist, buried Sept. 12th. Grimoldby—1787. William Caley, a papist gentleman, aged 67, buried April 24th.

1792. Mary Caley, a papist, aged 102, buried June 3rd.

SEQUESTRATIONS ON SOME LINCOLNSHIRE RECUSANTS IN 1604.

These are extracted from the Northern Genealogist iii, 103; headed "Archdeacon's Visitation 1604," the archdeaconry being that of Stow in the northern part of the county.

Bigbie-cum-Membris—Gervasius, Anne,* gen.; Robertus Shierson, Michael, Margareta et Rosa Matteus, famuli ejus; Carolus Nevell als Walker, et Elizabetha ejus uxor; Jenetta Brown, vid.; Effam [Euphemia] ux. sants.

- Immingham—Edwardus Porkenton, gen. et uxor ejus, presented for recusants. Sequest'.
- * Gervase, younger son of Martin Anne of Frickley, Yorkshire, and his second wife Frances Aungier. Elizabeth, Gervase's eldest sister, married 1° Francis Gascoigne of Gawthorpe, and 2° Marmaduke Tyrwhitt of Bigby. She survived her second husband, and died 9 Jan. 1599–1600. Marmaduke was fourth son of Sir Robert Tyrwhitt of Kettleby in Bigby parish, who was M.P. for the county during Queen Mary's reign, died 13 Nov. 1581, and was not buried at Bigby, the family burial place, until 22 Jan. following (J. Foster's Yorks. Visit. 360–1; Harl. Soc. lii, 1020).
- † Barbara daughter of Sir Thomas Guildford of Hempsted, Kent. Sir Thomas Heneage of Hainton died 5 June 1639, and she remarried in 1622 Sir Thomas Elliott of Stanford-Rivers, Essex, dying 20 June 1641, æt. 78, and was buried at St. Martins-in-the-Fields, Middlesex (Harl. Soc. li, 483).
- The wife of Anthony Saltmarshe of Wragby (sic) is given as Priscilla daughter of Sir William Fairfax of Steeton, Bolton-Percy, Yorkshire, who proved her husband's will on 13 Feb. 1635-6. He had a sister Joane who ob. s. p. (Harl. Soc. lii, 847).
- § Henry Portington of Sawcliffe, who died in 1560, by his wife Maude daughter of Sir Robert Tyrwhitt of Kettleby, had inter alia two sons, John and George, each of whom had a son called Edward unaccounted for, either of whom may be the Edward Portington, gent., who buried a daughter Mary on 14 Aug. 1625, and a son Edward on 13 Jan. following at Wrawby (Harl. Soc. lii, 794-5).

MICHAEL TIRRYE, B.A., SCHOOL MASTER, RECUSANT.

CONTRIBUTED BY JOSEPH STANISLAUS HANSOM.

Discoveries in the "North Riding Records," made too late for insertion on page 19, call for attention. It seems that Michael Tirrye had in his old age returned near the home of his youth in Wensley Dale. His age, given as 6c in 1612, needs little attention. Cases occur of recusants aged 90 and 64 in one year coming down to 60 and 46 when they were a year or two older. If he was verging on 40 in 1573, as vaguely put in "Troubles" iii, he would be nearer 78, instead of 60. This may have been the chatter of the alarmed parson who persecuted him (ut inf.), who would know more of the results from refusals to attend his church, than he did about the "stroller" himself.

Anyhow now, after three centuries, Michael Tirrye adorns our pages with other valiant defenders of the Faith.

At Richmond Sessions July 1611, after the names of 18 other recusants of Wensley, is this record and unintentional tribute:—

"Mich[ael] Tirry, a stroller, a pernicious seducer, as the presentor (Mr. Chaitor, the parson there) doth vehemently suspect, who desireth the Court to deale more strictly with him:—Nisi enim a medio tollatur iste lupus, de ovibus actum est" (iii, 73).

Accordingly at Richmond Sessions 8 Oct. 1611 we find an order:-

"That Mich[ael] Tirry of Wensley [and two others] having refused to take the oath of allegiance [and supremacy omitted as usual] be committed to the Gaole at York, there to remain &c." (i, 241-2).

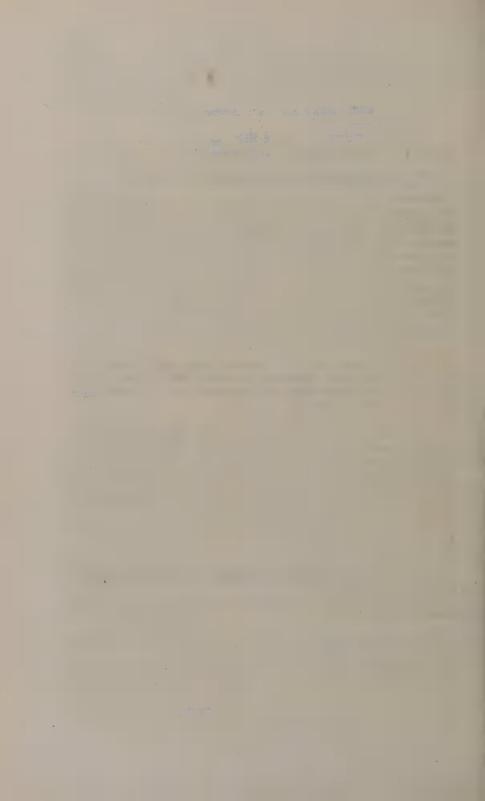

Whether the "stroller," dreaded "seducer" and "wolf" suffered this imprisonment does not appear. But he must have, or further conviction would be unnecessary; and he must have been at large, when at Richmond Sessions 6 Oct. 1612 was presented:—

"Mich[ael] Tirrye of Wensley, aged 60, Recusant 12 months" (iii, 92).

A note adds:-

"Conviction of the Recusants aforesaid at Richmond Sessions, 12 Jany. 1612-3" (ibid.).

So he was again liable to imprisonment. We again lose sight of this long-suffering Catholic.

OF PERSONS AND PLACES

COMPILED AND CONTRIBUTED BY MRS. T. E. MARTIN

The old descriptions of parishes outside the square mile of old London, with its III parishes, is adhered to, as in their counties of Middlesex, Essex, Kent and Surrey, modern so-called London being ignored. For instance, St. Clement Danes, just outside Temple Bar, is in Middlesex. Many parishes have only the dedication name of the church.

To correct spellings to tally with modern corruptions can only be done within limits. "Nicarthes" may be an old familiar name for St. Nicholas's, the only church at Guisborough after the destruction of the glorious priory. Monkey, perhaps some compound of Monk or Mount, has defied identification. The scribe may have made a mistake, and, in the next line he writes "Hungate the best."

Some information or suggestion is added, as "martyrs," where they can be verified. Topographical particulars also seemed necessary.

THE FIFTEENTH REPORT

OF THE

Catholic Record Society

PRESENTED TO THE ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING AT ARCHBISHOP'S HOUSE, WESTMINSTER,

THURSDAY, JULY 17, 1919

Together with the Roll of Members, the Constitutions, &c.

Constitutions

- 1. Name. The name of the Society is "THE CATHOLIC RECORD SOCIETY."
- 2. Objects. The objects are the transcribing, printing, indexing, and distributing to its members the Catholic Registers of Baptisms, Marriages and Deaths, and other old Records of the Faith, chiefly personal and genealogical, since the Reformation in England and Wales.
- 3. Management. The affairs of the Society are managed by a Council consisting of twelve members and four honorary officers, viz., The Recorder, Bursar, Legal Adviser and Secretary—four forming a quorum. It has power to appoint a President and Vice-Presidents, its Chairman and Officers, and to fill vacancies on its own body, and has power to refuse or take away membership. One-third of the twelve members and all the honorary officers retire each year, but are eligible for re-election. Nominations of New Members of the Council must be sent to the Secretary fourteen days before the Annual Meeting. The representation and management are reserved to Catholic Members.
- 4. Subscription. The subscription is one guinea per annum, which entitles members to the publications for the year, but the names of any members whose subscription shall be two years in arrears will thereupon be removed from the Society, and not be readmitted until all arrears are paid.

Subscriptions are due on June 1 in each year, and no work is issued to any member whose subscription is unpaid. A member wishing to retire from the Society must intimate his intention to the Bursar or Secretary before the 1st day of June, or be held liable for his subscription for the ensuing year.

Personal Life-Membership may be obtained on payment of twenty guineas in advance. Members who have paid subscriptions for ten consecutive years and who are not in arrear may obtain the same privilege on payment of ten guineas. All life subscriptions are to be capitalized.

- 5. Privileges. The members are entitled to the Volume or Volumes printed for the year of subscription, no Volume being issued to any member whose subscription is unpaid. They may also, on prepayment, obtain back numbers (if in stock) on such terms as the Council may direct.
- 6. Meetings. An Annual Meeting is held in the month of June or July, of which at least seven days' notice is sent to all the members. At this meeting a report of the work of the Society, with a statement of the income and expenditure, is presented. This is issued together with the list of members and the Constitutions of the Society.
- 7. Audit. The Bursar's accounts are audited by a member of the Society appointed by the Council, at the close of the financial year, which expires on May 31.

N.B.—The Bursar deals with Membership and Subscriptions.

FIFTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT

THE cessation of hostilities has brought little or no relief to our work so far. Prices of material and labour are affected by the unrest consequent on the ruthless war forced on the world. We can only hope that time may tone down the restless state of affairs, and that the sound sense of our Country will assert its sway, and things assume some permanency and stability. Caution is called for meanwhile.

The Council expresses its sincere thanks for the consideration shown by members in the trying times.

The Seventh Douay Diary has still been held up by the long illness of Canon Burton, in which we all sympathize; but he hopes to proceed with it soon. Dom Birt expects to be free soon of his work as military chaplain, and to get ready the Downside papers. Both are well advanced, and it would be a pity to start on other works which might hold them up.

Prior Bracey is directing transcripts of Dominican annals. Those of the Franciscan nuns at Taunton are in a forward state.

Volume xxi, dealing with the Venerable Philip Howard, Earl of Arundel, is nearing completion, and the delay by the war has had one happy result, in enabling some new matter, then tied up, to be included. The index is in the press. There have been many difficulties over xxii. Meanwhile Mr J. P. Smith, a member of Council, has again generously come to our help by undertaking the expense of another volume of Lancashire Registers, which is expected to be put in hand before the Annual Meeting.

It must be our endeavour to aim at getting complete, or well advanced, four books in this, the sixteenth year.

The Council has had the pleasure of offering congratulations to Sir Henry Farnham Burke, a Vice-President, on the occasion of his promotion to the office of Garter Principal King of Arms. This is the first time the post has been awarded to a Catholic since the Reformation.

The Governors of the John Rylands Library at Manchester having generously initiated an endeavour to replace the priceless treasures of the Library of Louvain University, so ruthlessly and wantonly destroyed by the Germans in 1914, appealed to the Council to assist them in this good work. It was agreed unanimously that the Society be recommended, under the special circumstances, to pass a vote offering the Library a complete set of the volumes already issued; and a motion to that effect is to be submitted to the General Meeting.

The obituary list has been largely swollen during the year by eleven deaths, including many of distinction and venerable years. The Very Rev. Monsignor Claud Reginald Lindsay, for whom prayers were asked last year, supplied several papers to Vol. xix, and had made considerable progress with others, which are being completed; The Right Rev. Patrick Fenton, Bishop of Amycla; The Very Rev. Raymund Canon Stanfield had supplied interesting papers to previous volumes, and was editing another in xxii shortly before his death; Sir Alfred Scott Scott-Gatty, Garter Principal King of Arms; Mrs John Hungerford Pollen; Mr George Craig Saunders Pauling; Mr Charles Edward Mumford; Dr John Charles Cox, a distinguished archæologist and author, from whom we might have hoped for assistance in our work; Angela Lady Herries, widow of our first President; Mr Frederick Annesley Stapleton Bretherton; Mr Basil Thomas Fitzherbert subscribed up to the end, but had transferred his rights to his son, the Lord Stafford.

Another subscription is taken up by a relative, so the material loss is reduced to nine. There are expectations that more of the vacancies caused by death may be replaced during the current year, and be recorded in the next report.

Three members have resigned, and the name of a fourth has been removed from the Roll.

Three have joined as new members. Two have rejoined, and we note with pleasure that the Prioress of Hayward's Heath, C.R.L., now that the war seems over, has seen the way to resume her place as a Founder.

The net result is therefore a loss of eight members, reducing the Roll to three hundred and fifty-two.

It is worthy of note that the Archbishop of Birmingham has taken up the subscription of the late Canon Caswell; whilst Mother Prioress of Bruges, C.R.L., assumes that of Lady Maud Barrett.

Four old members have compounded for Life membership.

Sir Henry S. Jerningham, Bart.; the Rev. John Hungerford Pollen, S.J.; Mr G. F. Engelbach; and Mr J. P. Smith are the four members retiring by effluxion of time.

PROGRESS

THE position of our Society as compared with other Record-printing Societies and the dates of foundation will be of interest. These Societies, even with a smaller membership, have done and are doing valuable work. They deserve more support.

TRANSACTIONS

OF THE FIFTEENTH ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING.

The Fifteenth Annual Meeting of the Catholic Record Society was held at Archbishop's House, Westminster, by permission of the Cardinal Archbishop, on Thursday the 17th July 1919.

His Eminence Cardinal Gasquet, the President of the Society, took the Chair.

There were also present: the Right Rev. Bishop of Salford; Sir Henry S. Jerningham, Bart.; Sir C. Gordon Watson, K.B.E., C.M.G.; The Very Rev. Prior Higgins, C.R.L.; the Very Rev. Canon Sutcliffe; the Rev. J. R. McKee, for the Oratory; the Rev. J. H. Pollen, S.J.; Messrs. G. F. Engelbach; Joseph Gillow (Recorder); R. N. Green-Armytage; W. A. S. Hewins; L. C. Lindsay (Bursar); C. J. Munich, K.S.G.; W. C. Robinson; C. J. Roskell (Legal Adviser); J. W. Trotman; Alfred Williams; and J. S. Hansom (Secretary).

Messages of regret were received from His Eminence the Cardinal Archbishop of Westminster; the Hon. Mrs Codrington; Mrs. John Humble; the Very Rev. Canon Burton; Major Skeet; Major Trappes-Lomax; Major Vaughan; Mr Baterden; Mr Brierley, Hon. Sec. Lancs. Parish Register Soc., who wrote: "You have weathered the War in a fashion which excites my envy and admiration"; Mr R. D. Radcliffe; Mr J. B. Wainewright; and Dr

Williamson.

Cardinal Gasquet expressed his pleasure in being able to attend as President for the first time, having been detained in Rome for three years by hard work. It was with difficulty that he had been able to leave; but, pleading an urgent claim from the Secretary, the Pope had allowed him to depart three weeks before his time. It caused him, however, to miss, that very day, the feast of his Church in Rome, Santa Maria in Campitelli.

During that period they had to deplore the loss of their late President, the Duke of Norfolk, whom he felt it an honour to succeed.

Looking back at the work of the Catholic Record Society, there was every reason to be pleased with the result. What struck him more than anything else was that, beginning humbly after many learned societies, its roll of membership showed it taking a leading place amongst them. At the beginning, when Mr Hansom and others desired to commence the Society, he was sceptical as to the possibility of raising the enthusiasm of Catholics to the pitch of establishing it, and was glad to find his forecast wrong. It was impossible to doubt its utility. Any society would be proud of the volumes printed and distributed to the members. It had only begun; there was still plenty to accomplish in the future.

He had recently been appointed by the Pope to take charge of all archives in the Papal Chancelry, the Vatican Library and galleries, which were second to none in Europe. He found a vast accumulation of bound volumes and loose papers, many of which had been taken from the Holy See by Napoleon and returned a hundred years ago. In four months these had been sorted into thousands of boxes, amongst which were a dozen containing English papers. He had been arranging these in chronological order. Many would form interesting and valuable records for the Society. Only a few related to the Martyrs.

Other documents were more controversial and hardly within the scope of the Society's work, but were most important historically. He had already written a pamphlet illustrating the importance of the Papal archives, as bearing on the diplomatic relations of the Holy See with the European powers, showing that nobody had the slightest idea of its importance. The need of knowledge of these archives was shown by the Foreign Office publications on the Congress of Vienna, the conclusions of which were that, when Pius VII regained his liberty, he lost his influence. About Cardinal Consalvi it was said that he was a man of considerable ability, but that his influence was practically nil. The real truth was that Pius VII was never more powerful than then and afterwards. Pacca's correspondence with Consalvi was not even referred to.

In conclusion Cardinal Gasquet thanked the Council for electing him as the President of the Society.

Mr Williams proposed the adoption of the Annual Report and Financial Statement, and said he was pleased to see the sound financial position of the Society. He had joined at the beginning, being greatly interested in the history, little more than tradition, of the Church in his county of Monmouthshire and that district. There were few Catholics there, and in the northern part the existence of the Faith was largely due to the Vaughans of Courtfield, the Joneses of Llanarth, the Pritchards, and others. There were few priests, and fewer churches. The records of Glamorganshire and Brecknockshire required looking into by competent persons.

Mr Trotman seconding, said one could not but feel grateful that, in spite of the difficulties of the past years, the Society was in such a flourishing condition. What the President had said about the Vatican archives applied in lesser matters. He was continually coming across things connected with the troublous times of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, which ought to be publicly known. Such things were not only suppressed by the Government, but falsities substituted, or history would not have been written as it has been.

Prior Higgins proposed the re-election to the Council for a period of three years of Sir Henry Stafford Jerningham, Baronet; the Rev. John Hungerford Pollen, S.J.; Mr George Frederick Engelbach; and Mr John Peter Smith. He said it was only by the fervour and enthusiasm of their Councillors that the Society could be a success. He hoped those who had given their services would be re-elected.

Mr Munich seconded and expressed the pleasure all must feel at the Cardinal's attendance, and the hope that he might be able to attend in the future. The motion was carried unanimously.

The Bishop of Salford said unexpected circumstances had brought him to town and enabled him to hear the important address of Cardinal Gasquet. Catholics in England were proud of the fact that the Holy Father had entrusted to His Eminence the Vatican Library and its unique archives; and the fact that those archives contained so much relating to our country, opened up the prospect of the extension of the work of the Society.

As a member of the Society, and also as an Honorary Professor of the University of Louvain, it gave him much pleasure to move the following resolution: "The Catholic Record Society, being desirous of showing its sympathy with the University of Louvain in the grievous loss sustained through the wanton destruction of its Library by the Germans in 1914, resolves that a complete set of its volumes already printed be offered for acceptance."

His Lordship thanked the Council for having recommended the contribution, a gracious action which would be greatly appreciated, whilst it was a privilege for the Society to be associated with such a great work, which was started by the John Rylands

Library in his City of Manchester.

Mr Hewins seconding, said that some months back the War Cabinet appointed a Special Committee to consider the question of the German indemnity and dealing with the restoration. He had the honour of suggesting that Germany should be required to replace book for book, MS. for MS., or substitute duplicates. The suggestion was taken to Paris and inserted in the Peace Treaty. He entirely sympathised with the motion. The Society's volumes contained valuable information about the early relations between British and Belgian Catholicism.

The motion was unanimously resolved on.*

Mr Robinson proposed and Mr Williams seconded a vote of thanks to the Council and Officers, which was carried.

Canon Sutcliffe proposed a vote of thanks to Cardinal Gasquet for presiding and to Cardinal Bourne for the use of the Library. Fr Pollen seconded, and said that for a long time after the Reformation no records could be kept in England, the great repositories being abroad, and above all in Rome, now under Cardinal Gasquet's guardianship; and so the prospect of printing them might be hoped for. The volumes would cost more to produce in future, and it might be necessary to restrict the output. The war was over, but not the effect of it.

The President returned thanks, and said that Cardinal Bourne had wished to come to the meeting, but was prevented by two engagements. The interest taken by the Cardinal Archbishop in the Society's work was well known.

^{*} Mr. Guppy, the Librarian of the John Rylands Library, to whom the twenty-one volumes have been sent, informs the Secretary that over 20,000 books have been contributed.

NOTICES

The difficulties encountered have been referred to in the Annual Report. Lately an additional loss by the death of our esteemed member, Dom Henry Norbert Birt, O.S.B., has put a temporary stop to Downside papers; but we count on one of his able colleagues taking up the task. One volume is near completion; another well advanced; yet another just started; and a fourth may be started very soon. So it is hoped to catch up with arrears.

The general commendation of our work by competent authorities should appeal to Catholics especially to join and help. We ought not only to regain the numbers of members lost by the war, but resume the advance made before. Annual subscriptions, and others for back volumes of which some are getting nearly exhausted, should keep our finances in their present sound state, and maintain the output.

Members are requested to call the attention of their friends to the Society and its work. A copy of the current subscription form is enclosed to members this year, in case they desire to introduce a friend. It shows also how back numbers are procurable by members desiring to complete a set; but it must be clearly understood that it is liable to alteration without notice.

Transcripts of interesting unpublished documents ready for the press, together with the loan of the originals for the purpose of collation, are invited. It is desired always to have material for half a dozen volumes ready for printing, as special donations for printing may enable the output of work to be increased.

Offices of help in transcribing documents, especially in the Public Offices in London, where the greater part of the documents relating to the country are stored, are invited. Parish priests are especially requested to provide exact copies of old registers in their custody, or give facilities for this being done.

Serious loss of time and expense have been incurred in some cases by manuscript being sent incomplete or modified. It is desired to impress on transcribers that papers should be complete, without excisions, verbatim et literatim, although they may not agree with modern ideas. Merit lies in their absolute integrity and identity, as far as modern printing will allow.

Members desirous of paying annual subscriptions through their bankers can be supplied with a "Banker's Order," on application to the Bursar or Secretary.

N.B. A few special portraits of the six priests connected with St Gregory's College, Paris, forming illustrations to Volume XIX, have been printed, and can be had by Members only on subscription of 7s. 6d. post free.
